Cell-to-Cell Mapping C.S. Hsu, 2013-03-09 For many years, I have been interested in global analysis of nonlinear systems. The original interest stemmed from the study of snap-through stability and jump phenomena in structures. For systems of this kind, where there exist multiple stable equilibrium states or periodic motions, it is important to examine the domains of attraction of these responses in the state space. It was through work in this direction that the cell-to-cell mapping methods were introduced. These methods have received considerable development in the last few years, and have also been applied to some concrete problems. The results look very encouraging and promising. However, up to now, the effort of developing these methods has been by a very small number of people. There was, therefore, a suggestion that the published material, scattered now in various journal articles, could perhaps be pulled together into book form, thus making it more readily available to the general audience in the field of nonlinear oscillations and nonlinear dynamical systems. Conceivably, this might facilitate getting more people interested in working on this topic. On the other hand, there is always a question as to whether a topic (a) holds enough promise for the future, and (b) has gained enough maturity to be put into book form. With regard to (a), only the future will tell. With regard to (b), I believe that, from the point of view of both foundation and methodology, the methods are far from mature.

The Solution of the $K(GV)$ Problem Peter Schmid, 2007 The $k(GV)$ conjecture claims that the number of conjugacy classes (irreducible characters) of the semidirect product GV is bounded above by the order of V . Here V is a finite vector space and G a subgroup of $GL(V)$ of order prime to that of V . It may be regarded as the special case of Brauer's celebrated $k(B)$ problem dealing with p -blocks B of p -solvable groups (p a prime). Whereas Brauer's problem is still open in its generality, the $k(GV)$ problem has recently been solved, completing the work of a series of authors over a period of more than forty years. In this book the developments, ideas and methods, leading to this remarkable result, are described in detail. Sample Chapter(s). Chapter 1: Conjugacy Classes, Characters, and Clifford Theory (296 KB). Contents: Conjugacy Classes, Characters and Clifford Theory; Blocks of Characters and Brauer's $k(B)$ Problem; The $k(GV)$ Problem; Symplectic and Orthogonal Modules; Real Vectors; Reduced Pairs of Extraspecial Type; Reduced Pairs of Quasisimple Type; Modules Without Real Vectors; Class Numbers of Permutation Groups; The Final Stages of the Proof; Possibilities for $k(GV) = V$ Some Consequences for Block Theory; The Non-Coprime Situation. Readership: Postgraduate students and researchers with background and research interests in group and representation theory.

Advanced Algebra Herbert Edwin Hawkes, 1905 This book is designed for use in secondary schools and in short college courses. It aims to present in concise but clear form the portions of algebra that are required for entrance to the most exacting colleges and technical schools. The chapters in 'Algebra to Quadratics' are intended for a review of the subject. The rest of the text concentrates on subjects that are most vital, which is why topics that demand a knowledge of calculus for complete comprehension have been omitted.

Essentials of Energy Technology Jochen Fricke, Walter L. Borst, 2013-12-19 An in-depth understanding of energy technology, sources, conversion, storage, transport and conservation is crucial for developing a sustainable and economically viable energy infrastructure. This need, for example, is addressed in university courses with a special focus on the energy mix of renewable and depletable energy resources. Energy makes our lives comfortable, and the existence of amenities such as heaters, cars, warm water, household appliances and electrical light is characteristic for a developed economy. Supplying the industrial or individual energy consumer with energy 24 hours a day is a non-trivial challenge, especially in times where the energy is coming from very diverse resources such as oil, gas, nuclear fuels, wind, sun, or waves. This book gives physics, chemistry, engineering, and materials science students insights in the basics of energy and energy technology. It was developed along a successful course for advanced bachelor or graduate students and is written in a didactic style. The problems and solutions at the end of each chapter are ideal for exams and make self-study easy. Topics covered include energy from fossil and nuclear fuels, renewable sources, energy transport, storage, and conservation.
