Discovering Cognitive Architecture by Selectively Influencing Mental Processes, 2012 One of the most successful methods for discovering the way mental processes are organized is to observe the effects in experiments of selectively influencing the processes. Selective influence is crucial in techniques such as Sternberg's additive factor method for reaction times and Jacoby's process dissociation procedure for accuracy. The successful uses of selective influence have encouraged application extensions to complex architectures, to dependent variables such as evoked potentials, and to complex interpretations. But the common themes have become lost in the details of separate uses and specialized terminology. The book gives an introductory and unified account of the many uses of the technique in cognitive psychology. Related models from operations research and human factors are covered. The applications include dual tasks, visual and memory search, timing, categorization, and recall. The book takes a self-contained approach starting with clear explanations of the elementary notions and a building to advanced techniques. The book is written with graduate students in mind, but has content of interest to all researchers in cognitive science and cognitive engineering.

Molecular Aspects of Botulinum Neurotoxin Keith A. Foster, 2014-07-08 Currently, there are tremendous advances being made in understanding the basic science of both the structure and function of botulinum neurotoxins. This knowledge is opening up opportunities in regard to both therapeutic uses and treatment and protection options for civil and bio-defense applications. This volume fully evaluates the status of neurotoxin research and exploitation with a focus on clinical application. The book is a multi-authored collection of chapters written by the leading authorities responsible for the current scientific and clinical research that is advancing the understanding and exploitation of the neurotoxins and is both up to date and authoritative.

Botulinum Neurotoxins Andreas Rummel, Thomas Binz, 2012-12-14 The extremely potent substance botulinum neurotoxin (BoNT) has attracted much interest in diverse fields. Originally identified as cause for the rare but deadly disease botulism, military and terrorist intended to misuse this sophisticated molecule as biological weapon. This caused its classification as select agent category A by the Centers for Diseases Control and Prevention and the listing in the Biological and Toxin Weapons Convention. Later, the civilian use of BoNT as long acting peripheral muscle relaxant has turned this molecule into an indispensable pharmaceutical world wide with annual revenues >$1.5 billion. Also basic scientists value the botulinum neurotoxin as molecular tool for dissecting mechanisms of exocytosis. This book will cover the most recent molecular details of botulinum neurotoxin, its mechanism of action as well as its detection and application.

Mental Spaces in Discourse and Interaction Todd Oakley, Anders Hougaard, 2008-03-06 The cognitive theory of mental spaces and conceptual integration (MSCI) is a twenty-year-old, cross-disciplinary enterprise that presently unfolds in academic circles on many levels of reflection and research. One important area of inquiry where MSCI can be of immediate use is in the pragmatics of written and spoken discourse and interaction. At the same time, empirical insights from the fields of interaction and discourse provide a necessary fundament for the development of the cognitive theories of discourse. This collection of seven chapters and three commentaries aims at evaluating and developing MSCI as a theory of meaning construction in discourse and interaction. MSCI will benefit greatly not only from empirical support but also from clearer refinement of its methodology and philosophical foundations. This volume presents the latest work on discourse and interaction from a mental spaces perspective, surely to be of interest to a broad range of researchers in discourse analysis.

Dynamics and Biogenesis of Membranes Josef A.F. Op den Kamp, 2013-06-29 Membrane proteins, lipids and their glycosylated derivatives are discussed both with respect to their biosynthesis as well as regarding their mutual interaction and assembly into functional membranes. Topics cover a large variety of systems and cells: investigation on virus membranes as well as pro- and eukaryotic cells are included.

Persistent Viral Infections R. Ahmed, Irvin Chen, 1999 Persistent Viral Infections Edited by Rafi Ahmed Emory Vaccine Center, Atlanta, USA and Irvin S. Y. Chen UCLA School of Medicine, Los Angeles, USA During the past decade much of our attention has focused on diseases associated with viral persistence. Major breakthroughs in immunology, and the advent of molecular approaches to study pathogenesis have increased our understanding of the complex virus-host interactions that occur during viral persistence. Persistent Viral Infections focuses on: * The pathogenesis and immunology of chronic infections * Animal models that provide, or have the potential to provide, major insights This volume will be essential reading for virologists, immunologists, oncologists and neurologists.

Upregulation of Interleukin 2 Promoter Transactivation by the Tax and Rex Proteins of the Human T Cell Leukemia Virus Type 1 Virginia Elaine Curtiss, 1997 HTLV-1, the first identified human retrovirus, is the etiologic agent of Adult T cell Leukemia and other lymphoproliferative diseases. It can, through its regulatory proteins Tax and Rex, immortalize human T cells. Tax, the viral transactivator, interacts with cellular transcription factors including members of the NF[κ]B/Rel and bZIP families to upregulate proteins involved in T cell activation and proliferation including interleukin 2 (IL-2), a pivotal growth factor for T cells. Studies with deletion and site-specific mutants demonstrate that the CD28 response element and adjacent, promoter-proximal AP-1 binding site of the IL2 promoter are required for activity and together form a Tax-response element. This element placed in the context of a heterologous promoter responds to Tax with or without stimulation, although the response is amplified by agents that mimic signaling by the T cell Receptor. Tax transactivation of the IL-2 promoter, like CD28 costimulation, requires activation of PKC and Ca pathways, synergistically increases promoter activity and resists suppression by Cyclosporin A. Rex strongly enhances Tax transactivation of both the intact promoter and the isolated CD28RE/AP-1 element, although Rex alone does not upregulate these constructs. Tax mutants with disruptions in either the NF[κ]B-interaction domain or the activation/bZIP protein dimerization domain, reveal that the NF[κ]B-interaction domain is dispensable but the Tax activation domain is required and sufficient to minimally activate the IL-2 promoter. Both domains appear to be necessary for the activation of the isolated CD28RE/AP-1 sequence. Preliminary results suggest that the promoter-proximal NFAT binding site adjacent to the CD28RE/AP-1 sequence is necessary for Tax transaction of the IL-2 promoter in the absence of Rex. However, this site appears to interfere with Tax and Rex transactivation of an isolated CD28RE/AP-1/NFAT sequence in the context of a heterologous promoter.

Story and Simulations for Serious Games Nick Iuppa, Terry Borst, 2012-07-26 How to create a simulation where participants have a sense of freedom and personal control while still maintaining the structure necessary for an effective story is a difficult task indeed. This book examines how to create an engaging, effective story (necessary to teach participants), while relating practical considerations of building a simulation. It also looks at stories as classic ways of teaching and gathering knowledge and considers other theories of interactive narrative design such as synthetic story creation and management and participant-generated story experiences. It also discusses enabling technologies in artificial intelligence, synthetic characters design and development, speech recognition technology, 3D modelling, and the future of story-driven games. Story Driven Simulations reviews the existing efforts in this field as well as focusing on the recent efforts of Paramount Pictures and The Institute for Creative Technologies at the University of Southern California, where this expert author team created successful simulations for the U.S. Army, Department of Defense, as well as other educational simulations.
