Temporary Flight Restrictions (TFRs/TFR). United States. Federal Aviation Administration,2004

Notices to Airmen ,1986

Potential Interventions by Government and Industry to Minimize Violations of Temporary Flight Restrictions National Aeronautics and Space Administration,2014-04-28 In effort to oppose the use of aircraft by terrorists, the FAA has been establishing temporary flight restrictions (TFRs), air defense identification zones (ADIZs), and other restrictive airspace in effort to increase security around potential ground targets. Since this widespread application of these airspaces, which may be collectively called security-supporting airspaces (SSAs), the annual rate of violations of such airspace is over 30 times greater than in previous years (Government Accountability Office, 2004). This frequency of violations entails an economic cost, and potentially compromises safety and even security, the latter by inducing complacency and misallocation of resources. This paper enumerates interventions to reduce the frequency of violations by more effectively providing pilots with the information necessary to avoid such violations (Zuschlag, 2005). Short term interventions, some variants of which are already in progress, focus on improving the form and content of the Notices to Airmen (NOTAMs) currently used to inform pilots of SSAs.

Potential Interventions by Government and Industry to Minimize Violations of Temporary Flight Restrictions National Aeronautics and Space Adm Nasa,2018-09-24 This document enumerates interventions to reduce the frequency of restricted airspace violations, particularly those associated with temporary flight restrictions (TFRs) and air defense identification zones (ADIZs), by more effectively providing pilots with the information necessary to avoid such violations. Interventions are divided into both near term and far term groupings. Short term interventions, some variants of which are already in progress focus on improving the form and content of the textual Notices to Airmen (NOTAMs) as well as the graphical depiction of TFRs. A long-term technical intervention is proposed which would provide pilots the following functionality: ground and airborne presentation of information on any restricted airspace, including display on an electronic moving map, fully mechanized execution from the cockpit of the procedures required for entry into restricted airspaces that allow for entry, and alerting of the potential for TFR violations both during flight planning and while the aircraft is moving.Zuschlag, MichaelLangley Research CenterAIRSPACE; AIRCRAFT SAFETY; AIR DEFENSE; GOVERNMENTS; INDUSTRIES; COCKPITS; FLIGHT PLANS; AIR TRAFFIC CONTROL; AIRPORT SECURITY; VISUAL FLIGHT RULES
