Rural Energy Management* M.A.Masillamani & S. Ramaswamy,2005 The book is the first attempt in studying the energy consumption patterns of different economic sectors that present in the rural areas. Infact, data relating to the production and consumption of both commercial and non-commercial sources of energy in rural areas are quite scanty. This book aims to generate database, based on micro level study, carried out by the authors in six villages of Dindigul District, Tamil Nadu. A total of 534 samples from the entire sectors (200 from household, 22 from industry, 161 from transport, 86 from commerce and 65 from social and service) have been interviewed for gathering information on energy use in the economic sectors of the rural economy. This book is arranged into seven chapters. The first chapter provides a brief introduction, stating the objectives, the methodology, and the scope and limitations of the study. The second chapter examines the profile of rural energy and its development programmes in India. The third chapter describes the review and appraisal of literature. A background of the study area profile and its socioeconomic milieu is given in the fourth chapter. The fifth chapter brings out a detailed analysis on energy consumption in the selected six sectors of the rural economy. Major findings and integrated energy system (appropriate, viable and feasible) are presented in the sixth chapter.

Negotiating Climate Change Adaptation María del Pilar Bueno Rubial,Linda Siegele,2021-04-25 This book discusses the history of the Group of 77 and China's negotiating position on adaptation to climate change in the context of the United Nations Framework Convention on Climate Change (UNFCCC). It also addresses a number of questions that have arisen, such as: What was the process for constructing a collective position of the G77 and China on adaptation? Why is it worthwhile to negotiate in a group of such dimensions? What are the incentives for reaching the broadest common position on adaptation? What is the role of the leading coordinators, and how is this linked to the rotating annual Presidency of the G77 and China? And, how do the subgroups of the G77 participate in reaching this general position? Written by former and current adaptation negotiators from developing countries, the book offers various perspectives from the subgroups and leading coordinators of the G77 and China as well as other organizations. Furthermore, in contrast to previous analyses on climate change negotiations, which focus mainly on the behaviour or position of one group, it presents a unique approach based on the strength of collectivism in the G77 and China. The book appeals to practitioners and professionals as well as scientists in climate change management and policy, impacts and adaptation, international relations, as well as diplomacy and development.

Speak it Louder Deborah Wong,2004-07-19 Speak It Louder: Asian Americans Making Music documents the variety of musics-from traditional Asian through jazz, classical, and pop-that have been created by Asian Americans. This book is not about Asian American music but rather about Asian Americans making music. This key distinction allows the author to track a wide range of musical genres. Wong covers an astonishing variety of music, ethnically as well as stylistically: Laotian song, Cambodian music drama, karaoke, Vietnamese pop, Japanese American taiko, Asian American hip hop, and panethnic Asian American improvisational music (encompassing jazz and avant-garde classical styles). In Wong's hands these diverse styles coalesce brilliantly around a coherent and consistent set of questions about what it means for Asian Americans to make music in environments of inter-ethnic contact, about the role of performativity in shaping social identities, and about the ways in which commercially and technologically mediated cultural production and reception transform individual perceptions of time, space, and society. Speak It Louder: Asian Americans Making Music encompasses ethnomusicology, oral history, Asian American studies, and cultural performance studies. It promises to set a new standard for writing in these fields, and will raise new questions for scholars to tackle for many years to come.

In Her Skin Trina Sotira,2016-03-03 Tirzah is sick of living as a girl. Fighting to hide her feelings for her best friend, Heidi, and struggling to cover up female body parts, Tirzah learns the only path to true happiness is by transitioning into Troy. The change could mean losing Heidi, a soccer scholarship, and his parents' acceptance.

A Guide to the Ghosts of Lincoln Alan Boye,2013-10-01 A collection of ghost stories from Lincoln, Nebraska--

Vietnam Bill Hayton,2020-11-24 A much-needed behind-the-scenes survey of an emerging Asian power The eyes of the West have recently been trained on China and India, but Vietnam is rising fast among its Asian peers. A breathtaking period of social change has seen foreign investment bringing capitalism flooding into its nominally communist society, booming cities swallowing up smaller villages, and the lure of modern living tugging at the traditional networks of family and community. Yet beneath these sweeping developments lurks an authoritarian political system that complicates the nation's apparent renaissance. In this engaging work, experienced journalist Bill Hayton looks at the costs of change in Vietnam and questions whether this rising Asian power is really heading toward capitalism and democracy. Based on vivid eyewitness accounts and pertinent case studies, Hayton's book addresses a broad variety of issues in today's Vietnam, including important shifts in international relations, the growth of civil society, economic developments and challenges, and the nation's nascent democracy movement as well as its notorious internal security. His analysis of Vietnam's "police state," and its systematic mechanisms of social control, coercion, and surveillance, is fresh and particularly imperative when viewed alongside his portraits of urban and street life, cultural legacies, religion, the media, and the arts. With a firm sense of historical and cultural context, Hayton examines how these issues have emerged and where they will lead Vietnam in the next stage of its development.

My Grandmother Is Always with Me Lorraine Hedtke,Addison Davidone,2013-06-01 Children look to us as adults to guide and assist them through the confusing time both before and after the death of a loved one. This brief explanation is intended as a resource for adults to help you answer children's questions and reassure their uncertainties. These suggestions are intended to help you guide your children during times of change and to help children to actively remember their deceased loved ones, rather than dwell only on the pain of loss. Through remembering, children can honor the relationship they have with their dead loved ones in ways that enrich their own and their family's lives. We hope that this guide will spark ideas and practices that invite the joyful moments of remembering with your children.

Comparative and International Education Karen Elizabeth Mundy,2008 This comprehensive new text explores major issues in education today through international and intercultural research. The contributors draw on comparative research from North America, Africa, Asia, Latin America, Europe, and the Middle East, and touch on themes including history and philosophy of comparative education, the right to education, teacher formation, alternative pedagogies, testing, multiculturalism, gender, conflict resolution, and global citizenship. Offering a vivid portrayal of global educational practices, contributions from preeminent scholars, and invaluable teaching resources, this text is vital reading for teachers, teachers-in-training, and comparative education scholars.
