Interfamily Tanci Writing in Nineteenth-Century China Yu Zhang,2017-12-13 Employing an interdisciplinary approach, this is the first monograph to frame three once widely-read tanci fiction as interrelated texts composed by three generations of members of one extended gentry family in nineteenth-century China.

Women's Tanci Fiction in Late Imperial and Early Twentieth-Century China Li Guo, 2015-07-15 In Women's Tanci Fiction in Late Imperial and Early Modern China, Li Guo presents the first book-length study in English of women's tanci fiction, the distinctive Chinese form of narrative written in rhymed lines during the late imperial to early modern period (related to, but different from, the orally performed version also called tanci) She explores the tradition through a comparative analysis of five seminal texts. Guo argues that Chinese women writers of the period position the personal within the diegesis in order to reconfigure their moral commitments and personal desires. By fashioning a "feminine" representation of subjectivity, tanci writers found a habitable space of self-expression in the male-dominated literary tradition. Through her discussion of the emergence, evolution, and impact of women's tanci, Guo shows how historical forces acting on the formation of the genre serve as the background for an investigation of crossdressing, self-portraiture, and authorial self-representation. Further, Guo approaches anew the concept of "woman-oriented perspective" and argues that this perspective conceptualizes a narrative framework in which the heroine (s) are endowed with mobility to exercise their talent and power as social beings as men's equals. Such a woman-oriented perspective redefines normalized gender roles with an eye to exposing women's potentialities to transform historical and social customs in order to engender a world with better prospects for women.

The Resurrected Skeleton Wilt L. Idema, 2014-07-08 The early Chinese text Master Zhuang (Zhuangzi) is well known for its relativistic philosophy and colorful anecdotes. In the work, Zhuang Zhou ca. 300 B.C.E.) dreams that he is a butterfly and wonders, upon awaking, if he in fact dreamed that he was a butterfly or if the butterfly is now dreaming that it is Zhuang Zhou. The text also recounts Master Zhuang's encounter with a skull, which praises the pleasures of death over the toil of living. This anecdote became popular with Chinese poets of the second and third century C.E. and found renewed significance with the founders of Quanzhen Daoism in the twelfth century. The Quanzhen masters transformed the skull into a skeleton and treated the object as a metonym for death and a symbol of the refusal of enlightenment. Later preachers made further revisions, adding Master Zhuang's resurrection of the skeleton, a series of accusations made by the skeleton against the philosopher, and the enlightenment of the magistrate who judges their case. The legend of the skeleton was widely popular throughout the Ming dynasty (1368-1644), and the fiction writer Lu Xun (1881-1936) reimagined it in the modern era. The first book in English to trace the development of the legend and its relationship to centuries of change in Chinese philosophy and culture, The Resurrected Skeleton translates and contextualizes the story's major adaptations and draws parallels with the Muslim legend of Jesus's encounter with a skull and the European tradition of the Dance of Death. Translated works include versions of the legend in the form of popular ballads and plays, together with Lu Xun's short story of the 1930s, underlining the continuity between traditional and modern Chinese culture.

Women S Tanci Fiction in Late Imperial and Early Twentieth-Century China Li Guo, 2015 In Women's Tanci Fiction in Late Imperial and Early Modern China, Li Guo presents the first book-length study in English of women's tanci fiction, the distinctive Chinese form of narrative written in rhymed lines during the late imperial to early modern period (related to, but different from, the orally performed version also called tanci). This work will be a significant contribution to scholarship. Chinese women's tanci novels in late imperial Qing and early twentieth-century China are numerous in collections; however, their scholarly studies are still insufficient. This book covers some understudied tanci texts and sheds new insights in the studied area. It also brings in association study with other Chinese writing genres during the late Qing period, as well as comparative perspective within the world culture when possible. Rivalry With Consorts Bu Huirensheng, 2020-01-08 There had been many struggles in the palace. In order to consolidate their power and gain the most benefits for their family, they had to become officials or concubines. She, Mo Li Garden, was originally a simple Girl, yet her kind nature was influenced by the struggles of the future generations. In order to survive, she understood one principle, and that was to abandon her dreams and heart. In the chaotic harem, he fought with millions of concubines. Among the political forces, he had to get rid of his enemies for the family and keep them away. In the emotional life, put aside all desires, the most loved people are blocked from the perception. She paid a lot for a single word, Power! Life was like a story. It was originally filled with twists and turns. In the end, could she really achieve her wish and ascend to the throne above all others?

Scholars and Beauties Xian Mao, 2021-01-06 Four plays from China's Yuan dynasty in the thirteen century and still alive in the Chinese-speaking world, are translated into English for the first time. Each play tells a love story between a scholar and a beauty. Love-sickness and misunderstandings are some of the themes in these plays. A book concerned with scholars in imperial China must mention the civil service examination system. Kids were home schooled in a small sized class usually consisting of less than ten students. There were tests at different levels and the highest level was the imperial examination, which was held in the imperial court in the capital city. When a student passed the provincial test, he was publically acknowledged as a scholar. (Because girls were forbidden to take tests, scholars were all male.) When a scholar passed the imperial examination, he may be hired by the government as a scholar-official. The top-scoring scholar at each imperial examination was named zhuangyuan. The imperial examination was the only way for a poor Confucian scholar to become an official. It was also one of the important ways for the emperor to select talents to serve the nation. During the Yuan Dynasty, the imperial examination system was abolished, since the nation was governed by Mongol conquerors who resented Confucianism and degraded scholars to the bottom of the society. However, in the hearts of the frustrated Chinese playwrights, the imperial examination was still of enormous value. They imagined a chance to sit for the examinations and become a zhuangyuan. They imagined honor and glory instead of sitting at home and humbly writing plays. Therefore, when they wrote plays about scholars, large volumes were spent describing the happy feelings upon successes in the examination, as can be seen in this book. Beauties appearing in these four plays include daughters of noble families (Cloud Flower) and ordinary girls (Moon Belle, Moon Flower, and Jade Fairy). As a daughter of the noble family, Cloud Flower (her grandfather was the prime minister) was well educated. She was able to communicate with the scholar in poetry. Even Moon Flower, keeper of a cosmetic shop, was also able to communicate love through a poem. When a beauty's lover became a zhuangyuan, his marriage was, by a big chance, determined by the emperor. In this book, Jade Fairy realized her marriage under the order of the emperor. The other three beauties, Moon Belle, Moon

Flower and Cloud Flower, had different happy endings. Moon Belle chose her husband by tossing a silk ball, Moon Flower married her lover after he gained his second life with the help of Bodhisattva Guanyin, and Cloud Flower separated from her husband during a chaotic war and reunited with him after three years. Yuan plays as a whole are highly regarded in the history of Chinese literature, similar to Tang poems and Song poems. The playwrights were gifted, demonstrated not only by their theatrical arts, but also by their poetic skills. In each Yuan play, there are about 400 lines of poetry. Most poems are devoted to love. There are also poems about nature (spring, fall, flowers, wind, etc.), happy feelings and difficult lives, etc. When viewers watch the stories, they will also enjoy the beautiful poems.

Franz Kafka and Chinese Culture Yanbing Zeng,2022-10-20 This book conducts a comprehensive and in-depth analysis of Franz Kafka's relation to China. Commencing with an examination of the myriad Chinese cultural influences to which Kafka was exposed, it goes on to explore the ways in which they manifest themselves in canonical stories, such as Description of A Struggle, The Great Wall of China, and An Old Manuscript. This leads the way to thought-provoking comparative studies of Kafka and major Chinese writers and philosophers, such as Zhuang Tzu, Pu Songling, Qian Zhongshu, and Lu Xun. Highlighting kindred philosophical concepts, shared aesthetic tastes, and parallel narrative strategies, these comparisons transcend mere textual analysis, to explore the profound cultural, historical, and philosophical implications of Kafka's works. Finally, the book turns to an examination Kafka's impact on modern life in China, including its translation studies, literature, and even its mass culture.
