Jason Gilt, a bon vivant with a past, is no different and never discriminates when dating or breaking hearts. His city is a feast and he is gluttonous. Circus Home Jason Ollander-Krane, 2022-10-28 Brendan Hardy was a carnival barker. A tumbler. A hawker. He spent a long career on the midway, luring people into the lascivious pleasures of the sideshow tent. As he enters old age, his daughter convinces him to move to an assisted living facility. Brendan chooses to live out his final years with his kind of people-in the New Jersey Home for Retired Circus and Carnival Performers. One day he gets an idea. He puts a sign over the coffee maker in the clubroom, asking to collect the detailed life stories of the other residents of the Home. This captivating and magical novel presents those stories-plus his own-as only Brendan can tell them. This hard-to-put-down novel brims with lively, intriguing characters you will enjoy getting close to. They are good people. Yet, they base their lives in illusion to survive, holding secrets close to their chest until forced to turn to action. Each action presents a turn, often a sharp one, in their life story. Their lies, fictions, half-truths, and flights of fancy have consequences large and small. The novel asks readers to consider the role of make-believe, illusion, and deception in their lives. If your life is grounded in illusion- who are you? When you play a character, where do you end and the character begins? If you tell a lie to change your life for the better- is that wrong? If you enjoyed the rousing pace of Gower's The Mermaid and Mrs. Hancock, the spirited characters in Chabon's The Amazing Adventures of Kavalier & Clay, the literary sweep of Doctorow's Ragtime, the antic world of Dickens's The Pickwick Papers, you will relish Circus Home!

The Path of Deeds Jason Worrell, 2015-12-09 Shane Deeds should be at peace with himself and the world. Tall, handsome, capable, and financially secure, he possesses everything necessary for a contented life. But Deeds doesn't feel at peace with the world around him. A deeply rooted sense of isolation places Deeds at odds with both himself and others. The town where Deeds lives seems enveloped in constant winter. To make matters worse, the people he comes into contact with elicit in him a deep antipathy, further exacerbating his feelings of alienation and loneliness. Promiscuous women, members of the drug culture, an old and bitter police detective, preppy high school bullies and their victims: as Deeds encounters these people, he finds the line blurring between good and bad.

Even his own actions and motivations become difficult to define. Deeds wants to be happy, and beneath the misanthropy, his heart wants to love and be loved. Sadly, he's unsure how to accomplish this, so he must follow his own path-which won't be easy. A dark, funny, and moving tale, The Path of Deeds introduces readers to complex and honest literary characters for the ages.

One year has passed since he lost his children and his incarceration, and the bipolar veteran has become a homeless forty-six-year-old, and Obama's becalmed America has become 2017's lurid turmoil of fake news, corruption, white rage, and violence.

Tony is abandoned by his family, he's on probation and just out of VA psych ward, his past reduced to a ruined inner landscape; still he clings to a dream, and finds love at his lowest point, from a most unexpected (and older) source. A love that will change his life forever.

Hustle Jason Skipper,2011 In Jason Skipper's powerful debut novel, young Chris Saxton's relationship with his alcoholic, ex-conman grandfather begins on an unforgettable road trip from Florida to Fort Worth with his philandering, seafood salesman father at the wheel and the old man duct-taped to a La-Z-Boy in the back of a utility van. That freedom is short-lived, and soon they'll all go back to hustling the grandfather for salvation, the father for women and money, and Chris for his dream of becoming a famous musician.

Packaging the Brand Gavin Ambrose, Paul Harris, 2017-09-07 While many other areas of design have commercial aspects, the success of a piece of packaging design is inextricably linked with its ability to sell a product. Packaging the Brand discusses the implications of this commercial function for a designer. It explores methods of visually communicating the value of a product to its target audience and examines the entire lifespan of a piece of packaging: from its manufacture and construction, to its display in various retail environments, to its eventual disposal and the associated environmental concerns.

The Flowchart Approach to Industrial Cluster Policy Akifumi Kuchiki, M. Tsuji, 2008-01-09 Industrial cluster policy is crucial to the development of regions in East Asia. Theories of agglomeration and clustering show that industrial clusters are effective ways of generating external economies and reducing transportation costs on a small and large-scale. Before a effective cluster can be built, however, it is necessary to clarify the conditions which are required for its success. This book presents a framework for analysing industrial cluster policies. The flowchart approach is a practical method which makes it clear what factors are important in building industrial clusters, how firms are agglomerated and how policy measures are prioritised. With case studies from China, USA, India, Japan, Thailand and Mexico, this book provides a detailed and comprehensive exploration of industrial clusters, and explains how the flowchart approach can be applied in analysing these case studies.

Tropical Grassy Weeds F. W. G. Baker, P. J. Terry, 1991 Weeds are the cause of great losses to crop production in the tropics and grassy weeds present a particular problem because of their similarity to cereal crop plants. It is therefore difficult to devise control methods and management practices appropriate for such weeds. This book reviews our current knowledge of this subject and is the outcome of a workshop on integrated control of grassy weeds in tropical subsistence farming systems, held in Nairobi in February 1990. The workshop was organised by CASAFA (Commission on the Application of Science to Agriculture, Forestry and Aquaculture) of the International Council of Scientific Unions. The contents include a general review of grassy weeds, their physiology in tropical agriculture, management by biological and chemical control, integrated weed management, control in tropical cereals, in tropical grasslands and forage crops, in mixed crops and in upland rice, and overviews of grassy weeds in Kenya, the Phillipines and Australia.
