Meme Wars Kalle Lasn,Adbusters,2013-01-15 From the editor and magazine that started and named the Occupy Wall Street movement, Meme Wars: The Creative Destruction of Neoclassical Economics is an articulation of what could be the next steps in rethinking and remaking our world that challenges and debunks many of the assumptions of neoclassical economics and brings to light a more ecological model. Meme Wars aims to accelerate the shift into this new paradigm that takes into account psychonomics, bionomics, and other aspects of our physical and mental environment that are often left out in discussions of economics. Like Adbusters, the book will be image heavy and full-color throughout. Lasn calls it a textbook for the future that provides the building blocks, in texts and visuals, for a new way of looking at and changing our world. Through an examination of alternative economies, Lasn hopes to spur students to become barefoot economists and to see that a humanization of economics is possible. Meme Wars will include contributions from Nobel Prize winner Joseph Stiglitz, Paul Samuelson, George Akerlof, Lourdes Benería, Julie Matthaei, Manfred Max-Neef, David Orrell, Paul Gilding, Mathis Wackernagel and the father of ecological economics Herman Daly, among others. Based on ideas that were presented in a special issue of Adbusters entitled Thought Control in Economics: Beyond the Growth Paradigm / An Activist Toolkit, Meme Wars will help move forward the Occupy Wall Street movement.

Talking Points Aaron S. Battle,2020-12-04 The poetry of "Talking Points" is an edited version of the hundreds of "poetic essays" I've written in my adult lifetime. As would be expected, I've lived through several different "lens periods" in my life. From the political to the spiritual. From the romantic, to the downright delusional. Each poem represents "where my mind was" at that given time in my history. For example, the poem "Johannesburg Blues" was written about the strife in South Africa, before Nelson Mandela would emerge. The poem, "The Spirit Horse," was written to honor my late Cherokee grandfather. During the seventies, when I was in my twenties, I read a survey from Random House Publishing, about the reading habits of different groups of Americans. When it came to poetry, the survey read, "College educated females, forty-five and over" were the largest reading group. I thought to myself, "Oh God, that's the end of my career!"

The Sight of Blood Michele Taylor,2001-04-24 A murder mystery. A love story. A social commentary. All these describe The Sight of Blood. Set in a small Michigan town in the 70's, the disappearance of a young woman and the murder of a beloved citizen seem to have no connection to the people and the officials of Grangeville, but to Jane Fleming, the town's first woman deputy, there IS a connection. But hampered by few clues, and the hostility of the townspeople and the sheriff's department, including Sheriff Ralph Parsons, to a female deputy, Jane has to struggle to find the evidence of the connection. But supporting her is her lover Michael "Butch" Przybylski, a cocky mechanic and owner of a filling station in Grangeville. Jane with her passionate and barely discreet affair with Butch further shocks the townspeople. The sight of blood is also filled with the characters and homespun lifestyle of small town America, examined during Jane's investigation and relationship with Butch; Tim Usher, the town's newspaper publisher, who has his own feelings about Jane, George Robbins, who gets Jane out of a tight situation. These and other characters, plus the Michigan setting, make The Sight of Blood a fun and entertaining read.

Home, Sweet Irish Home Michele Brouder, Maggie might almost think Jake was perfect, except that he wants to tear down her home to build a golf course. Maggie Moran is an 8th generation Moran to live in the cottage by the sea. She arrived as a teenager from Dublin to live with her grandparents and since then, has carved out a perfect life for herself. The sentimental attachment to her home is strong and she vows that she will not sell. Easier said than done, when the pressure is put on by the handsome and charismatic businessman from the States. Jake Ballard is in Ireland for the summer to get his golf course and resort off the ground in the scenic County Clare cliffside town. He planned to stay only three months in the Emerald Isle, but his undeniable attraction to the feisty Maggie has him wondering if he truly wants to leave—or destroy everything she loves. All is fair in love and war, but can Jake and Maggie possibly figure out a way to mix business with pleasure and have what they both really want?
