Hyder,Mohan D.,Hyder A. A.,Jarawan E.,2004-03-23 Every day, thousands of people are killed and injured on roads around the world, with the costs of this growing, but largely preventable, public health concern disproportionately affecting vulnerable social groups and developing countries. In order to address these issues, the World Health Organization and the World Bank have produced this joint report on road traffic injury prevention, based on the collaborative contributions of experts and institutions, from all continents and different sectors, including transport, engineering, health, police, education and civil society. It presents a comprehensive overview of the magnitude, risk factors and impact of road traffic injuries, and about ways to prevent and lessen the impact of road crashes.

Highway Traffic Monitoring and Data Quality Michael Dalgleish,2008 This unique resource gives you a hands-on understanding of the latest sensors, processors, and communication links for everything from vehicle counts to urban congestion measurement. Moreover, you learn statistical techniques for quantifying data accuracy and reducing uncertainty in both current system state assessments and future system state forecasts.

Road Traffic Speed Great Britain. Parliament. House of Commons. Transport, Local Government and the Regions Committee,Local Government Transport Staff,2002 3,409 people died in road accidents in the UK during the year 2000, including 857 pedestrians; and the UK has one of the worst child pedestrian safety records in Europe. Excessive and inappropriate speed is the single largest contributor to deaths and serious injuries on roads, and significantly reduces the quality of life in many urban and rural areas. The Committee's report finds that the level of road casualties receives far too little national attention from the media and that there has been slow progress on the implementation of the Government's road safety strategy launched in March 2000. Recommendations include: improving the siting of speed cameras; reductions in speed limits; and providing specific funds for a national programme for road design and make road safety a priority for the Ten Year Plan for Transport.

Traffic Safety George Yannis, Simon Cohen, 2016-06-15 Transport systems are facing an impossible dilemma: satisfy an increasing demand for mobility of people and goods, while decreasing their fossil-energy requirements and preserving the environment. Additionally, transport has an opportunity to evolve in a changing world, with new services, technologies but also new requirements (fast delivery, reliability, improved accessibility). The subject of traffic is organized into two separate but complementary volumes: Volume 3 on Traffic Management and Volume 4 on Traffic Safety. Traffic Safety, Volume 4 of the Research for Innovative Transports Set, presents a collection of updated papers from the TRA 2014 Conference, highlighting the diversity of research in this field. Theoretical chapters and practical case studies address topics such as road safety management and policies, accident analysis and modeling, vulnerable road users' safety, road infrastructure safety, ITS and railway safety.

Achieving Traffic Safety Goals in the United States National Academies (U.S.). Committee for the Study of Traffic Safety Lessons from Benchmark Nations, 2011 The tool kit will vary among jurisdictions depending on basic legal constraints, community attitudes, road system and traffic characteristics, and resources. The Transportation Research Board (TRB) undertook a study to identify the sources of safety improvements in other countries. Researchers do not have a complete understanding of the underlying causes of long-term trends in crashes and fatalities. Differences among countries are in part attributable to factors other than government safety policies. To identify keys to success, the TRB study committee examined specific safety programs for which quantitative evaluations are available and relied on the observations of safety professionals with international experience. The committee's conclusions identify differences between U.S. and international practices that can account for some differences in outcomes. The committee recommendations, which are addressed to elected officials and to government safety administrators, identify actions needed in the United States to emulate the successes that other countries have achieved. The recommendations do not comprehensively address all aspects of traffic safety programs but rather address areas of practice that are highlighted by the international comparisons and for which credible evidence of effectiveness is available.--Pub. desc.
