Overcoming Uncertainty of Institutional Environment as a Tool of Global Crisis Management Elena G.

Popkova,2017-09-03 This book is the result of recent research by contemporary scientists on topics which were discussed at the conference of the same name in Volgograd, Russia in April 2017. The global economic system is currently in a stage of active formation and development: its boundaries and conditions of existence are constantly changing, which is accompanied by crises that influence the economic systems of its member countries. In order to solve problems emanating from global economic crises, a new direction was formed in modern science – global crisis management. Development of this direction requires the formation of the accompanying categorical apparatus, the development of a corresponding scientific and methodological basis, and the engagement in extensive practical research.

Uncensored Poetry Sergei Gora,2018-03-24 Sergei Gora, Russian linguist and poet, addresses various social phenomena which have been considered taboo by both the Soviet authorities, and the modern day Russian regime. The aforementioned is combined with the author's sarcasm directed at allegedly reputable and... ineffective international institutions along with several western leaders - useful idiots, as V. Lenin called influential leftist activists of the West. In social and political matters, the author touches upon popular beliefs, which often appear to be biased, superstitious or fake. The main idea of Uncensored Poetry is reflected in by the utmost priority of the societal truth over individual authoritarian wrongdoings. In depicting various officials, law enforcement and religious characters, Sergei Gora uses different language related techniques to provide colorful and register-relevant expression of the human attitude. Please, enjoy his stylistic and idiosyncratic virtuosity.

A Novel Without Lies Анатолий Мариенгоф,2000 This is the story of an extraordinary friendship and an extraordinary poet seen through the prism of an extraordinary time and place--the upside-down world of Moscow just after the Revolution. By the time Sergei Esenin (1895-1925) met Mariengof in 1918, his lyrical verse had made him a national celebrity. The cultivated Mariengof found the peasant-born Esenin provincial at first. But soon the two would be sitting up at night hammering out their Imagist manifesto. Mariengof traces Esenin's career in Bohemian Moscow as well as in Europe where the poet travelled with his exotic and much older wife, the American dancer Isadora Duncan. A self-described genius, Esenin was devastated by his non-reception in the West where no one knew him (or read poetry). His response was to ignore the West, moving through it like a blind man. When Esenin divorced Duncan and returned to Moscow, he was a changed man: crushed by the West, disillusioned by Soviet Russia. As well as increasingly unstable and alcoholic. Soon after parting company with the Imagists, he hung himself, having written a last poem in his own blood.

A Hundred Voices Sergei Lebedev,2022-11-10 An anthology of Russian short stories, from the 19th century to today, selected by Sergei Lebedev.

Contemporary Russian Novelists Serge Persky,2016-05-11 The principal aim of this book is to give the reader a good general knowledge of Russian literature as it is to-day. The author, Serge Persky, has subordinated purely critical material, because he wants his readers to form their own judgments and criticize for themselves. The element of literary criticism is not, however, by any means entirely lacking. I Want a Baby and Other Plays Sergei Tretyakov,2020-07-09 When Sergei Tretyakov's ground-breaking play, I Want a Baby, was banned by Stalin's censor in 1927, it was a signal that the radical and innovative theatre of the early Soviet years was to be brought to an end. A glittering, unblinking exploration of the realities of post-revolutionary Soviet life, I Want a Baby marks a high point in modernist experimental drama. Tretyakov's plays are notable for their formal originality and their revolutionary content. The World Upside Down, which was staged by Vsevolod Meyerhold in 1923, concerns a failed agrarian revolution. A Wise Man, originally directed by the great film director and Tretyakov's friend, Sergei Eisenstein, is a clown show set in the Paris of the émigré White Russians. Are You Listening, Moscow?! and Gas Masks are 'agit-melodramas', fierce, fast-moving and edgy. And Roar, China! dramatises an actual incident in the West's oppression of China, when a British gunboat captain threatened to blow the city of Wanxien to bits. Roar, China! was translated into many languages and produced in cities across the world. The nerve this play touched may be gauged from the fact that it was staged in Yiddish translation in the Czystochowa concentration camp by Jewish prisoners during World War II. These plays are not only stirring in their themes, they are also hugely significant in their construction. Tretyakov's early plays led directly to Eisenstein's highly influential theory of 'the montage of attractions', while later his ideas were crucial in the formation of Bertolt Brecht's theory of epic theatre. The reason why is evident in his plays, now collected and published for the first time. Translated by Robert Leach and Stephen Holland. Introduction and translations of The World Upside Down, A Wise Man, Are you Listening, Moscow?!, Gas Masks and I Want a Baby (second version): Robert Leach. Translations of Roar, China! and I Want a Baby (first version): Stephen Holland. Publishers Maxim Hodak & Max Mendor
