GFI Network Security and PCI Compliance Power Tools Brien Posey, 2011-04-18 Today all companies, U.S. federal agencies, and non-profit organizations have valuable data on their servers that needs to be secured. One of the challenges for IT experts is learning how to use new products in a time-efficient manner, so that new implementations can go quickly and smoothly. Learning how to set up sophisticated products is time-consuming, and can be confusing. GFI's LANguard Network Security Scanner reports vulnerabilities so that they can be mitigated before unauthorized intruders can wreck havoc on your network. To take advantage of the best things that GFI's LANguard Network Security Scanner has to offer, you'll want to configure it on your network so that it captures key events and alerts you to potential vulnerabilities before they are exploited. In this book Brien Posey has pinpointed the most important concepts with examples and screenshots so that systems administrators and security engineers can understand how to get the GFI security tools working quickly and effectively. His straightforward, no nonsense writing style is devoid of difficult to understand technical jargon. His descriptive examples explain how GFI's security tools enhance the security controls that are already built into your server's operating system.

Spot Market Fouad Sabry,2024-01-22 What is Spot Market The spot market, often known as the cash market, is a public financial market that facilitates the acquisition and sale of financial instruments or commodities for immediate delivery. On the other hand, a futures market, in which delivery is scheduled for a later date, is not the same thing. The settlement process in a spot market typically takes place in T+2 working days, which means that the delivery of cash and commodities must be completed after two working days have passed since the date of the trade. An exchange or an over-the-counter (OTC) market are both viable options for using a spot market. Spot markets are able to function in any location where the necessary infrastructure is present to carry out the transaction.
