J. Quevedo, T. Escobet

Digital Control 2000: Past, Present and Future of PID Control J. Quevedo, T. Escobet, 2000-10-26 At the beginning of the new millennium the PID controller continues to be a key component of industrial control. During this century many different structures of control have been proposed to overcome the limitation of the PID controllers. Because of their simplicity and usefulness, they give a very useful solution to an important part of the industrial processes. The present-day structure of PID controllers is quite different from the original analog PID controllers. Now the implementation of the PID is based on digital design, these digital PIDs include many algorithms such as anti-wind-up, auto-tuning, adaptive, and fuzzy fine tuning to improve their performances, but the basic actions remain the same. During the last two decades, the general reluctance of researchers to use PID controllers has begun to disappear. Many of the new capabilities of digital PID controllers have been introduced by the research community. The industrial control users apply these innovations easily, even enthusiastically. PID control has become one of the most important ways for the scientific specialist in control and the users of industrial control to work together. This workshop was organized so that the scientific world and the industrial control world could meet and discuss the present and future use of PID controllers - the successes and failures of their use and how to determine the limits of performances. This workshop was also useful for learning about control history, since the origin and evolution of PID control can provide us with keys for new development and designs.

Algorithms and Architectures for Real-Time Control 2000 V. Hernandez, G.W. Irwin, 2000-12-04 The 6th IFAC Workshop on Algorithms and Architectures for Real-Time Control (AARTC'2000) was held at Palma de Mallorca, Spain. The objective, as in previous editions, was to show the state-of-the-art and to present new developments and research results in software and hardware for real-time control, as well as to bring together researchers, developers and practitioners, both from the academic and the industrial world. The AARTC'2000 Technical Program consisted of 11 presented sessions, covering the major areas of software, hardware and applications for real-time control. In particular, sessions addressed robotics, embedded systems, modeling and control, fuzzy logic methods, industrial process control and manufacturing systems, neural networks, parallel and distributed processing, processor architectures for control, software design tools and methodologies, and SCADA and multi-layer control. A total of 38 papers were selected from high-quality full draft papers and late breaking paper contributions (consisting of extended abstracts). Participants from 15 countries attended the AARTC'2000 workshop. The technical program also included two plenary talks given by leading experts in the field. Roger Goodall (Department of Electronic and Electrical Engineering, Loughborough University, UK) presented Perspectives on processing for real-time control, and Ricardo Sanz (Universidad Politécnica de Madrid, Spain), focused on CORBA for Control Systems. Another highlight in the program was the final session on industrial presentations which was held in common with the Workshop on Real-Time Programming (WRTP'2000). In this session, Abel Jiménez (Industria de Turbo Propulsores S. A., Spain) presented the Thrust Vectoring System Control Concept, Ulrich Schmid (Technische Universität Wien, Austria) made a presentation with the title Applied Research: A Scientist's Perspective, and Harold W. Lawson (Lawson Konsult AB, Sweden) addressed Systems Engineering of a Successful Train Control System.

Power Plants and Power Systems Control 2000 J.-P. Waha, 2000 Paperback. With the decentralisation and liberalisation of the electrical energy system in Europe, the network companies as well as the power plant companies will be faced with many new emerging technical problems. This Proceedings contains papers presented at the IFAC 2000 Symposium on Power Plants and Power Systems Control; this symposium aimed to provide international experts with a platform to discuss the challenges facing the power plant industry, and to present solutions developed in countries who have previously encountered these new paradigms of grid control. One of the main aims of the symposium was to promote a better knowledge of the behaviour of the power plants and power systems, with the ultimate goal of an efficient, flexible and secure operation coupled with a high level of service to their customers.

Applications of Public Health Education and Health Promotion Interventions Rashid Ansari, PhD, 2012-06-27 Although there have been many significant advances in health care over the years, there are still issues demanding the attention of health-care professionals, governments, and individuals. Among them are chronic diseases and problems, such as type 2 diabetes, smoking, lack of physical activity, and dietary issues. In Applications of Public Health Education and Health Promotion Interventions, author Rashid Ansari highlights the practical applications of public health education and health promotion in various settings in addressing those health issues in particular and other health problems in general. He also provides health education concepts and processes that provide a combination of approaches to lifestyle change in order to assist individuals, families, and communities in making informed decisions on matters that affect the restoration, achievement, and maintenance of their health. A combination of health education and health promotion interventions at the primary level of prevention can be used to facilitate behavioural and environmental changes conducive to health enhancement. Ansari also shows how health inequality among populations can be reduced. Applications of Public Health Education and Health Promotion Interventions provides practical information on how public health theories and hypotheses can be used to combat some of the most prevalent health-care issues of the day.
