Childhood in South East Europe Slobodan Naumović,Miroslav Jovanović,2004 Rapid growth of interest in the research of childhood during the last several decades can be regarded not only as an indicator but also as an important factor in the long-term processes of changes, which have radically transformed history as a scientific discipline. With the growth of the history of childhood as a discipline a series of problems neglected until then has been opened, and along the questions about the new sources and equivalent methods of research. This is especially true for historiography in the South East European countries, where social history and historical anthropology is still marginal. The volume comprises 18 contributions to the topic with authors from all countries of the region, focussing on the 19th and 20th century. Topics like upbringing of female children in Serbia or rural childhoods in mountain regions of Austria and Greece are as well touched as children and war and children and migration. This is the first volume that provides an international readership with an overall picture on childhood in South Eastern Europe.

Migration In, From, and to Southeastern Europe: Ways and strategies of migrating Klaus Roth,Jutta Lauth Bacas,2011 This volume is part two of a selection of articles on migration movements in, to, and from Southeast Europe. It aims at a better understanding of the complex migration processes which deeply affect Balkan societies, both presently and in the past. The articles presented here focus on the ways and strategies of migrants, on irregular migration in and to, as well as on transit migration through the region, while others deal with the effects of return migration on Balkan societies. They present empirical findings on migration which are of interest not only for experts on Southeast Europe and on migration processes in general, but also for those interested in European integration and in the consequences of EU migration policies.
