Notable Americans of Czechoslovak Ancestry in Arts and Letters and in Education Miloslav Rechcigl Jr., 2021-11-02 As pointed out in my last two publications, no comprehensive study has been undertaken about the American Learned Men and Women with Czechoslovak roots. The aim of this work is to correct this glaring deficiency, with the focus on immigration from the period of mass migration and beyond, irrespective whether they were born in their European ancestral homes or whether they have descended from them. Whereas in the two mentioned monographs, the emphasis has been on scholars and social and natural scientists; and men and women in medicine, applied sciences and engineering, respectively, the present compendium deals with notable Americans of Czechoslovak ancestry in arts and letters, and in education. With respect to women, although most professional fields were closed to them through much of the nineteenth century, the area of arts and letters was opened to them, as noted earlier and as this compendium authenticates.

Human Michael Blaney,2015-03-06 A boy who had to grow up as a man as challenges he faced were the sort some of us never even think about. But, one after another after another, this young man with heart of gold and the love of man kept getting his faith tested as man himself would treat this young man like he was nothing more than gutter trash. But the young man kept believing. The true story of one of Hollywood's most prolific minds as a screenwriter, author, graphic novelist and songwriter. Only for his later years for this man to have to put his dreams aside for the sake of helping others and that road would leave to an attempted suicide on his part and the hills after that would test any man's faith. Michael Blaney puts others first, discover a life filled with learning how to forgive and lessons that you would only go through in a horror movie. A true survivor.

Resounding the Rhetorical Byron Hawk, 2018-07-31

Resounding the Rhetorical offers an original critical and theoretical examination of composition as a quasi-object. As composition flourishes in multiple media (digital, sonic, visual, etc.), Byron Hawk seeks to connect new materialism with current composition scholarship and critical theory. Using sound and music as his examples, he demonstrates how a quasi-object can and does materialize for communicative and affective expression, and becomes a useful mechanism for the study and execution of composition as a discipline. Through careful readings of Serres, Latour, Deleuze, Heidegger, and others, Hawk reconstructs key concepts in the field including composition, process, research, collaboration, publics, and rhetoric. His work delivers a cutting-edge response to the state of the field, where it is headed, and the possibilities for postprocess and postwriting composition and rhetoric.
