Time Travel Diaries: Adventure in Athens Caroline Lawrence,2020-05 From the million-copy-selling author of The Roman Mysteries comes a nail-biting time-travel adventure series - where past meets present.

The Arabian Desert in English Travel Writing Since 1950 Jenny Walker,2022-12-30 Broadly this book is about the Arabian desert as the locus of exploration by a long tradition of British travellers that includes T. E. Lawrence and Wilfred Thesiger; more specifically, it is about those who, since 1950, have followed in their literary footsteps. In analysing modern works covering a land greater than the sum of its geographical parts, the discussion identifies outmoded tropes that continue to impinge upon the perception of the Middle East today while recognising that the laboured binaries of “East and West”, “desert and sown”, “noble and savage” have outrun their course. Where, however, only a barren legacy of latent Orientalism may have been expected, the author finds instead a rich seam of writing that exhibits diversity of purpose and insight contributing to contemporary discussions on travel and tourism, intercultural representation, and environmental awareness. By addressing a lack of scholarly attention towards recent additions to the genre, this study illustrates for the benefit of students of travel literature, or indeed anyone interested in “Arabia”, how desert writing, under the emerging configurations of globalisation, postcolonialism, and ecocriticism, acts as a microcosm of the kinds of ethical and emotional dilemmas confronting today’s travel writers in the world’s most extreme regions.

Time Travel in World Literature and Cinema Bernard Montoneri,

Crossing Borders in Victorian Travel Barbara Franchi,Elvan Mutlu,2018-04-18 How did

Victorian travellers define and challenge the notion of Empire? How did the multiple forms of Victorian travel literature, such as fiction, travel accounts, newspapers, and poetry, shape perceptions of imperial and national spaces, in the British context and beyond? This collection examines how, in the Victorian era, space and empire were shaped around the notion of boundaries, by travel narratives and practices, and from a variety of methodological and critical perspectives. From the travel writings of artists and polymaths such as Carmen Sylva and Richard Burton, to a reassessment of Rudyard Kipling's, H. G. Wells's and Julia Pardoe's cross-cultural and cross-gender travels, this collection assesses a broad range of canonical and lesser-studied Victorian travel texts and genres, and evaluates the representation of empires, nations, and individual identity in travel accounts covering Europe, Asia, Africa and Britain.

Destination London Andrew Smith, Anne Graham, 2019-05-21 London is one of the world's most popular destinations and visitors contribute approximately £14.9 billion of expenditure to the city every year. Its tourism and events sectors are growing and over the last few years London has received more visitors than ever before. However, detailed accounts of the city's visitor economy are conspicuously absent. This book analyses how the capital is developing as a destination through the expansion of tourism and events into new urban spaces. The book outlines how parts of London not previously regarded as tourist territory are now subject to the visitor gaze with tourism spreading beyond established central zones into peripheral, suburban and residential areas – in part propelled by a big rise in peer to peer accommodation use. Simultaneously, London's airports and sports stadiums and their surrounds are becoming destinations in their own right. New vantage points have been created, allowing tourists to explore the city: from above, at night-time or through tours given by the homeless; via the opening up of the River Thames; or through the transformation of local parks into eventscares. The book explores these trends and shows how urban destinations expand. In doing so, it enhances our understanding of London and highlights the growing significance of tourism and events in global cities.

The Yestertime Shift Andrew Cunningham, 2023-12-05 BOOK FOUR IN THE YESTERTIME TIME TRAVEL SERIES! Keith Miller, an urban explorer, leads small groups of thrill-seekers through abandoned buildings. The exploration of an old mountain inn goes horribly wrong when the group accidentally accesses a time portal that takes them to 1917, a distant and dangerous time. Former time traveler Ray Burton learns of their disaster and tries to help from afar. However, something alarming has happened to the portals. Has Ray unknowingly put the travelers' lives in jeopardy? As desperation sets in for the travelers, they begin to realize that they are facing an even greater peril than they thought...
