Tom Campbell, Wojciech Sadurski

Freedom of Communication Tom Campbell, Wojciech

Sadurski, 1994 Freedom of speech and of the press have long been central rights within democratic polities, but there is little agreement as to their content, scope or justification. These essays take up fundamental issues concerning freedom of communication in general, and some controversial areas as well.

Missiles for the Fatherland Michael B. Petersen, 2011-06-16

Missiles for the Fatherland tells the story of the scientists and engineers who built the V-2 missile in Hitler's Germany. This is the first scholarly history of the culture and society that underpinned missile development at Germany's secret missile base at Peenemünde. Using mainly primary source documents and publicly available oral history interviews, Michael Petersen examines the lives of the men and women who worked at Peenemünde and later at the underground slave labor complex called Mittelbau-Dora, where concentration camp prisoners mass-produced the V-2. His research reveals a complex interaction of professional ambition, internal cultural dynamics, military pressure, and political coercion, which coalesced in daily life at the facility. The interaction of these forces made the rapid development of the V-2 possible but also contributed to an environment in which stunning brutality could be committed against the concentration camp prisoners who manufactured the missile.

Communication and Control Geoff Mulgan, 1991 Examines how new developments in information and communication technologies are rapidly transforming the social, political, and economic life in modern societies, and providing the potential for much more rigid and centralized control over people in their homes, at work, and in public.
