Kahin Door Jakar... Dam Todne Ka Man Hota Hai Saumitra Saxena/ ??????,2023-08-19 Saumitra's poetry has been a companion of mine for a time that stretches long and far, weaving its way through the fabric of life. I have seen his verse evolve, blossoming from the seeds of his early poems, growing into the beautiful tapestry that tells the stories of relationships, tender and intimate. In the irony of the times, he remembers all, the connections that bind us - brother and sister, aunt, mother, and father. His poetry speaks of sorrow and pain, yet not as an outcry, but as a quiet whisper, a gentle touch that reveals the depth of emotion hidden within silence. The chaos of life fades away, replaced by the eloquence and beauty of his words. Saumitra finds a unique connection between relationships and the places that hold them. In poems like 'Bhopal Kabhi Nahi Gaya,' he captures the ever-changing landscape of human emotions, intertwining them with the abstract geography of cities that exist deep within our hearts. It is said that a true poet embraces the local, finding meaning in the smallest of places, allowing them to travel the world through their verse. Like Viren Dangwal, Saumitra discovers poetry in every subject, from the darkest corners of incurable disease to the enigmatic realms of quantum physics. His words illuminate each topic with poetic light, making the waves of life force burst forth. Saumitra walks with his poetic tradition, not simply alongside life but immersed in its very essence. In his poetry, one can find happiness and sorrow, hope and despair, yet he stands firmly against fatigue and defeat. It is this power, this unwavering strength, that makes his poetry truly remarkable.-Hari Bhatnagar

Into the Rift Clay Harmon,2024-07-02 After defeating the mercenary army that threatened his home, Jakar sets out with Efadora – the only person left with the power to bind him – across the Rift. He hunts the cultists who enslaved him, intent on ending their trade in elemental children, but he remembers little beyond that his search begins in the legendary city of Sulian Daw. Back in Mira, the Foundry's rhidium – the rare mineral that grants them extraordinary power – has gone missing and is feared stolen by the rebellious faction that seeks to bring down the Sovereign. Ester, fledgling Smith of the Foundry, is tasked with tracking it down. If she fails, the Sovereign will rain death upon all those who oppose him, costing thousands of innocent lives.

A thousand years ago, on the world of Claire-Agon, a war raged between men and dragons, destroying the creatures and the land's many civilizations. The saga continues as a simple Ulathan family faces mad wizards, crazed undead, bloodthirsty barbarians and the world's most noted thieves and assassins. The planet Dor Akun, known as Father Death, approaches with the great Pentium Passing occurring only once every thousand years, and promises to fulfil age old prophecies, revealing a secret that will resurrect ancient evils to the world of Claire-Agon... Dragons. Can Targon free his family and help stem the tide of darkness that threatens to cover the land before it's too late?

Path into Fear Doug Welchman,2016-06-30 Terra stepped out to collect firewood and discovered there were no guards at their door. She decided not to share this fact with Skylah for the moment. The two ladies were warmed by a crackling fir and blankets, for virus unusually could not make use of them.

They had stretched out on the bearskin rug and were quite comfortable, although it was getting cold at night. In the late night side of morning, Sky went to collect more firewood. When she realized there were no guards, she hurried back inside and woke up Terra. She asked, When were you going to tell me there are no guards out there? What are you talking I cant trust you anymore! Skylah interrupted. I dont want you to leave until I win Dan over. No, Skylah added. We go now! Keep your voice down, Skylah! Terra whispered. Were not ready, and if you go now, youll go it alone. Do you prefer that? Terra watched after emotion played across Skylahs face. Finally, a mask snapped into place, and she was unreadable. I know you love Sirji. Cant you at least wait for me to have that as well?

Voices from the Forest Malcolm Cairns,2010-09-30 This handbook of locally based agricultural practices brings together the best of science and farmer experimentation, vividly illustrating the enormous diversity of shifting cultivation systems as well as the power of human ingenuity. Environmentalists have tended to disparage shifting cultivation (sometimes called 'swidden cultivation' or 'slash-and-burn agriculture') as unsustainable due to its supposed role in deforestation and land degradation. However, a growing body of evidence indicates that such indigenous practices, as they have evolved over time, can be highly adaptive to land and ecology. In contrast, 'scientific' agricultural solutions imposed from outside can be far more damaging to the environment. Moreover, these external solutions often fail to recognize the extent to which an agricultural system supports a way of life along with a society's food needs. They do not recognize the degree to which the sustainability of a culture is intimately associated with the sustainability and continuity of its agricultural system. Unprecedented in ambition and scope, Voices from the Forest focuses on successful agricultural strategies of upland farmers. More than 100 scholars from 19 countries--including agricultural economists, ecologists, and anthropologists--collaborated in the analysis of different fallow management typologies, working in conjunction with hundreds of indigenous farmers of different cultures and a broad range of climates, crops, and soil conditions. By sharing this knowledge--and combining it with new scientific and technical advances--the authors hope to make indigenous practices and experience more widely accessible and better understood, not only by researchers and development practitioners, but by other communities of farmers around the world.
