THE KISMET OF ANDOKIE Chris Ugim,2015-04-10 THE KISMET OF ANDOKIE is a story of two teens, as Chris Ugim reveals the antidotes to the decline in teen moral values. It’s a thrilling piece of expository write-up, full of suspense. It is an antique story that invokes a culture of the better people; covering also a bit of the efic and Yoruba mores. It reveals some of the lost traditions of the Nigerian people in some parts of the country, in this civilized age–the era of technology; the reason why some things are the way they are. It blends true life events and historic, fictional prevalence. A guide for parents, teenagers, guardians, and yet-to-be parents, fused in one interesting story.

Food and Feed from Legumes and Oilseeds J. Smartt,Emmanuel Nwokolo,2012-12-06 Oilseeds and legumes provide a significant proportion of the protein and energy requirements of the world population. This important new book provides comprehensive details of the main oil seed and legume crops focusing particularly on the nutritional aspects of these crops which are, or have the potential to be, more widely exploited in developing countries where are or have the potential to be, more widely exploited in developing countries where protein and energy malnutrition continue to escalate. The predicted rapid rise of populations in many world regions which are increasingly vulnerable to food shortages means that a full knowledge of the nutritional significance of available crops is vital in helping to prevent potential calamities. Food and Feed from Legumes and Oil Seeds has been written by a team of international contributors, each with direct experience of these important crops and their nutritional merits, and the editors are both international experts in the crops covered. This book will become of great value to nutritionists, food and feed scientists and technologists, agricultural scientists and all those involved with overseas developments and food aid organizations.

Rouse of Widowhood Uchenna Ejiogu,2023-10-13 “Women like myself!” I saluted to a rousing reception. We are here! the women chorused. I stood in the middle of the women. They gathered around me on all sides at the square entrance of Eke-oha market. “Women like myself!!” “We are here!!” “Women like myself!!!” “We are here!!!” They responded a third time. Today, the wind has blown, and we can now see the behind of the fowl. We now know that these white rulers do not like us, and our men do not like us too. “Who bears nine months of labor pains?” “We do, we do.” “Who bears all the labor of housework and raising the children?” “We do, we do.” “Who tends the men and nourishes all their desires?” “We do, we do.” “Women like myself!” “We are here!” “We shall not be counted. We will not pay tax. We will not pay tax because we bear the children and we bear the fire of kitchen coals on our palms.” “It is the truth, it is the truth.” Where the rat eats is where it falls. The men must tell us why the hen must always be spread-eagled for the randy cockerel.” Today, we will burn down the courthouse, and we will have their red caps. The women needed no more prodding. My last statement had aroused their anger.

The Wachau Cookbook Christine Saahs,2015-02-09 LOVE is always one of the ingredients when Christine Saahs cooks - a love for the Wachau, for her guests, and for the region's outstanding natural products. When she quickly darts out to her herb garden to pluck ripe saffron from her crocuses, gives her applesauce the finishing touch with a sprinkle of rose petals or grates horseradish over carp, she always knows why she is doing it: not only to turn her food into something special but also because she wants to give her dishes a vital, invigorating power. For Christine Saahs, who runs the venerable Nikolaihof, in the Wachau Valley, biodynamic agriculture and foodstuffs have been a way of life for over 40 years. Food is good for the soul, but only when it is truly delicious. And this is precisely what the recipes of Christine Saahs guarantee. She reveals her long-held secrets for interpreting the classics of Wachau cuisine, and these tips promise perfect results and delighted guests in your own home. Christine Saahs shares something else as well: memories of life in the Wachau and the culinary traditions of this unique region along the River Danube, preserved in her stories about the days of her parents and grandparents and about her own childhood.
