Multipassionate Genius Playbook: Design the Life of Your Dreams Using All That You Already Have Boram

Kim,2021-09-29 Have you ever felt like you can't ever stick to one thing and are drifting through life? Have you ever been told that you're a dabbler or distracted when it comes to careers and projects? Have you ever wanted to find one true passion in life but always ended up with bunch of ideas and not able to commit and throughly finish? Are you a multipassionate? First of all, what's multipassionate? Multipassionate is a special type of personality or a special kind of thinker that has almost unlimited inspiration everyday and is passionate about a lot of things in life. One of the superpowers multipassionates have is rapid learning. When a multipassionate person is interested in something, they're able to master it pretty quickly (mastering in the multipassionate world looks a bit different than what we know). Because of their unlimited interests, they often change jobs frequently or jump to new projects easily without finishing one. They're an explorer and an innovator who loves to try new things. They're often the outside-of-the-box thinker and able to come up with creative solutions. If any of these sounds familiar, chances are, you might be one. Nobody has told us that these traits were a good thing. Having to commit to one thing and do it for a long time bores us. We think fast and we see solutions the way not many people see them. In this playbook, you'll learn 3 actionable steps to capture your best ideas and make your dream projects into a reality. STEP 1: Clarity Idea mapping / Big picture phase General direction you want to go towards. What would your ideal life feel like? What have you done so far? Write ALL the things that comes to mind that you know how to do. Unleash yourself. What is on your mind? Idea scanning: Clarifying priority. STEP 2: Action Plan Getting the vision for each project Why are you excited about it? Who are you excited to help? What would get in the way? Can you absolutely know that is true? Rewrite the script. STEP 3: Deciding & Commitment Give a deadline to complete each task. Finally, put them all back into a 6-year plan. Follow my guidance and give it a try. Discover what your true passions are and make it happen. I'm rooting for you.

Recent Advancements of Immunomodulatory Biomaterials in Cell Therapy and Tissue Engineering Sudip Mukherjee,Boram Kim,Andrea Hernandez,2024-02-08 This book presents the recent developments in immunomodulatory biomaterials for cell-based therapies in various diseases, including diabetes, cancer, cardiovascular disease, and bone regeneration. The authors first cover the fundamentals of conventional immunology and immunomodulation, before focusing on the history, advantages, and challenges of cell therapies. Biological cell therapy has gained immense attention for various diseases due to unique advantages it has over chemical drugs regarding cost, ease of production, toxicity, and therapeutic efficacy. However, these cell-based therapies need an inert delivery system that can locally deliver cells and minimally elicit foreign body response. The book discusses the foreign body response to the immunomodulatory biomaterials as well as the current and future strategies for potential mitigation of considerable immune responses toward immunomodulatory biomaterials and devices.

The Routledge Handbook on Informal Urbanization Roberto Rocco,Jan van Ballegooijen,2019-01-02 The Routledge Handbook on Informal Urbanization investigates the mutual relationship between the struggle for political inclusion and processes of informal urbanization in different socio-political and cultural settings. It seeks a middle ground between two opposing perspectives on the political meaning of urban informality. The first, the 'emancipatory perspective', frames urban informality as a practice that fosters autonomy, entrepreneurship and social mobility. The other perspective, more critical, sees informality predominantly as a result of political exclusion, inequality, and poverty. Do we see urban informality as a fertile breeding ground for bottom-up democracy and more political participation? Or is urban informality indeed merely the result of a democratic deficit caused by governing autocratic elites and ineffective bureaucracies? This book displays a wide variety of political practices and narratives around these positions based on narratives conceived upon specific case cities. It investigates how processes of urbanization are politicized in countries in the Global South and in transition economies. The handbook explores 24 cities in the Global South, as well as examples from Eastern Europe and East Asia, with contributions written by a global group of scholars familiar with the cases (often local scholars working in the cities analyzed) who offer unique insight on how informal urbanization can be interpreted in different contexts. These contributions engage the extreme urban environments under scrutiny which are likely to be the new laboratories of 21st-century democracy. It is vital reading for scholars, practitioners, and activists engaged in informal urbanization.

Rising Powers and South-South Cooperation Kevin Gray,Barry K Gills,2018-10-11 This book examines the extent to which a space has opened up in recent years for the so-called rising powers of the global South to offer an alternative to contemporary global economic and political governance through emergent forms of South-South cooperation. In contrast to the Third Worldism of the past, the contemporary rising powers share in common the fact that their recent growth owes much to their extensive and increasingly international engagement, rather than partial withdrawal from the global economy. However, they are nonetheless openly critical of the perceived bias towards the global North in the dominant institutions of global governance, and seek to alter the global status quo to enhance the influence of the global South. Contributions to this volume address the question of whether such engagement, particularly on a South-South basis, can be categorised as a win-win relationship, or whether we are already seeing the emergence of new forms of competitive rivalry and neo-dependency in action. What kind of theoretical approaches and conceptual tools do we need to best answer such questions? To what extent do new groupings such as BRICS suggest a real alternative to the dominance of the West and of the neoliberal economic globalization paradigm? What possible alternatives exist within contemporary forms of South-South cooperation? This book was originally published as a special edition of Third World Quarterly.

RecordCovid19 Kristopher Lovell,2023-08-21 RecordCovid19. Historicizing Experiences of the Pandemic provides insights into the experience of the Covid19 pandemic from an historical and sociological perspective. Using the first-hand testimonies submitted as part of the #RecordCovid19 project as its inspiration, the chapters in this edited collection explore and contextualise the initial responses to the Covid19 pandemic. The collection examines people's relationships with Covid19 as an historical event, including their own experiences of living through history; their relationship with their surroundings, including their relationships with family, the soundscapes and the emotional environments of a pandemic world; the impact and tone of political rhetoric, including the use (and misuse) of wartime myths and language in the United Kingdom; and finally, what lessons can be learnt from how people discuss their own personal stories and what lessons can we draw from previous examples of storytelling in moments of crisis. The result is a fascinating and rich discussion derived from an archive full of idiosyncratic experiences of life changing during the Covid19 pandemic.

Prominence in a Pitch Language Shinobu Mizuguchi,Koichi Tateishi,2023 Using production, perception, and processing experiments on understudied sentence- and utterance-levels, the authors explore how Japanese prominence is marked, perceived, and processed. Globalization and Citizenship Hans Schattle,2012 This lively and invigorating book explores the complex relationship between globalization and citizenship. From Cairo to Beijing, campaigns for civil rights and democracy around the world are intensifying and speeding up in the digital media age, and public recognition of global interdependence continues to rise. At the same time, many national governments are tightening border controls and further limiting access to citizenship in a climate of high public anxiety and economic uncertainty. Although globalization continues to open up many new opportunities for citizens to enter the international arena and make their voices heard, as Hans Schattle shows, the institution of national citizenship remains highly resilient and often more restrictive. Providing fresh insights on the meaning of citizenship in a global age, Schattle highlights such extraordinary events as the SARab Spring revolutions in North Africa and the Middle East, the global debate over the role and tactics of WikiLeaks, the awarding of the 2010 Nobel Peace Prize to Chinese dissident Liu Xiaobo, the growing reach of European Union citizenship alongside crackdowns across the continent targeting immigrants and ethnic and cultural minority groups, and recent political controversies in the United States over citizenship and immigration.
