General Classification Handbook for Floodplain Vegetation in Large River Systems Jennifer J.

Dieck,Larry R. Robinson,2014-06-16 This handbook describes the Long Term Resource Monitoring Program (LTRMP) General Wetland Vegetation Classification System developed as part of a multi-state and Federal partnership for the Upper Mississippi River System. This classification system consists of 31 general classes and has been used to create systemic land cover/land use maps throughout this diverse river system. In addition, it describes the evolution of the General Wetland Vegetation Classification System, discusses the process of creating a map, and describes each of the 31 general classes in detail. This handbook also acts as a pictorial guide to illustrate each of the general classes as they may appear in the field, as well as on color-infrared aerial photographs.

Small Water Waterfowling Christopher Smith,2018-10 The North Atlantic, the Great Lakes, the Gulf Coast, the waves and the wind and the ducks - there's no doubt that big water holds a lure for waterfowlers unlike any other. But when it comes to actually shooting ducks and geese over water, the action is on the small places - the inland lakes, the ponds and potholes, the floodings and creeks and backwaters. Day in and day out, that's where the ducks are, and that's where Chris Smith takes you. However, each of these places requires a separate technique, alternate decoys spreads and calling concepts, and different gear to use. He tells you how to approach each type of hunting for the weather and conditions. He knows when and when not to call. He describes the skills a good waterfowl dog needs to know for each place, things he's taught his succession of Labrador retrievers over the years. His knowledge of duck and goose hunting has been earned through both experience and education. A native of Michigan, he holds a B
