Vestlandets historie: Natur og næring Knut Helle, 2006 Vestlandets historie i tre bind beskriver samhandling og samanbindande forhold i landsdelen gjennom tidene, men òg skilnader og spenningar. Vestlandet blir sett i forhold til resten av landet og ei større omverd. Dette er den første verkelege landsdelshistoria som er gitt ut i Noreg. Natur og næring er det første bindet i Vestlandets historie. Boka omhandlar samspelet mellom naturvilkår og næringsdrift i landsdelen opp gjennom tidene. Sjøvendinga har heile tida stått sentralt i så måte: frå første stund med fiske og fangst, etter kvart med sjøfart og i nyare tid med havbruk, olje- og gassutvinning. Like fullt var landbruket hovudnæringa heilt fram til midten av 1800-talet, då industrien slo rot. Vestlandet er i dag industrilandsdelen i Noreg.

External Adjustment Maurice Obstfeld, 2004 Gross stocks of foreign assets have increased rapidly relative to national outputs since 1990, and the short-run capital gains and losses on those assets can amount to significant fractions of GDP. These fluctuations in asset values render the national income and product account measure of the current account balance increasingly inadequate as a summary of the change in a country's net foreign assets. Nonetheless, unusually large current account imbalances, especially deficits, should remain high on policymakers' list of concerns, even for the richer and less credit-constrained countries. Extreme imbalances signal the need for large and perhaps abrupt real exchange rate changes in the future, changes that might have undesired political and financial consequences given the incompleteness of domestic and international asset markets. Furthermore, of the two sources of the change in net foreign assets -- the current account and the capital gain on the net foreign asset position -- the former is better understood and more amenable to policy influence. Systematic government attempts to manipulate international asset values in order to change the net foreign asset position could have a destabilizing effect on market expectations--NBER website
