Crazy on the Bayou Humberto Fontova,2017-11-21 "...they prove there is no party like a bayou party in America's Sportsman's Paradise." —Ted Nugent You say grilling and eating a giant rat you killed yourself is uncouth? Between slaying nutria for a Mardi Gras celebration, lying in wait for mallards in Venice, or fighting off a wild hog, these Cajun boys know their way around Louisiana's bayous. For these home-grown, southern hunters, the swamp really is a land of abundance. The cast of Cajun characters lampoons not just the city dwellers who venture into the swamp seeking a duck-hunting adventure like they've seen on TV, but also themselves and the other local residents they encounter. Everyone is fair game in this laugh-out-loud book full of fun, practical advice, and a new Cuban-Cajun recipe in each chapter!

The Blue Goose Chase Herbert K. Job,2018-01-05 Excerpt from The Blue Goose Chase: A Camera-Hunting Adventure in Louisiana Good work, Ned, said Jim, slapping him on the back as he sat down beside him on the rock' to take in the view and get his breath. Say, but that'll make a corking picture! I'll bet it'll be a prize-winner, too. You can work it finely from that chestnut. It doesn't look to be over five feet from crotch to crotch. That's so, replied Ned, and what I was just thinking about was how lucky it is that those lumbermen haven't quite got here yet. You noticed, down the hill, how they were cutting out these big chestnut trees for railway ties. This is a regular old tie tree, ' and they'll surely cut it in the fall when they start in again. Anyhow, we got in first. About the Publisher Forgotten Books publishes hundreds of thousands of rare and classic books. The Duck Camp Matt Wemple,2022-03 Duck hunting is a long and storied tradition in the Bayou State. Journey to the remote and wild reaches of southwest Louisiana where hunting and fishing isn't just a pastime but a job description. It is here the Miller Hunting Club has hunted, fished, and trapped for generations from their lodge, The Duck Camp. With roots going back a century, see how they've kept a duck hunting tradition alive through the most formative period in American waterfowling. They saw duck hunting at its best and worst throughout the 20th century and beyond. Their story is that of many who have built their own hunting traditions that epitomize Louisiana's rich outdoor heritage and earn it the name Sportsman's Paradise.

Louisiana Conservationist, Vol. 58 Jill Wilson, 2017-10-22 Excerpt from Louisiana Conservationist, Vol. 58: September/October 2005 Depending on where you are in this great nation, the opening of the bird season is a major focal point of the calendar year. In some states there is the opening of quail season, out West it might be grouse and elsewhere there are the famous pheasant seasons. Down in Louisiana, we have the luxury of three: dove, teal and the big duck season. All three are important to families from border to border. In my family, the opening of teal season might as well be New Year's Day. Right around the first of September as the sweat is still pouring out of my pores, a shiver shoots through my skin at the thought of the coming teal season. The Weather Channel by then is usually showing cooler temperatures across the Canadian and American Prairie Pothole Region and my senses have picked up on the fact that the days are getting shorter. Some may see that time as the end of the fun season, but I see it as a beginning. It signals that time of year where I can return to the field with shotgun in hand, let the calls dangle around my neck and put on those old hip boots to slosh around in the mud in chase of teal. Teal hunting is a traditional hunting sport in Louisiana. It is unique to the state, people work hard to sustain it and its future depends on what we teach our youth. While the last few seasons have been slower, duck numbers have been down and the early September teal split has been reduced, it is a reminder that we should appreciate how fragile and precious our resources are. These factors in no way detract from the joy of hunting teal. The three main types that visit Louisiana are the blue-winged, green winged and cinnamon teal. Blue-wings are usually the first to arrive. Louisiana boasts an early September split just for teal because of their early arrival in the Bayou State, but they can be harvested all through the 60-day big duck season that usually runs from November through January. One of the special things about teal in Louisiana is that we are some of the few that get to hunt them. Sure, late flying teal may be taken in any state along their fly way, but blue-winged teal often begin showing up in Louisiana as early as August. That means they have bypassed the majority of North America's hunting grounds well before anyone loaded a shot gun in hopes of taking one. That makes our little tradition that much sweeter.
