Mapping My Way Home Stephanie Urdang, 2017-11-22 Stephanie Urdang was born in Cape Town, South Africa, into a white, Jewish family staunchly opposed to the apartheid regime. In 1967, at the age of twenty-three, no longer able to tolerate the grotesque iniquities and oppression of apartheid, she chose exile and emigrated to the United States. There she embraced feminism, met anti-apartheid and solidarity movement activists, and encountered a particularly American brand of racial injustice. Urdang also met African revolutionaries such as Amilcar Cabral, who would influence her return to Africa and her subsequent journalism. In 1974, she trekked through the liberation zones of Guinea-Bissau during its war of independence; in the 1980's, she returned repeatedly to Mozambique and saw how South Africa was fomenting a civil war aimed to destroy the newly independent country. From the vantage point of her activism in the United States, and from her travels in Africa, Urdang tracked and wrote about the slow, inexorable demise of apartheid that led to South Africa's first democratic elections, when she could finally return home. Urdang's memoir maps out her quest for the meaning of home and for the lived reality of revolution with empathy, courage, and a keen eye for historical and geographic detail. This is a personal narrative, beautifully told, of a journey traveled by an indefatigable exile who, while yearning for home, continued to question where, as a citizen of both South Africa and the United States, she belongs. "My South Africa!" she writes, on her return in 1991, after the release of Nelson Mandela, "How could I have imagined for one instant that I could return to its beauty, and not its pain?"

Security in Smart Home Networks Yan Meng, Haojin Zhu, Xuemin (Sherman) Shen, 2023-01-17 This book presents the security and privacy challenges of the smart home following the logic of "terminal device - voice interface - application platform". For each component, the authors provide answers to the three questions: 1) In the terminal device layer, how to conduct cross-layer privacy breach analysis and provide effective countermeasures; 2) In the voice interface layer, how to design effective and lightweight schemes to defend against voice spoofing; 3) In the application layer, how to design an effective anomaly detection system without breaching the application platform. The authors conduct a thorough analysis of the security threats and challenges in each component of the smart home, review the existing state-of-the-art solutions proposed by other researchers, and elaborate on proposed countermeasures. This book aims to provide both security threats analysis and state-of-the-art countermeasures for the smart home network.

A Journey to Work from Home During Covid-19 Pandemic Lockdown - Will It Still Be Relevant After the Pandemic Dr Sulaiman Baputey Ph.D,2021-04-15

Triggered by the recent COVID-19 catastrophe, working from home has suddenly become the new normal of work practice, particularly for employees. Although the practice of working from home has started long ago during pre-COVID-19, the forceful nature of post-COVID-19 has brought mixed reactions. While some employees smile to being near their family members with similar amount of paycheck, others experience shock, fear, trauma, loneliness, and distraction working from home during the uncertain period of the pandemic lockdown. However, little is known and explored about their new work reality, which had drastically shifted from their leisure office setting to unsettled home office. Deriving from these unprecedented challenges, an issue on working from home is gaining deep interests from a large number of contemporary scholars, university students, researchers, academicians, human resource practitioners, employees, public sectors, policy makers, and consultants. Fulfilling their interests, the author took the initiative to fill the gap by bringing a fresh insight that is greatly useful for all the stakeholders. For those who are still puzzled about the next normal of working from home after the pandemic, this book provides a practical solution. The opening section of this book brings the readers to understand the current reality and future work landscape of working from home, COVID-19 disease trajectory, and global reactions to the COVID-19 pandemic. Subsequently, the author discusses the different nature of working from home between the era of pre-COVID-19 and post-COVID-19. The more serious discussion, however, circumferences on challenges that both employees and employer might face in realizing the new working-from-home procedures. Toward the end of the book, the author offers some practical guideline to HR managers on how to prepare a working-from-home policy that is tailor-made for the COVID-19 pandemic situation.

Your Guide to Finding a New Home After 50 Peter Keers, Cantissimo Senior Living, As we age, it seems a “sense of place” takes on greater significance. In our younger years, we may have moved around after leaving the family home. That nomadic pattern, perhaps, was symbolic of our search for a path in life. Once settling into a consistent lifestyle, we found ourselves living for longer stretches of time in one location or another. Then comes the time in later life when for various reasons, we consider (or are forced to consider) yet another relocation. This Cantissimo Senior Living eBook looks from various angles at moving after age 50. Whether you want to “age in place” in your current residence, desire a new home, or are compelled by circumstances to move, this eBook will help as you ponder the pros and cons in the decision-making process.

On Line Teaching Working From Home Subramanian K V, 2021-07-28 Online education has emerged as a new way of Teaching / Learning, without the need for face to face proximity, in the post 2000 era; a paradigm shift in distance education from the postal, television and radio channels, of the past. Online education has transitioned from an option to a near compulsion driven by the COVID pandemic. Experience has taught that On Line Teaching/Learning (OLTL) is not a mere transition of communication medium, between the teacher and the taught, from physical to digital. Adding to the complexity is the Work From Home (WFH) mode of delivering OLT&L. OLT&L in the WFH format is an orchestrated synthesis of technological enablement, sociological, attitudinal, behavioural and managerial factors. Integration of these diverse influencers is more critical than addressing their individual efficiency for achieving desired outcome. To make OLTL a success the OLTL ecosystem has to be Ready for it. This paper on Readiness for OnLine Teaching Working From Home examines the three factors that comprise the ecosystem: Readiness of Teachers, Readiness of the Learner and Readiness for WFH and their holistic positive interplay that make OLTL-WFH a reality. The paper based on a literature research addressing the Online Teacher, Online Learner and the WFH ecosystem traces the dimensions of OLTL and WFH individually that can potentially aid or mar any attempt at adopting OLTL-WFH, if conditions for their holistic working together are not consciously crafted. The paper concludes with scope for further research on how to create the enabling encouraging and efficient ecosystem for OLTL-WFH as WFH is transitioning from a novelty to a model of knowledge sharing to stay.
