Client Value and Law Firm Profitability Jim Hassett Ph. D., 2014-09-01 The primary goal of this book is to help law firms adapt to a rapidly changing marketplace by providing insights into what has worked at other firms and what hasn't. Many articles and books have been written by law school and business school professors and by countless consultants analyzing how the legal profession is changing. The only thing that's been missing from the conversation is public statements by the people who actually run large law firms. These senior decision makers rarely publish anything on their tactics and strategies. They are the ones who deal with these issues every day and whose very livelihood depends on coming up with the right answers. What do they think? To answer this question, LegalBizDev founder Jim Hassett interviewed leaders from 50 AmLaw 200 firms in 2013 and 2014. This is the only research on the topic which is based on confidential in-depth interviews with chairs, managing partners, senior partners, and firm executives such as CEOs, COOs, and CFOs. The name of every individual who participated in the research is confidential and all quotes are anonymous. This approach has enabled senior decision makers to speak frankly and openly about what they really think. Since the participants in the study were promised that they would not be quoted by name, they were unusually frank in their responses, including the law firm chairman who said that lawyers are about as dumb as you could possibly be about understanding how our product is made. The lawyers who understand how to make it and who can manage that process efficiently are going to be the winners. The law firm leaders also felt free to speak about both the business problems they face and possible solutions, like the managing partner who noted that I have a $10 million practice. But that could be a disaster for a firm, because it could cost them $11 million to get $10 million. But nobody ever talks about it that way. According to Altman Weil Principal Tom Clay, Although Jim's interviews were with 50 large law firm leaders, his commentary and takeaways should be taken to heart by every law firm, whatever its size.

The of Counsel Agreement Harold G. Wren, Beverly J. Glascock, 1991

The Law Firm Revolution Clelia Pergola, Barbara Mannino, 2017-11-16 Lawyers, particularly those in small or solo firms, often get used to spending too much time taking on commoditized, administrative tasks beyond the high-level legal work that they were educated to do. While this work is important, it interferes with the time and focus attorneys require to resolve a case. In short, lawyers who perform like this are not working smart. Inefficiencies lead to backlogs, missed deadlines, and gaps in the work; clients are unhappy, employees disgruntled, and lawyers overwhelmed. Clelia Pergola and Barbara Mannino understand the undue stress this creates in the workplace and how this stress spills over into the home. Through their research and experience they have identified the many ways that technology and innovative ideas are providing phenomenal aids to help attorneys improve practice management and make workdays more productive. They have covered everything from the soft skills that develop the vision, mission and values that become the cornerstones of a firm's everyday operations to team-building, delegation, communication, process development technological competence and the ability to manage mistakes and course correct. In The Law Firm Revolution, they have told a comprehensive story to help lawyers, individuals managing a firm or staff members who want to make a difference how to enrich a firm's culture, enhance its practice management, facilitate its growth and further the professional development and reputations of a firm's lawyers and the indispensable people who work with them.

41 Greg R Cohen Esq,2019-02-04 Congratulations- you just graduated from law school and have a pretty diploma to hang on your wall. Guess what- you do not know that much. You may know how to analyze an issue, but that is not the practice of law. The practice of law includes the analysis of the players, finances, risks, rewards, billing and most importantly, understanding clients. This book will teach you how to really be a lawyer, not just one on paper. Nobody ever took the time to teach the prior generations of lawyers how to practice so our first few years are wasted learning the ropes along the way. You now have the opportunity to avoid this problem. I have been practicing for 20 plus years and know how to practice, and I do it well. Many others are smarter, and probably most others, but being the smartest does not equate to being the best practitioner for your clients. The best practitioners are the ones who understand the issues above and most importantly the goals and thought processes of your clients. Read this book and fast track your practice from information and experiences from an aggressive practicing attorney with thousands of clients, each creating a personal experience of which you can now benefit. After you learn how to practice, I will also teach you how to generate business, so you are not working for someone else for the rest of your life. Understand, anyone can practice law. Few can practice law very well. A limited few can practice law very well and create a book of business so they are an asset for themselves and their firms. I have compiled every tip imaginable based on my prior experiences on how I have built my book of business. It all starts with a better understanding of the client accompanied with a consistent approach to be a good person, and the results, positive outcome and a healthier more enjoyable life and practice will follow.
