Talking with Your Child about Cancer,1986

Children With Cancer Christine Eiser,2004-04-12 Cancer is a very rare disease in children. There have been impressive gains in survival in recent years, and these have been achieved through the use of chemotherapy and national and international clinical trials. The diagnosis of cancer in a child imposes considerable stress on the whole family. In the immediate time after diagnosis, parents must learn about the disease and its treatment, explain what is happening to the child, and make arrangements for the care of other children in the family. For the child, treatment is associated with many side effects depending on the specific drugs used. In addition, the child is prone to infection and therefore is likely to miss a lot of school and other activities. For all these reasons, physicians and families have become aware that cancer has huge implications for the quality of the child's life. This book is an attempt to describe how quality of life is affected at different stages of the disease process. Comprehensive reviews are provided of the impact on the child's physical activity, social life, and school and educational achievements. Special consideration is given to children with leukemia (one of the more common cancers) and brain tumors. Cancer does not just affect the child but every member of the family. Consequently there is coverage of the effects on parents and also healthy brothers and sisters. To the extent that improvements in survival have been achieved by national and international collaboration between clinicians, it is concluded that efforts to improve the quality of these children's lives is dependent on collaboration between clinicians, nurses, and behavioral scientists at national and international levels. This book should provide an impetus for such collaboration.

What Happens When a Kid Has Cancer Sara Olsher,2021 When a child is diagnosed with cancer, life flips upside-down. Suddenly, our days (and our thoughts) are dominated by doctors, nurses, child life specialists, and a million technical terms that will make anyone's head spin. Add extreme fear and anxiety to that, and you've got a recipe for the most stressful time in a family's life. What Happens When a Kid Has Cancer is a book written with purpose of relieving the anxiety and confusion that comes from a child's cancer diagnosis and treatment. What Happens When a Kid Has Cancer covers the main points of pediatric cancer - what it is and what the experience of treatment is like - and shows how it can change a kid's day. The book is great for ages 4 -10 and discusses:- The science of cancer- Changes to routines- Surgery and anesthesia - Chemotherapy- Hair loss and hair changes- Port, central line, and tubies- Hospital stays- Radiation- Scans and blood draws- Emotions relating to cancer Over the course of a year and with the help of both experts and families who have been through pediatric cancer, author and illustrator Sara Olsher explains the science of cancer (in an age-appropriate, totally non-scary way) and uses an illustrated calendar to show how various treatments affect a child's day-to-day. This method of teaching is based on decades of solid science about how kids learn and cope with the major day-to-day changes that result from issues like cancer. By creating a routine that kids can see and understand, parents can restore a sense of safety and predictability in their kids' lives, helping them to be more resilient in the face of life's inevitable challenges. What Happens When a Kid Has Cancer? helps families that want to reduce their kids' anxiety surrounding a very scary diagnosis. It aims to empower kids with knowledge, which is proven to help kids through traumatic situations.

Someone You Love Has Cancer Robin Martin-Duttmann, 2017-02-21 Someone You Love Has Cancer: A Child's Guide to Understanding provides a platform for conversation between parents and children, as well as teachers and their students. This educational poem was written to empower children and ease their anxiety by opening meaningful conversations based on facts. A Child's Guide comes with a Glossary of Terms, as well as fundraising ideas and instructions on how to create a Memory Box. Robin Martin Duttmann is an award-winning author, poet, and creative writing teacher for children at The Windsor International Writers Conference. Her book Zoo on the Moon received Honorable Mention at the 2013 Purple Dragonfly Literary Awards of Arizona, for best new Children's Picture Book ages five and younger. Her second book June Bug Jamboree received the same award at the Royal Dragonfly Book Awards in 2014. In the summer of 2014, Zoo on the Moon was selected for primary science curriculum in 147 countries by the IBLibrary.com in its newly developed primary year program. In October 2015, the author was a contributor to Chicken Soup for the Soul's Think Possible. She also recently underwent treatment for triple negative breast cancer. With her positive, can-do attitude, she and a group of other women modeled for the Cancer Center's billboards and posters during a one-month fundraising event that brought over $71,000 directly to the Windsor Regional Cancer Center, Ontario, Canada. This book was made possible with contributions from Rosser Reeves Jewellers in honour of family, friends, and customers whose lives have been touched by cancer.

The Kids' Guide to Mommy's Breast Cancer Karyn Stowe, 2011-10 What do you tell a child when Mommy is diagnosed with breast cancer? The Kids' Guide to Mommy's Breast Cancer helps parents find appropriate explanations in a gentle yet honest and hopeful way. By dividing the information into chapters according to the different treatments Mommy might face, the stories are relevant without being overwhelming. Including a section with ideas and tips for parents, The Kids' Guide to Mommy's Breast Cancer is a supportive resource for the entire family. A portion of the proceeds from this book will be donated to Rethink Breast Cancer.

Our Mom Has Cancer Abigail Ackermann, 2000-12 Two sisters, ages eleven and thirteen, describe what it was like for them when their mother was diagnosed with breast cancer and underwent surgery and chemotherapy.

They Never Want to Tell You David J. Bearison, 1991 They Never Want to Tell You transcends the negative metaphors and clichés of life-threatening disease, to give voice to the culture of cancer and to the behavior and attitudes of those who function within that culture-as patients, medical professionals, family, and friends. In these extraordinary narratives, children coping with cancer reveal their most personal experiences, and they speak with a candor that breaks through the cultural taboos ostensibly designed to protect us from the disease. The rich, compassionate, and honest words of these children give expression to concerns that adults who are struggling with cancer find nearly impossible to articulate. Free of social conventions and cognitive distortions, each story presents a powerful variation on the theme of survival in the face of the continuing uncertainties of life-threatening disease. Bearison, a developmental psychologist and psychotherapist, is keenly aware of the psychological impact of cancer on children, particularly as survival times for childhood cancers lengthen and complex treatments intensify concern about the emotional-not merely physical-well-being of children. Bearison has culled from scores of interviews the most salient moments that represent these individual children in their shared struggle with disease. In these pages the children express their wildest hopes and worst fears about cancer. They speak of the absolute necessity of full disclosure, the problems of relating to friends and family, the difficult adjustment to hair loss, their feelings of punishment, grief, and spirituality, and many other issues. In the course of these stories the children reveal not only their will to survive and their extraordinary capacity to understand themselves and their condition, but their altruistic desire to share that understanding with other children as well as with adults who have cancer. They Never Want to Tell You is rich and rewarding reading for cancer patients, their families, and health-care professionals alike.

Hope Tree Laura Joffe Numeroff,2010-06 This book was created in conjunction with the Susan G. Komen Breast Cancer Foundation to help families talk about the difficult issues of breast cancer in healthy and hopeful ways. Drawn from real stories about mothers with cancer, the book focuses on ten key topics that often affect families dealing with illness. Animal characters in an imaginary support group are used to provide insights and advice in a comforting format. Full-color illustrations. Ages 5-8.

My Brother Has Cancer Alex Winstanley,2023-12-07 This picture book aims to raise awareness of the impact that cancer can have on an individual and their family in a child-friendly and supportive way. It is aimed at 4-11 year olds and has been inspired and informed by people with lived experiences of cancer. Through rhyme and engaging illustrations this book hopes to start conversations about cancer, in order to help relieve anxieties that children might have about someone close to them who may be living with cancer. The MY HAS series of books aims to help children to understand a range of long-term health conditions whilst promoting an inclusive and diverse society.

Shooting Star Has Cancer Angélique Mathieu-Tanguy,2020-09-13 The association Angelique's stories, with the support of many parents, publishes books that make children aware of differences in everyday life, be it illnesses and disabilities, but also other family patterns and cultures. Through her books, Angélique also raises children's awareness of Nature and ecology through stories that are always touching and beautifully illustrated by her. Among her books, here is one on the theme of childhood cancer. Are you worried about your child who has to go into the hospital to be treated for cancer? Are you looking for advice and detailed explanations of the journey your child will have to follow throughout his or her recovery in order to talk to him or her as best as possible? Are you also looking for the right words to talk to your child about his or her illness, while taking the drama out of the situation? My book on the subject of cancer is designed to calm children who are affected by it, by providing them with colourful and detailed illustrations and diagrams of everything they will experience in hospital. Humour spikes distilled through its pages relax children who identify with the little heroine of our book: Shooting Star, a little Native American girl who, with the support of her parents and her little twin brothers, will overcome the disease while keeping a smile on her face. Your child will also be able to take his book with him to the hospital, because I invite him at the end of the story to write down everything he has retained through simple questions, and to draw his cancer and its treatment on pages provided for that purpose. Ideal to give him a reassuring support if he has questions once he is in the hospital. He will be able to go back and reread his answers if you cannot be at his side. The children thus discover in pictures what is: -cancer - an X-ray - an MRI - the course of a surgical operation (and its preparation beforehand) - the placement of the implantable chamber - the chemotherapy protocol -The effects of chemotherapy on the body -the passage into a sterile room My book includes: About thirty colorful illustrations, some of which illustrate the various medical examinations and protocols. Two key tips to give your child to reassure and calm him or her when it's time to have surgery A chapter to help you explain your child's future medical history and help them prepare for it without worries. Comprehensive and detailed chapters on all the stages of your child's cancer recovery

Communicating with Cancer Patients and Their Families Andrew Blitzer,1990

Jeremiah the CHD Aware Bear and Friends Phillip Wolf,2015-04-28 In Hug-A-Bear Town, a new bear cub is born. But something seems different in the cub's health that draws the town closer to him and his family. Jeremiah is touched by a congenital heart defect (CHD). Dr. Toad helps to fix Jeremiah's broken heart so the cub can grow and strive to accomplish his goals in life. Heartbeat Hippo, Rare Rabbit and Cardiac Crane provide support and encouragement. Jeremiah's triumphant story is written and illustrated for children to better understand there is hope for CHDs, and they are not alone in the journey to defy odds. The story also brings awareness to parents unfamiliar of the existence of CHDs. Coloring pages follow Jeremiah's story. Silent Cries breaks through CHD awareness by producing books, event programs and films that help CHD communities spread the word and fund research for this disease that touches approximately 1 child in 100. Ethical Conduct of Clinical Research Involving Children Institute of Medicine, Board on Health Sciences Policy, Committee on Clinical Research Involving Children, 2004-07-09 In recent decades, advances in biomedical research have helped save or lengthen the lives of children around the world. With improved therapies, child and adolescent mortality rates have decreased significantly in the last half century. Despite these advances, pediatricians and others argue that children have not shared equally with adults in biomedical advances. Even though we want children to benefit from the dramatic and accelerating rate of progress in medical care that has been fueled by scientific research, we do not want to place children at risk of being harmed by participating in clinical studies. Ethical Conduct of Clinical Research Involving Children considers the necessities and challenges of this type of research and reviews the ethical and legal standards for conducting it. It also considers problems with the interpretation and application of these standards and conduct, concluding that while children should not be excluded from potentially beneficial clinical studies, some research that is ethically permissible for adults is not acceptable for children, who usually do not have the legal capacity or maturity to make informed decisions about research participation. The book looks at the need for appropriate pediatric expertise at all stages of the design, review, and conduct of a research project to effectively implement policies to protect children. It argues persuasively that a robust system for protecting human research participants in general is a necessary foundation for protecting child research participants in particular.

Childhood Cancer Survivors Nancy Keene, Wendy Hobbie, Kathy Ruccione, 2014-03-01 More than 325,000 children, teens, and adults in the United States are survivors of childhood cancer. The surgery, radiation, chemotherapy, and stem cell transplants used to cure children can affect growing bodies and developing minds. If survivors know of these potential problems, they can take steps to identify, cope with, or treat them early if they do develop. The third edition of Childhood Cancer Survivors charts the territory for survivors by providing state-of-the-art information about: Medical late effects from treatment Emotional aspects of surviving cancer Schedules for follow-up care Challenges in the health-care system Lifestyle choices to maximize health Discrimination in employment or insurance Woven throughout the text are stories from more than 100 survivors and parents. Authors Keene, Hobbie, and Ruccione are experts in the field of childhood cancer. Keene is the mother of a survivor of childhood leukemia and the author of several books including Childhood Leukemia, Childhood Cancer, Educating the Child with Cancer, and Chemo, Crazyness & Comfort. Hobbie is Associate Director of the Cancer Survivorship Program at Children's Hospital of Philadelphia. Ruccione is Co-Director of the HOPE (Hematology-Oncology Psychosocial and Education) Program in the Children's Center for Cancer and Blood Diseases at Children's Hospital Los Angeles.
