Engst and Pogue assembled a handy way of translating elements from one platform to the other, or for deciphering elements that are new and unfamiliar.

American Backcountry Tall Clock Walt H. Sirene,2024-02-21 This free download is a fascinating and wide ranging study that offers many insights into American Tall Case Clock making in the Backcountry of the Shenandoah Valley, Virginia, in the late 18th Century. This story informs those wanting to know more about antique tall case clocks (also known as longcase clocks, Grandfather clocks, floor clocks); Backcountry Early American furniture; how time was determined; culture and commerce; whether as a student, educator, casual collector or curious clock owner. Photographs in the body and addendum add value for inquisitive researchers. Each page - Splendid photographs and illustrations enhanced by brief narratives in laymen terms provide fascinating information about a group of five known tall clocks that were made in the Virginia Backcountry. The clocks genealogy is traced back to: Rome and Greece for the furniture case; Galileo for the pendulum; and England for the painted dial. Tap or click on a Hyperlink to go to online videos and references for further understanding about the Backcountry artisans and settlers, clock making, period furniture, painted dials, how a clock and pendulum works, clock setup and trouble shooting. Note: Not all Operating Systems recognize hyperlinks after Google processing deactivates them. In that case, search terms are provided for internet search. Enjoy the story! Windows in the Clock Angela Jean McArthur,1994 A number of studies have suggested that the pineal hormone, melatonin, may act at the level of the suprachiasmatic nuclei (SCN) in mammals to regulate the functioning of this primary circadian pacemaker. By isolating the rat SCN in vitro in a hypothalamic brain slice preparation, we have demonstrated a direct resetting of the SCN pacemaker's rhythm of ensemble neuronal firing rate in response to exogenous melatonin treatment. This effect depends upon the phase of the pacemaker at the time of treatment: maximal responses to 1 hr treatment are seen at the times of transition in the animals' environmental lighting cycle. Bath application of 10⁻⁹ M melatonin advanced the time-of-peak spontaneous electrical activity by 2-4 hr during a broad period surrounding lights-off at circadian time (CT) 10-14, while a more narrow window of sensitivity was found just prior to lights-on. Further, melatonin utilizes a pertussis toxin (PTX)-sensitive G protein pathway to reset the SCN pacemaker. A 6-hr pre-incubation with 1 μ g/ml PTX completely blocked melatonin's phase-advance at CT 10. The phorbol ester, 12-O-tetradecanoylphorbol 13-acetate (TPA), directly resets the SCN firing rate rhythm with a congruent profile of temporal sensitivity, suggesting that melatonin may activate protein kinase C (PKC) to alter pacemaker function. The PKC inhibitor, staurosporine, completely blocks both melatonin and TPA phase-advances at each sensitive period, strengthening this hypothesis. However, melatonin did not alter forskolin-stimulated cAMP levels, nor SCN IP₃ levels, at CT 6, 10, or 23. These data indicate that melatonin directly resets the suprachiasmatic clock in vitro with two windows of sensitivity which correspond to the times of transition in the animals' environmental lighting cycle. Further, melatonin alters SCN cellular function via PTX- sensitive G protein pathway(s) that activate PKC and appears to be separate from influence of cyclic nucleotide and IP₃ pathways.
