Time Smart Teaching Jane Bell,2019-12-30 Are you new to the secondary school teaching profession in the UK and feeling overwhelmed? If you answered 'Yes' then this book is for you. Based on my 10 years teaching and school leadership experience, I share my 8 key areas in which you reduce your workload and gain a better work-life balance whilst being a Good or Outstanding teacher. This book will get you into the mindset of becoming a time-efficient teacher using affirmations and producing systems that drastically reduce marking and feedback processes . You will learn which tasks to do, delegate and delete from your workload. This book will give you practical advice and lots of free resources to implement straight away into your classroom setting in UK high schools, regardless of the subject you teach. Along the way you will receive my frank and brutally honest appraisal of the teaching system and how it exploits teachers who are not assertive enough to leave work at the school gate. If you have ever wondered how to stop taking your marking home, or design assessments that are quick to mark, then look no further. The chapters in this book will teach you how to say 'no' to extra demands on your time, and maximise the time available during your working day so you can leave the school at 3:30 pm, right after the kids. Don't burn out trying to become the 'perfect' teacher, instead, learn to become a time-smart teacher.

Timepiece, Extending and Enhancing Learning Time National Association of Secondary School Principals (U.S.),1993 This publication offers suggestions for making more productive use of time, a scarce and valued educational resource. The chapter authors, authorities on the use of educational time, write about how to extend and enhance learning time within and outside schools. In Productive Use of Time, Herbert Walberg describes how learning time can be extended and enhanced by using psychological principles. In Cycles, Rhythms, and the Meaning of School Time, Michael Connelly and Jean Clandinin suggest that annual cycles of holidays and weekly cycles (such as review and assessment) create rhythms of experience that control the intensity of instruction. Lorin Anderson, in What Time Tells Us, differentiates among several kinds of educational time to provide insights on classroom management, instructional quality, and student learning. In Changing the Cosmology of the School Schedule, Fenwick English discusses nonlinear scheduling alternatives. Charles Ballinger argues in Year-Round Education: It's Time that it is possible to introduce flexibility into the organization of the school year. Laurence Steinberg shows, in The Use of Out-of-School Time, that extracurricular activities influence students' learning and classroom engagement. The final chapter summarizes recommendations for extending and enhancing learning time. (LMI)

Checking for Understanding Douglas Fisher,Nancy Frey,2015-12-18 A teacher presents a lesson, and at the end asks students if they understand the material. The students nod and say they get it. Later, the teacher is dismayed when many of the students fail a test on the material. Why aren't students getting it? And, just as important, why didn't the teacher recognize the problem? In Checking for Understanding, Douglas Fisher and Nancy Frey show how to increase students' understanding with the help of creative formative assessments. When used regularly, formative assessments enable every teacher to determine what students know and what they still need to learn. Fisher and Frey explore a variety of engaging activities that check for and increase understanding, including interactive writing, portfolios, multimedia presentations, audience response systems, and much more. This new 2nd edition of Checking for Understanding has been updated to reflect the latest thinking in formative assessment and to show how the concepts apply in the context of Fisher and Frey's work on gradual release of responsibility, guided instruction, formative assessment systems, data analysis, and quality instruction. Douglas Fisher and Nancy Frey are the creators of the Framework for Intentional and Targeted (FIT) Teaching™. They are also the authors of numerous ASCD books, including The Formative Assessment Action Plan: Practical Steps to More Successful Teaching and Learning and the best-selling Enhancing RTI: How to Ensure Success with Effective Classroom Instruction and Intervention.

This book gathers the newest research results of smart learning environments from the aspects of learning, pedagogies, and technologies in learning. It examines the advances in technology development and changes in the field of education that has been affecting and reshaping the learning environment. Then, it proposes that under the changed technological situations, smart learning systems, no matter what platforms (i.e., personal computers, smart phones, and tablets) they are running at, should be aware of the preferences and needs that their users (i.e., the learners and teachers) have, be capable of providing their users with the most appropriate services, helps to enhance the users' learning experiences, and to make the learning efficient.

The book also addresses the issue of evaluation and guides teachers in turning their classrooms into writing communities whose members work together to recognize and reward each writer. This book can serve as a handy reference guide to publishing opportunities for students (a comprehensive appendix lists nearly 150 publishing opportunities for young writers) and as a useful collection of writing ideas that teachers can use within their established English/language arts curriculum. Appendixes include: a comprehensive 150-item list of publishing opportunities--the Market and Control lists; electronic submissions; resources of technical advice for young writers; and sample formats for cover letters and manuscripts. The Trauma-Sensitive Classroom: Building Resilience with Compassionate Teaching Patricia A. Jennings,2018-11-13 From the author of Mindfulness for Teachers, a guide to supporting trauma-exposed students. Fully half the students in U.S. schools have experienced trauma, violence, or chronic stress. In the face of this epidemic, it falls increasingly to teachers to provide the adult support these students need to function in school. But most educators have received little training to prepare them for this role. In her new book, Tish Jennings—an internationally recognized leader in the field of social and emotional learning—shares research and experiential knowledge about the practices that support students' healing, build their resilience, and foster compassion in the classroom. In Part I, Jennings describes the effects of trauma on body and mind, and how to recognize them in students' behavior. In Part II, she introduces the trauma-sensitive practices she has implemented in her work with schools. And in Part III, she connects the dots between mindfulness, compassion, and resilience. Each chapter contains easy-to-use, practical activities to hone the skills needed to create a compassionate learning environment.
