Hollywood Studio Musicians Robert R. Faulkner, 2017-07-05 When originally published in 1971,

Hollywood Studio Musicians was the first detailed analysis of the work and careers of production personnel in an industry devoted to mass culture. Previously, most researchers overlooked mass-culture industries as work settings, preferring to focus on content rather than the artists who created it. This lucid and insightful book looks under the hood of the Hollywood film scoring and recording industry, focusing upon the careers and work of top-flight musicians. A new preface by Howard S. Becker highlights the study's historical context and importance. Based upon in-depth interviews with freelance musicians, Faulkner provides original insights into how we conceptualize occupations as well as the highly stratified system of professional prestige that results in what we now call the A-List. Faulkner develops a framework for discovering and exploring how rapidly changing and demanding freelance work induces status hierarchies, sustains and updates collegial reputations, tightens social networks between contractors, and musicians, and restricts access to upward career paths. This volume is a gem, a masterpiece of field research combined with probing, theoretically informed analysis. Aside from the value of its own findings, the volume offers students of sociology, film, and other creative industries a prime example of how to do good social science research. In short, it is a model for investigators to turn to when their own research needs help, an exemplar of how research is done when it is done well.

Faulks on Fiction (Includes 4 FREE Vintage Classics): Great British Characters and the Secret Life of the Novel Sebastian Faulks, 2011-01-27 The publication of Robinson Crusoe in London in 1719 marked the arrival of a revolutionary art form: the novel. British writers were prominent in shaping the new type of storytelling - one which reflected the experiences of ordinary people, with characters in whom readers could find not only an escape, but a deeper understanding of their own lives. But the novel was more than just a reflection of British life. As Sebastian Faulks explains in this engaging literary and social history, it also helped invent the British. By focusing not on writers but on the people they gave us, Faulks not only celebrates the recently neglected act of novelistic creation but shows how the most enduring fictional characters over the centuries have helped map the British psyche - through heroes from Tom Jones to Sherlock Holmes, lovers from Mr Darcy to Lady Chatterley, villains from Fagin to Barbara Covett and snobs from Emma Woodhouse to James Bond. Also included in this fantastic ebook package are four free classic novels: Robinson Crusoe by Daniel Defoe: The legendary story of a marine adventurer shipwrecked on a desert island. Pride and Prejudice by Jane Austen: Accomplished Elizabeth Bennett must navigate a web of familial obligations and social expectations in this witty drama of friendship, rivalry, enmity and love. Great Expectations by Charles Dickens: Pip's life as an ordinary country boy is destined to be unexceptional until a chain of mysterious events lead him away from his humble origins and up the social ladder. The Woman in White by Wilkie Collins: Marian and her sister Laura live a quiet life under their uncle's guardianship until Laura marries Sir Percival Glyde, a man of many secrets. Can she be protected from a mysterious and potentially fatal plot?

University of Cincinnati School of Architecture and Interior Design while showcasing student work, faculty research, co-op stories, study abroad programs, and snapshots from the many events happening at our school. ECHOS is a platform for simultaneous conversations with shared ethos at UC SAID. Various constellations begin to surface and map our diverse milieu of academic and social interactions that revolve around the following five main themes: anxiety, praxis, trope, chreod, and utopia. Introduced by a series of analytical diagrams which are paired up with essays by lead figures in the discipline, the themes expand on the issues of theoretical anxiety, architectural discourse, practice, typology, self-made analogies, ad hoc morphologies inherent to research, flux and reflux - that return each disruption to a steady trajectory - similar to the natural cycle of compression and release generated by our co-op program, and the fictitious, the ideal. Anxiety collects and synthesizes among multiple contradicting theories entertaining with equanimity various solutions to design problems. Praxis looks at outcomes - may those be physical, prototypical, digital or analog, multi-dimensional and multi-media, spoken, written or unwritten - as well as working methodologies that shape design thinking.

Trope begins to map out trends, emergent ideologies, and previously non-denominational design expressions. Chreod documents and interprets field conditions, rule based processes, issues of transgressions, non-smooth and nomadic entities which cut across arbolic like divisions. Utopia, while suspending various otherwise necessary constraints, allows for a euphoric and optimistic view of the world, with the goal of envisioning daring possibilities otherwise unimaginable. Utopia, therefore, foreshadows all other themes.

Art Studio Model Merry Blacksmith Studio, 2015-07-24 The Art Studio Model series is aimed at artists of all levels—from beginner to advanced—and is meant to serve as both a reference and a source of inspiration. To us, the human figure is one of the most fascinating and, dare we say, enjoyable subjects to draw, paint, and sculpt. This series will feature a variety of types of models as it progresses. This particular volume features model Lilah Raizel. She is a fun model to work with and there will be more volumes featuring her in the future. We feature models in classic modeling poses from various different angles, set from the angle of an artist standing at their easel. We use a consistent light source so you can use more than one image as your reference for shading and texture. And as a special treat, however, we added a few outdoor shots of this model to the end of this volume.

Studio Stories Lauren Rader, 2016-10-10 When artist Lauren Rader begins inviting women into her studio for classes in creativity, she has no idea what she is about to unleash. Drawn by a common yearning to express themselves through art, the women soon find that the path to creativity leads deep within--to hidden thoughts, buried memories, and dramatic life changes. Here, Rader relates their intensely personal journeys, along with insights from a lifetime of teaching and artistry, and from her daily walks along the river with her sweet dog Wiley-back cover.

Creative Spaces Richard W. Christian,2017-11-09 Creative Spaces: The Western New York Artist Studio Project, documents the studios of 15 Western New York artists. The Brightest Corner Living Arts Studio,2016-06-01 The Brightest Corner is a powerful collection of work that speaks volumes. Over the course of the past year each one of the artists in this project has worked, re-worked, invented and re-invented their medium, their practice and their message. We have heard many things over the years about the power of one's disability. For example: Limitations are the linchpins of form. - Jessica Baran. This is more than evident on a daily basis in the Living Arts Studio. We see that what could be perceived, as a limitation is actually an asset, a mark, and a concept. The artists in The Brightest Corner have harnessed this tool, this mechanic, in a way that has produced artwork that is deeply personal, deeply motivated and fundamentally honest. Matthew Freeman states that our strength comes from our honesty and the fellowship that making art provides. There is no stronger sense of community as there is in a working, buzzing and humming studio. The power of collective creation is palpable at Living Arts and it resonates without a doubt in The Brightest Corner.
