Digital Authorship R. Lyle Skains,2019-02-07 This Element looks at contemporary authorship via three key authorial roles: indie publisher, hybrid author, and fanfiction writer. The twenty-first century's digital and networked media allows writers to disintermediate the established structures of royalty publishing, and to distribute their work directly to - and often in collaboration with - their readers. This demotic author, one who is 'of the people', often works in genres considered 'popular' or 'derivative'. The demotic author eschews the top-down communication flow of author > text > reader, in favor of publishing platforms that generate attention capital, such as blogs, fanfiction communities, and social media.

The Naked Truth about Book Publishing Linda Houle,2010-04 Like the legendary Phoenix-with a cycle of death in flames, then rebirth-books, and publishing, are undergoing a major metamorphosis. The Naked Truth about Book Publishing takes a quick and dirty peek at the realities of publishing. Whether you are an author, independent publisher, or just an avid reader, it's critical to know what's happening and how current changes affect you! Ebooks are now widely accepted, displacing print book sales and transforming a multi-billion dollar industry. Bookstores are fighting for survival. They're either struggling to adapt, or going out of business. Publishing giants are developing new business models to stay afloat. For decades they've counted on a few top name authors' best-selling hardcover titles to support the rest of their books. Old wasteful printing methods are fading away, and nearly all paper books of the future will be made to order. Stores that still carry books will only stock the best-selling titles-the sales publishers still count on. Want to browse a bookstore and discover something new to read? In the future you'll use an electronic catalog at a store kiosk-or search for interesting titles on-line. If you're a writer you must pay attention to what's happening in the world of book publishing. The classic, though challenging method of finding an agent to shop a book to a top publisher is no longer the best choice for many authors. In a shrinking market, many agents are already looking for other jobs. Small, independent presses are growing in popularity. Many use a traditional business model, then work hand in hand with authors to develop and promote their books. Other choices include DIY companies-to get a book into print for a fee. And a growing number of people do everything themselves. Setting up their own businesses and self-publishing their manuscripts. Some by-pass print altogether. Ebook publishing is fast and easy and now open to everyone! A few top-name authors are leaving their big publishers and bringing their ebooks directly to readers. Read the Naked Truth about Book Publishing to help set goals and make the best choice for your manuscript. The resources and links provide nearly everything you'll need to get your book into print or published, and into readers' hands!

New Technology and Education Anthony Edwards,2012-01-26 New Technology and Education explores the benefits and dangers of the increasing use of technology in education, drawing on different cultural perspectives from across the globe to consider a variety of viewpoints. The reader is encouraged to engage with each facet of the debate considering the philosophical, psychological and sociological implications of the relationship between technology and education. Recent debates and developments are considered, including: • What is the relationship between creativity, education and new technology? • Are subject boundaries blurred by the use of new technologies? • How do we plan for technologies becoming redundant? The Green Book Mór Jókai, 1897 A blizzard is covering the roads with a thick coating of snow. The horses are up to their fetlocks in it. The dark-green firs bend beneath its weight, and what has melted in the midday sun already hangs from the slender branches of the undergrowth in thick masses of icicles; and as the wind sweeps through the forest the ice-covered leaves and branches ring and jingle like fairy bells. Ever and anon the moon shines out from amid the fast-flying clouds; then, as though it has seen enough, hides itself again under the ghostly mist. The sighing of the wind through the forest is like the trembling of fever-stricken nature. In the stillness of night, through the pathless forest, rides a troop of horsemen. Their little long-maned horses sniff their way with low, sunk necks; by the shaggy fur caps of their riders, and their long lances hanging far back at their sides, they are to be recognized as a party of Don Cossacks.

The Orphan's Father Daniel Balogh, "The Orphan's Father" is a story, a dream, a vision. It is an honest stack of imagery about hope and coping. It is a collection of thoughts and fears and abandonment. What it isn't, is a straightforward, "classic" read with a clear sequence of events lined up to please the brain. Instead, it was written to be felt, seen and lived. Leo Brown is a lonely, middle-aged man who tries to survive by escaping into the past, and by seeking approval from the ones who once mattered; but after all, he is just a man, like millions of his kind: a wrinkled, faded, red balloon, that was left to shrink in a corner of his youth.

Stories by English Authors: Africa Various, Do I know why Tom Donahue is called Lucky Tom? Yes, I do; and that is more than one in ten of those who call him so can say. I have knocked about a deal in my time, and seen some strange sights, but none stranger than the way in which Tom gained that sobriquet, and his fortune with it. For I was with him at the time. Tell it?

Oh, certainly; but it is a longish story and a very strange one; so fill up your glass again, and light another cigar, while I try to reel it off. Yes, a very strange one; beats some fairy stories I have heard; but it's true, sir, every word of it. There are men alive at Cape Colony now who'll remember it and confirm what I say. Many a time has the tale been told round the fire in Boers' cabins from Orange state to Griqualand; yes, and out in the bush and at the diamond-fields too.

The Best Ghost Stories Various, This relation is matter of fact, and attended with such circumstances, as may induce any reasonable man to believe it. It was sent by a gentleman, a justice of peace, at Maidstone, in Kent, and a very intelligent person, to his friend in London, as it is here worded; which discourse is attested by a very sober and understanding gentlewoman, a kinswoman of the said gentleman's, who lives in Canterbury, within a few doors of the house in which the within-named Mrs. Bargrave lives; who believes his kinswoman to be of so discerning a spirit, as not to be put upon by any fallacy; and who positively assured him that the whole matter, as it is related and laid down, is really true; and what she herself had in the same words, as near as may be, from Mrs. Bargrave's own mouth, who, she knows, had no reason to invent and publish such a story, or any design to forge and tell a lie, being a woman of much honesty and virtue, and her whole life a course, as it were, of piety. The use which we ought to make of it, is to consider, that there is a life to come after this, and a just God, who will retribute to every one according to the deeds done in the body; and therefore to reflect upon our past course of life we have led in the world; that our time is short and uncertain; and that if we would escape the punishment of the ungodly, and receive the reward of the righteous, which is the laying hold of eternal life, we ought, for the time to come, to return to God by a speedy repentance, ceasing to do evil, and learning to do well: to seek after God early, if happily He may be found of us, and lead such lives for the future, as may be well pleasing in His sight.

The Bravo of Venice; a romance Heinrich Zschokke, 2014-10-01 It was evening. Multitudes of light clouds, partially illumined by the moonbeams, overspread the horizon, and through them floated the full moon in tranquil majesty, while her splendour was reflected by every wave of the Adriatic Sea. All was hushed around; gently was the water rippled by the night wind; gently did the night wind sigh through the Colonnades of Venice. It was midnight; and still sat a stranger, solitary and sad, on the border of the great canal. Now with a glance he measured the battlements and proud towers of the city; and now he fixed his melancholy eyes upon the waters with a vacant stare. At length he spoke - Wretch that I am, whither shall I go? Here sit I in Venice, and what would it avail to wander further? What will become of me? All now slumber, save myself! the Doge rests on his couch of down; the beggar's head presses his straw pillow; but for ME there is no bed except the cold, damp earth! There is no gondolier so wretched but he knows where to find work by day and shelter by night—while I— while I—Oh! dreadful is the destiny of which I am made the sport! He began to examine for the twentieth time the pockets of his tattered garments. No! not one paolo, by heavens!—and I hunger almost to death. He unsheathed his sword; he waved it in the moonshine, and sighed, as he marked the glittering of the steel.

The Mirror Peter Poczai, When we look in the mirror, we face reality, which is not acceptable for everyone. Furthermore, according to T.S. Eliot, "Humankind cannot stand very much reality." But if the fundamental truth of the mirror's reflection is unbearable for us, then do we balk at the other disgusting truths of the world as well? If the vain, through the waving glass of the mirror, sees himself, will he admit his mistake or break the mirror in his rage? Of course, we can see things as Jules de Gaultier does, saying "Imagination is the only weapon in the war against reality." Imagination really sends us to a dream world and its beautifying power has the greatest effect on the distant memories. But does it really worth to hide in an ivory tower away from reality, or would it be better to completely live it through? In the book, this debate is presented with the help of sonnet pairs and the theme is the man itself. During the metaphoric journey through the human body, the "imagination" and "reality" confront and try to find solution, which can be nothing else but the hope itself. According to Friedrich Schiller, "Now the world becomes old, now again it is young, / But The better's forever the word on the tongue."

The Autobiography of George Joseph Popják Popják György, Popják György (1914-1998) orvos-biológus Magyarországon született. Messzire vetődött született hazájától. A tudományos életbe már George Popjak néven került. Nemzetközi hírű tudós, tudományos akadémiák sorának tagja, kétszázharminc szakkikk publikálójára, a UCLA professzora. Az egyetem után Szegeden kutatót, majd a harmincas évektől Angliában élt. 1968-tól Los Angeles-ben dolgozott, haláláig a UCLA professzoraként tevékenykedett. Többször találkoztam a zseniális Emberrel, a tudományos gondolkodás szigorához a mindennapokban is ragaszkodó Mesterrel. Ilyen részletesen nem ismertem az életét, mint az önéletrajz feltárja. Megrázó, hogy miután gyerekként családjával - a trianoni határon túlesve - Jugoszláviában bolyongásra kényszerültek, szülei sorsa rajta is betelt ismét: éppen akkor kapott ösztöndíjat Londonba, amikor kitört a második világháború. Folytatódott a tipikus kelet-közép európai sors, változó határok, értelmetlen népharagok között. Önéletrajzát feleségétől kaptam meg. Gyuri bácsi, hiszen így hívtam, angolul írta a memoárt, bár kifogástalanul beszélt magyarul, hibátlanul és választékosan. Sajnos az emlékezés töredékben maradt. Már nem volt ideje befejezni. Felesége utószava zárja a naplót. Azóta a hű társ, az életét végigkísérő asszony is eltávozott. Ez a tudósi életsors tanulságos. Biztat az értékek megbecsülésére. Popják György életpályája példa az országokon, földrészeken átívelő tenniakarásra és minőség iránti elkötelezettségre. Vannak ma ilyen felívelő magyar életsorsok? Biztosan, és nagyon fontosnak érzem, hogy tudjunk róla, csakúgy, mint Popják György történetéről is. The Golden Age in Transylvania Mór Jókai, 1899 Before we cross the Kiralyhago, let us cast a parting glance at Hungary. I will unroll before your eyes a scene, partly the result of an adverse fate, partly of a dark mystery, representing joy and also deep sorrow. An incident of a moment becomes the turning-point of a whole century. My soul is saddened by the images thus conjured up; the figures out of the past blind my sight. Would that my hand were mighty enough to write down what my soul sees in that magic mirror. May your impressions, your recollections, complete the scene wherever the writer fails through weariness. We find ourselves in the valley of the Drave, in one of those boundless tracts where even the wild beasts lose themselves. Here are primeval forests, the roots of which rest in the water of a great swamp encircled not by water lilies and reed-grass, but by giant trees whose branches, dropping below the surface, form new roots in the quickening water. Here the swan builds its nest; this is the haunt of the heron and all those wild creatures one of which only now and then marches out into more frequented regions. On the higher ground, where in late summer the waters ebb, spring such flowers as might have been seen just after the deluge, so luxuriant and so strange is their mighty growth out of the slimy mud. The branches of ivy, stout as grape vines, reach from tree to tree winding about the trunks and decking the dark maples as if some wood-nymph had garlanded her own consecrated grove.
