 Marius Victorinus’ Commentary on Galatians Stephen Andrew Cooper,Gaius Marius Victorinus,2005-03-24 Marius Victorinus, a professor of rhetoric in mid-fourth-century Rome, wrote the first Latin commentaries on the apostle Paul, whose letters have played a vital role in Western Christian thought. This is the first English translation of Victorinus’ commentary on Galatians, which is a relevant and lively presentation of the apostle’s passion for the freedom of the gospel. The accompanying notes and introduction, while engaged with relevant scholarship, are accessible to readers interested in early Christian interpretations of the Bible.
 The Poetry of Translation Matthew M. Reynolds,Matthew Reynolds,2011-09-29 A very wide-ranging book which launches a new theory of poetry translation and pursues it through readings of poem-translations from across the history of English literature. It engages with the key debates in translation studies, and offers new interpretations of major works such as Pope’s Iliad, Pound’s Cathay, and Dryden’s Aeneis.

 Documents of the English Reformation Gerald Bray,2019-01-31 The Reformation era has long been seen as crucial in developing the institutions and society of the English-speaking peoples, and study of the Tudor and Stuart era is at the heart of most courses in English history. The influence of the Book of Common Prayer and the King James version of the Bible created the modern English language, but until the publication of Gerald Bray’s Documents of the English Reformation there had been no collection of contemporary documents available to show how these momentous social and political changes took place. This comprehensive collection covers the period from 1526 to 1700 and contains many texts previously relatively inaccessible, along with others more widely known. The book also provides informative appendixes, including comparative tables of the different articles and confessions, showing their mutual relationships and dependence. With fifty-eight documents covering all the main statutes, injunctions and orders, prefaces to prayer books, biblical translations and other relevant texts, this third edition of Documents of the English R

 Latin Epics of the New Testament Roger P. H. Green,2006-11-23 This pioneering study explores the phenomenon of Christian Latin epic in late antiquity. Roger Green carefully examines the poems of the three writers Juvenius, Sedulius, and Arator, who were among the leaders in a tradition of Bible epic that went on to include such poets as Milton and Klopstock. The importance of these early Christian epics lies in the fact that they attempted to present books of the New Testament in terms of the epic tradition, and so bridge the gap between the time-honoured works of the Graeco-Roman literary heritage, with their gods, heroes, and glorification of war, and the sacred texts of Christianity, available then to Latin readers only in a style that seemed the antithesis of all that Romans valued. Green reveals in detail the depth and variety of epic language, epic themes, and epic design, developed from Vergil, Lucan, and others, in these new but generally faithful presentations of the biblical books; but he also gives due weight to the fact that these authors are committed to particular agendas of the developing and expanding Christian Church.--BOOK JACKET.
