CatalogIt Mary Leslie Hagan, 2002 ABSTRACT: Electronic catalog (e-catalog) management capabilities are having a tremendous impact on e-commerce effectiveness, profitability, and success. Increasingly, small and home-based businesses realize that their ability to deploy catalog information is significantly constrained by the cost, expertise, and complexity associated with current e-catalog managers. These constraints, among others, are the primary reasons why less than 2% of all small businesses use the Internet for e-commerce sales. This thesis describes the underlying research, design, and implementation of CatalogIt, an electronic catalog manager.

CatalogIt is a prototype system providing an intuitive graphical interface, highly customizable data input, and timesaving features like item grouping and quick access to recently created or modified catalog components. It also offers scalable n-tier architecture, reusable components, secure transactions, and easy packaging and deployment options. The purpose of CatalogIt is to overcome the constraints that current e-catalog managers place upon small businesses while supporting clear and concise methods for content aggregation, transformation, and dissemination.

E-Commerce and Web Technologies Kurt Bauknecht, Birgit Pröll, Hannes Werthner, 2005-08-31 We welcome you to the 6th International Conference on E-Commerce and Web Technology (EC-Web 2005) held in Copenhagen, Denmark. It was held in conjunction with DEXA 2005. This conference was organized for the first time in Greenwich, UK, in 2000, and it has been able to attract an increasing number of participants and interest, reflecting the progress made in the field. As in the five previous years, EC-Web 2005 served as a forum that brought together researchers from academia and practitioners from industry to discuss the current state of the art in e-commerce and Web technologies. We are sure that inspirations and new ideas emerged from the intensive discussions that took place during the formal sessions and social events. Keynote addresses, research presentations and discussions during the conference helped to further develop the exchange of ideas among current researchers, developers and practitioners. The conference attracted 139 paper submissions and each paper was reviewed by three Program Committee members. The Program Committee selected 39 papers for presentation and publication (an acceptance rate of 28%). And we have to confess that this task was not that easy due to the high quality of the submitted papers.

Author and financial expert Jerome B. McKinney has expanded on the previous edition of this popular financial text, offering the latest best practices in e-government applications, cash flow analysis, revenue forecasting, and fiscal health evaluations. This fourth edition also looks at sustainability, the role of monetary policies and fiscal policy, globalization and its competitive impact, and the massive growth of outsourcing. On a final note, the work explains how recent legislation has influenced the development, use, and implementation of performance measures holding government agencies more accountable for their actions.

The Future of E-Markets Martin Bichler,2001-06-14 Dynamic pricing and on-line auctions are emerging as the preferred models for e-business. Forrester Research predicts that business-to-business Internet auctions will grow to $52.6 billion by 2002, while dynamically priced business-to-business transactions will rise to $88 billion, representing 27% of the value of all business-to-business e-commerce transactions. This multi-disciplinary book presents a framework of negotiation protocols for electronic markets. It is the first book to combine economics with computer science and the first to describe multidimensional auction mechanisms - i.e. automated negotiations on multiple attributes and/or multiple units of a product. In addition it summarises the introductory economics needed to understand electronic markets, and surveys the literature on negotiation and auction theory. Case studies include the trading of financial derivatives. For use in the design, implementation and upgrade of electronic markets, for researchers in: economics, information systems and operations management, computer science and all students of the e-commerce phenomenon.
