Vampires' Most Wanted Laura Enright,2011-06-30 Although the word vampire was not introduced until the eighteenth century, variations of this hemo-craving creature have existed since long before the Christian era. Almost every civilization had a demon or spirit—often a god or goddess—whose bloodlust complicated things for the general populace. But sometimes it's not all about the blood. Modern vampire tales have stronger-willed and less traditional beings at their core: beings who strive to coexist with mortals by drinking synthetic blood, like True Blood's Bill Compton, or who sparkle in the daylight instead of disintegrating, like Twilight's Edward Cullen. Plus, these guys are way easier on the eyes than the more old-school vampires out there, especially filmmaker F. W. Murnau's infamous Nosferatu, a terrifying vampire in dire need of a manicure. Regardless of time, place, and blood type, Laura Enright cordially invites you into the dark underworld of the vampire. She sheds light (but not too much) on this captivating, age-defying creature by exploring topics ranging from the powers it can possess to what will kill it—for good. With close to thirty top-ten lists brimming with gore and fang-tastic facts, Vampires' Most Wanted™ is sure to provide the reader with a biting good time.

Rise of the Undead Richard A. Valicek,2021-08-02 Night had fallen, and Fetrone lay sleeping in her bed within her new room. Behind the headboard was a large mirror covered by a silver satin sheet as a curtain. Confidus Seaton, who was concerned for her, came into the room holding a basin filled with water so Fetrone could freshen up. He set the basin down upon an elegant dresser. To the side of the basin was a two-foot-high golden cross. Watched over by the spirit of God, Fetrone seemed to be in a trance. She was in deep sorrow over her life with Andromin. And now he was gone. Confidus closed the door and left the room. Moments later, a screw upon the window that fastened a knob on the large French window across from the bed began to slowly unscrew itself. It turned ever so slowly. When the screw unfastened from the knob, it fell to the floor. From within the screw pinhole, blood began to spray into the room, drenching the bed cover. Soon it was filled with blood, from which arose the crimson-coated figure of Cryptus. He sat on the bed looming over Fetrone. His face was dry and coated with a cracked red color. He edged closer to Fetrone's face. You will pledge your soul to me. Give me the lust I desire. We shall walk the earth, and in the living night, seek solace of the darkness and never see the sun rise and set through countless centuries, said Cryptus. He touched her lips with his bloody fingertips. As he peered down at her watching her sleep, he spoke: I will take you from this tormented world. You will join my wives. I baptize you with my blood. Then he kissed her lips with his bloody mouth, and, with no concern for the living, sprouted fangs and bit into her neck. Cryptus's wide-open eyes gleamed bright red. You are now part of me. The kiss of death spread throughout her entire head and body. Soon she was covered in cracked, dried blood. In the meantime, Confidus Seaton had entered the room bringing tea for Fetrone. When he saw the gruesome sight, he dropped the tray and tea set, which shattered on the floor. Running to the dresser, Confidus picked up the basin of water and dashed it against the golden cross. Immediately, it transformed into holy water against the cross. The power of God penetrated the vampire; the creature sat, frozen in a trance. Confidus ran to the headboard of the bed and drew the satin drapes. With the mirror now reflecting the golden cross from the other side, Cryptus began to smoke and burn, emitting black smoke. Howling in pain, the creature opened his eyes and mouth wide and his fangs began to crack and crumble into dust. With every ounce of strength and power Cryptus had left, he transformed himself into black, misty fog, which drifted against the window and seeped out through the screw hole of the knob. The fog drifted out of the castle and flew into the sky. The black, misty fog landed upon ground and transformed into the wolf, which then scurried away. Within Fetrone's room, Confidus looked down at the corpse of Fetrone. He knew that the devil Cryptus had baptized her with his blood. Recognizing she was now undead, he asked two men to wrap Fetrone's bloodied body in cloth, take her to the courtyard, and burn her body. The two men did as Confidus asked. Fetrone's undead body was cremated. As the body burned, Cryptus lay far away on dirt, his face convulsing violently. His eyes burned a fiery red and his entire body writhed with pain. He knew Fetrone was dead. The next morning, Confidus learned from a man from the brothel that a man who resembled Andromin Seaton, calling himself Cryptus, had spoken to four women, and they had become his followers. He said with the forecast of clear day and sunlight about, the four woman were to transport Cryptus to the mountains of Drone within a wooden casket. Confidus had arranged six of his men to search for Cryptus and destroy him before he could leave for the Drone mountains. The man had overheard that Cryptus was living in an abandoned castle on Ridge Mountain.

Dead: Reclamation: Book 10 of the Dead Series Tw Brown,2014-10-31 Years have passed since the dead rose and wiped out most of the living. Many survivors have gathered in pockets around the world. Some are bent on trying to restore what once was, others with a mind to create something new and better from the ashes of civilization, and then there are those who now thrive in the hellish chaos of lawlessness. While the undead currently roam the world in herds that can often stretch for miles and number in the millions, the zombies are no longer the biggest threat to humanity's continued existence. That distinction has returned to mankind. Those who are immune to the zombie infection are now either reviled or revered. Some have become human biological weapons, while others are seen as the last hope for the continued existence of the human race. They are a symbol of hope for some...fear to others. DEAD: Reclamation

Cyborgs, Santa Claus and Satan Fraser A. Sherman,2015-09-03 In the three decades since the first SF film produced for television—1968's Shadow on the Land—nearly 600 films initially released to television have had science fiction, fantasy, or horror themes. Featuring superheroes, monsters, time travel, and magic, these films range from the phenomenal to the forgettable, from low-budget to blockbuster. Information on all such American releases from 1968 through 1998 is collected here. Each entry includes cast and credits, a plot synopsis, qualitative commentary, and notes of interest on aspects of the film. Appendices provide a list of other films that include some science fiction, horror, or fantasy elements; a film chronology; and a guide to alternate titles.
