Models and Tools for Managing Development Processes Bernhard Westfechtel,2003-07-31 The development of products in disciplines such as mechanical, electrical, or software engineering is a challenging task. Costs have to be reduced, the time-to-market has to be shortened, and quality has to be improved. Skilled engineers and sophisticated tools for supporting technical work are necessary prerequisites, yet they are not sufficient for meeting these ambitious goals. In addition, the work of developers must be coordinated so that they cooperate smoothly. To this end, the steps of the development process have to be planned, an engineer executing a task must be provided with documents and tools, the results of development activities have to be fed back to management which in turn has to adjust the plan accordingly, the documents produced in different working areas have to be kept consistent with each other, etc. This book reports on models and tools for managing development processes. It provides both a survey of the current state of the art and presents our own contributions. The material covered in this book is based on research in different engineering disciplines (mechanical, software, and chemical engineering). It presents a unified view on the management of development processes in these disciplines.

Conflict Resolution Using the Graph Model: Strategic Interactions in Competition and Cooperation Haiyan Xu, Keith W. Hipel, D. Marc Kilgour, Liping Fang, 2018-05-11 This cutting-edge book presents the theory and practice of the Graph Model for Conflict Resolution (GMCR), which is used for strategically investigating disputes in any field to enable informed decision making. It clearly explains how GMCR can determine what is the best a particular decision maker (DM) can independently achieve in dynamic interaction with others. Moves and counter-moves follow various stability definitions reflecting human behavior under conflict. The book defines a wide range of preference structures to represent a DM's comparisons of states or scenarios: equally preferred, more or less preferred; unknown; degrees of strength of preference; and hybrid. It vividly describes how GMCR can ascertain whether a DM can fare even better by cooperating with others in a coalition. The book portrays how a conflict can evolve from the status quo to a desirable resolution, and provides a universal design for a decision support system to implement the innovative decision technologies using the matrix formulation of GMCR. Further, it illustrates the key ideas using real-world conflicts and supplies problems at the end of each chapter. As such, this highly instructive book benefits teachers, mentors, students and practitioners in any area where conflict arises.

Graph Transformations Hartmut Ehrig, Arend Rensink, Grzegorz Rozenberg, Andy Schürr, 2010-09-27
This book constitutes the proceedings of the 5th International Conference on Graph Transformations, ICGT 2010, held in Twente, The Netherlands, in September/October 2010. The 22 papers presented were carefully reviewed and selected from 48 submissions. These papers mirror the wide-ranged ongoing research activities in the theory and application of graph transformation. They are concerned with different kinds of graph transformation approaches, their algebraic foundations, composition and analysis, the relation to logic, as well as various applications, mainly to model transformation and distributed systems.
