The Re-Creation of Brian Kent Harold Bell Wright, 2020-03-23 I remember as well as though it were yesterday the first time I met Auntie Sue. It happened during my first roaming visit to the Ozarks, when I had wandered by chance, one day, into the Elbow Rock neighborhood. Twenty years it was, at least, before the time of this story. She was standing in the door of her little schoolhouse, the ruins of which you may still see, halfway up the long hill from the log house by the river, where the most of this story was lived.

The Re-Creation of Brian Kent (Esprios Classics) Harold Bell Wright, 2020-10-29 Harold Bell Wright (1872-1944) was a best-selling American writer of fiction, essays, and nonfiction. Although mostly forgotten or ignored after the middle of the 20th century, he had a very successful career; he is said to have been the first American writer to sell a million copies of a novel and the first to make $1 million from writing fiction. Between 1902 and 1942 Wright wrote 19 books, several stage plays, and many magazine articles. More than 15 movies were made or claimed to be made from Wright's stories, including Gary Cooper's first major movie, The Winning of Barbara Worth (1926) and the John Wayne film The Shepherd of the Hills (1941).

The House on Lincoln Street Brian Kent, 2013-07 The chilling accounts of a house and a man who refuse to let go of the past. From paranormal investigator, Brian Kent, comes an entirely different look on life in a haunted home. From his family experiences and eye witness testimony of previous owners to the actual investigation, this story literally took 45 years to document. Complete with investigative analysis for each occurrence, The House On Lincoln Street is not just another ghost story, but a realistic view of one man's life long journey to discover the truth.

Walked On Brian Kent, 2020-11-29 How does an undrafted free agent and two-sport college walk-on end up in a Chicago White Sox uniform? With a college football career derailed by mononucleosis and a college baseball career shattered by rotator cuff surgery, Brian Kent's narrative will motivate any athlete. Follow the journey from high school to college(s); from the dojo to the independent leagues; and from personal training to a White Sox contract. While the ultimate goal - playing in the big leagues - was not reached, the path was filled with lessons guaranteed to inspire all readers. As a high school ballplayer, Kent had aspirations of playing both Big Ten football and Major League Baseball. A product of great youth and high school coaching, he was recruited to play Division I football and Division I baseball, but without any scholarship offers from either sport. Undeterred, Kent accepted an invitation to be a preferred walk-on football player with the very real possibility of also being a scholarship baseball player--at the same Big Ten university. It was the definition of a dream coming true. However, one kissing disease and major coaching dismissal changed everything. After self-reflection and a reassessment of goals, it was time to transfer, leave football behind and focus on baseball. Once again, a walk-on opportunity at a Big XII university presented itself--for a coach that wanted athletes, not just baseball players. It looked like the perfect scenario, and for a while, appeared to be. But, two evaluations with coaches behind-closed-doors revealed a sobering, disappointing reality. To keep his baseball dream alive, Kent had to transfer a second time; now to a Division II school. School number three included: an NCAA transfer-ineligible season; a scholarship received; injury-related poor performance; a scholarship eliminated; and career threatening shoulder surgery. Our character is defined by how we handle adversity. As athletes and competitors, how do we conquer our personal demons and heal our minds? How do we stay motivated through injury, failure, and frustration? Through the feeling of not being wanted, and knowing that our window to fight is closing? How do we rebound and improve ourselves? What are we doing--right now--to make ourselves a better player? Where are we gaining physical and mental advantages? Who will we seek out to help us achieve our goals? Learn how Brian Kent answered these questions, strengthened his weaknesses, and put himself in a position to take advantage of a golden opportunity. A portion of Walked On's book sales have been donated to the On Your Mark Coaching and Training Game Changes scholarship fund - thank you for contributing. Led by Nike Master Trainer and OYM leadership council member David Carson, Game Changers is an athletic training program designed to give Chicago's youth the building blocks of performance and development. The scholarship awards qualified young athletes access to a high-level training experience, which will service the athlete both on and off the field.
