Parents Who Think Too Much Anne Cassidy,2010-10-06 With the baby boom generation came the genre of parenting books that told parents how to teach their kids everything from toilet training to developing self-esteem. Generally the message has been: go easy on your child, but hard on yourself. It is starting to become apparent, especially in the best of families, that giving your kids lots of choices, validating their feelings at great peril to your own and providing enough individual attention for each child is creating a generation of kids over whom we have no control. Cassidy argues that this comes from over-thinking our role as parents. We've pondered every step so much that the juice, the joy, and worst of all, our confidence is gone. The reasons are clear: We have fewer children later in life so we've had more time to ponder. We've grown up just as research on infant and child development has come of age, so there's no shortage of material to think about. As a generation we've prided ourselves on self-improvement and we bring the same zeal to child improvement. We're less likely to live close to our families, and so are more likely to seek out expert solutions. To counter this thinking, Cassidy will suggest keeping the big picture in mind--what kind of people do you really want your kids to be? Honest, kind, cooperative, empathetic? It may mean losing sight of whether enough play dates are scheduled for the week and if you've positively reinforced the latest creative endeavor, but it will bring back your instincts about what is important to your family as a whole, and to your kids to become decent people.

Safety Tips for Babies Danielle Magionni,2024-02-22 Baby car seats can help your youngster avoid catastrophic injury in the event of an accident. It is the law that all children under the age of twelve sit in the rear seat. This is especially true if your vehicle is equipped with front airbags. Baby gates keep babies and toddlers safe. Remember, they will not be the only ones using the baby gate. Both older youngsters and parents in the house will eventually need to pass through these gates. That is why it is critical that you purchase a gate that is easy to open and close securely. Do your best not to step over the gate, especially if the child being safeguarded is observing. Nothing is more important in this world than your child's safety. It is natural to worry about your newborn at night when you are away, even if he or she is at home with a babysitter or another family member. But don't panic, there is a simple, economical answer to your dilemma. Use a baby monitor. This is a wonderful device that comes in a variety of settings, allowing you to keep track of all of your baby's activities. So, what precisely constitutes a baby monitor? GET A COPY TODAY!
