Nuclear Nonproliferation Frederick C. Williams, David A. Deese, 2013-10-22 Nuclear

Nonproliferation: The Spent Fuel Problem examines the debate concerning the storage of spent fuel generated by nuclear reactors and its implications for nuclear nonproliferation efforts. Potential barriers to the establishment or expansion of national storage facilities for spent fuel are discussed, along with alternatives. This book covers a broad spectrum of possible multinational and international arrangements for spent fuel management, ranging from relatively benign international oversight of national facilities to arrangements for bilateral and regional cooperation, and even the creation of entirely new international institutional mechanisms. The technical, economic, political, and legal aspects of managing spent fuel are explored, paying particular attention to Eastern Europe, Western Europe, the Indian Ocean Basin, Asia, the Middle East, and Latin America. Public attitudes toward nuclear energy, especially with regard to the issue of radioactive waste disposal, are also considered. The final chapter looks at the political aspects of nuclear nonproliferation in general and of spent fuel management in particular. This monograph will be of interest to government officials and policymakers concerned with nuclear energy and nonproliferation.

We are a People Paul R. Spickard, W. Jeffrey Burroughs, 2000 As the twentieth century closes, ethnicity stands out as a powerful force for binding people together in a sense of shared origins and worldview. But this emphasis on a people's uniqueness can also develop into a distorted rationale for insularity, inter-ethnic animosity, or, as we have seen in this century, armed conflict. Ethnic identity clearly holds very real consequences for individuals and peoples, yet there is not much agreement on what exactly it is or how it is formed. The growing recognition that ethnicity is not fixed and inherent, but elastic and constructed, fuels the essays in this collection. Regarding identity as a dynamic, ongoing, formative and transformative process, We Are a People considers narrative—the creation and maintenance of a common story—as the keystone in building a sense of peoplehood. Myths of origin, triumph over adversity, migration, and so forth, chart a group's history, while continual additions to the larger narrative stress moving into the future as a people. Still, there is more to our stories as individuals and groups. Most of us are aware that we take on different roles and project different aspects of ourselves depending on the situation. Some individuals who have inherited multiple group affiliations from their families view themselves not as this or that but all at once. So too with ethnic groups. The so-called hyphenated Americans are not the only people in the world to recognize or embrace their plurality. This relatively recent acknowledgment of multiplicity has potentially wide implications, destabilizing the limited (and limiting) categories inscribed in, for example, public policy and discourse on race relations. We Are a People is a path-breaking volume, boldly illustrating how ethnic identity works in the real world. Author note: Paul Spickard is Professor and Chair of Asian American Studies at UC Santa Barbara and is author of Mixed Blood. W. Jeffrey Burroughs is Professor of Psychology at Brigham Young University, Hawaii.

Pricing no agribusiness Claudio Luiz Eckhard,2023-12-01 No dia a dia do agronegócio, a pressão sobre os preços é constante. De um lado estão seus dirigentes, representando os sócios e acionistas, exigindo metas de faturamento e rentabilidade; do outro, estão os agentes de venda e clientes barganhando por preços mais acessíveis além de outras vantagens. Isso tudo sem contar a ação de seus competidores e imposições do mercado. Administrar tantas formas de pressão e manter satisfeitas as partes relacionadas é o grande desafio do gestor de pricing. Este livro trata de um amplo espectro de temas relacionados à precificação do agronegócio. Desde as variáveis, recursos e limitações envolvidas até as estratégias, políticas, táticas, métodos e ferramentas utilizadas. Seu objetivo é ampliar o domínio do ofertante sobre o preço de venda de seus produtos e, com ele, melhorar sua margem de rentabilidade. Aplicação: Definição e gerenciamento dos preços de venda.
