Electricity Generation and the NSW Water Reforms Atech Group Pty Ltd Staff,2000-09-01

A National Approach to Waste Tyres Atech Group Pty Ltd Staff,2001 This study was commissioned by Environment Australia to document what is happening at the moment in terms of waste tyres, what is the potential for improvement, and how we might move to take advantage of the possibilities through action by government and industry at a national level. The structure of the study follows these objectives. A preliminary report was prepared (now Part I of this report) as the basis for discussion at a national workshop held on 14 December 2000. The aim of the workshop was to provide guidance for developing and evaluating possible policy options and responses (written up in Part II of the report).

Sustainable Water Management Daniel H. Chen,2016-10-14 While the world's population continues to grow, the availability of water remains constant. Facing the looming water crisis, society needs to tackle strategic management issues as an integrated part of the solution toward water sustainability. The first volume in the two-volume set Sustainable Water Management and Technologies offers readers a practical and comprehensive look at such key water management topics as water resource planning and governance, water infrastructure planning and adaption, proper regulations, and water scarcity and inequality. It discusses best management practices for water resource allocation, ground water protection, and water quality assurance, especially for rural, arid, and underdeveloped regions of the world. Timely topics such as drought, ecosystem sustainability, climate change, and water management for shale oil and gas development are presented. Discusses best practices for water resource allocation, ground water protection, and water quality assurance. Offers chapters on urban, rural, arid, and underdeveloped regions of the world. Describes timely topics such as drought, ecosystem sustainability, climate change, and water management for shale oil and gas development. Covers water resource planning and governance, water infrastructure planning and adaptation, proper regulations, and water scarcity and inequality Discusses water resource monitoring, efficiency, and quality management.

Water Quality Policy and Management in Asia Cecilia Tortajada,2014-10-14 Asia's 48 countries have an estimated 1.757 billion urban population and 2.4 billion people in rural areas (or approximately 60 per cent of the global population). Divided into central, eastern, southern, south-eastern and western regions, the continent is also extremely heterogeneous in terms of water quality conditions. The policies and management practices vary significantly from one country to another, and even within one country, depending on specific economic, political, social, environmental, legal and institutional factors. In order to appreciate the complexities associated with water quality policy and management, it is important to acknowledge the multiplicity of interrelated and often conflicting events, issues, actors and interests, both within and outside the water sector that impact them. This complexity, alongside institutional inability for systematic and coordinated collaboration, are potent reasons as to why, in the second decade of the 21st century, formulation and implementation of efficient water quality management policies benefitting humankind and the environment have still not been achieved. The book was originally published as a special issue of the International Journal of Water Resources Development.

Renewable Resources and Renewable Energy Paolo Fornasiero,Mauro Graziani,2011-12-05 As energy demands continue to surge worldwide, the need for more efficient and environmentally neutral energy production also becomes increasingly apparent. Renewable Resources and Renewable Energy: A Global Challenge presents a well-rounded perspective on the development of bio-based feedstocks, biodegradable plastics, hydrogen energy, fuel

Social Movements and Their Technologies Stefania Milan,2013-11-06 Now in paperback for the first time, Social Movements and their Technologies explores the interplay between social movements and their 'liberated technologies'. It analyzes the rise of low-power radio stations and radical internet projects ('emancipatory communication practices') as a political subject, focusing on the sociological and cultural processes at play. It provides an overview of the relationship between social movements and technology, and investigates what is behind the communication infrastructure that made possible the main protest events of the past fifteen years. In doing so, Stefania Milan illustrates how contemporary social movements organize in order to create autonomous alternatives to communication systems and networks, and how they contribute to change the way people communicate in daily life, as well as try to change communication policy from the grassroots. She situates these efforts in a historical context in order to show the origins of contemporary communication activism, and its linkages to media reform campaigns and policy advocacy.

Angle Crossing Option Atech Group,2007 The Angle Crossing option was one of the primary recommendations of the Future Water Options report by ACTEW. The scheme involves pumping water from the Murrumbidgee River near Angle Crossing at the southern border of the ACT, to Burra Creek or Googong Reservoir. The option could provide up to 20 GL/year, which is a third of Canberra's average annual use.

Cyanobacterial Toxins of Drinking Water Supplies Ian Robert Falconer,2004-12-20 The contamination of both drinking and recreational water supplies by cyanobacteria is increasingly a cause for concern worldwide. While contamination causes livestock deaths with relative frequency, acute poisoning is rare in humans. However, there is growing apprehension over the possible role of cylindrospermopsins and microcystins in gastrointe
