Gendering the Master Narrative Mary C. Erler,Maryanne Kowaleski,2018-08-06 Gendering the Master Narrative asks whether a female tradition of power might have existed distinct from the male one, and how such a tradition might have been transmitted. It describes women's progress toward power as a push-pull movement, showing how practices and institutions that ostensibly enabled women in the Middle Ages could sometimes erode their authority as well.This book provides a much-needed theoretical and historical reassessment of medieval women's power. It updates the conclusions from the editors' essential volume on that topic, Women and Power in the Middle Ages, which was published in 1988 and altered the prevailing view of female subservience by correcting the nearly ubiquitous equation of power with public authority. Most scholars now accept a broader definition of power based on the interactions between men and women.In their Introduction, Mary C. Erler and Maryanne Kowaleski survey the directions in which the study of medieval women's agency has developed in the past fifteen years. Like its predecessor, this volume is richly interdisciplinary. It contains essays by highly regarded scholars of history, literature, and art history, and features seventeen black-and-white illustrations and two maps.

Awakening the Master Feminine glen morris,2008-01-30 Bringing forth the full feminine power. Helping each female cultivate the highest and best version of herself by activation of the four main feminine energies.

Letters from Lady Master Portia Michele Martini,2019-07-11 I am Lady Portia. I anchor the flame of transformation on the planet to transmute the aspects that keep mankind bound to its illusions. Illusions that feed the planetary mesh. I have been among you for many lives, always in search of justice and equality. I act along with the energy of Master Saint Germain, bringing the divine complement of masculine and feminine energies, only to fill in an energetic level to advance in higher levels of transcendence of matter. It is a level in which the I Am no longer is presented as male or female, but rather as the union of two energies on behalf of something more significant, to the benefit of transformation. The dispensing house of the violet flame has brought to all beings the chance to regenerate through the transmutation of your own constraints by preparing you to work them and agglutinate them in wisdom. It will carry out the union in sole energy, which is the balance between the sacred feminine and masculine; the balance between Yin and Yang. Therefore, the violet flame, held by Saint Germain and me, promotes the union of these two aspects and the ascension of the I Am, as well as the transmutation of the restraints that prevent such union and upliftment from occurring in full wisdom. Thus, the violet flame enables the transformation and disconnection from the planetary mesh. As a member of the Karmic Board, I hold divine justice; the use of the justice energy as love and mercy; and the elevation of the transcended aspects of the matter in wisdom, thereby united in high energies of ascension into the future.

Zen Echoes , 2017-05-09 The voices of three female Zen masters reverberate in this much-needed collection. Too often the history of Zen seems to be written as an unbroken masculine line: male teacher to male student. In this timely volume, Beata Grant shows us that women masters do exist—and have always existed. Zen Echoes is a collection of classic koans from Zen's Chinese history that were first collected and commented on by Miaozong, a twelfth-century nun so adept that her teacher, the legendary Dahui Zonggao, used to tell other students that perhaps if they practiced hard enough, they might be as realized as her. Nearly five hundred years later, the seventeenth-century nuns Baochi and Zukui added their own commentaries to the collection. The three voices—distinct yet harmonious—remind us that enlightenment is at once universal and individual. In her introduction to this shimmering translation, Professor Grant tells us that the verses composed by these women provide evidence that “in a religious milieu made up overwhelmingly of men, there were women who were just as dedicated to Chan practice, just as advanced in their spiritual realization, and just as gifted at using language to convey that which is beyond language.”

The Master and Minerva Helen Solterer, 2023-09-01 Can words do damage? For medieval culture, the answer was unambiguously yes. And as Helen Solterer contends, in French medieval culture the representation of women exemplified the use of injurious language. Solterer investigates the debates over women between masters and their disciples. Across a broad range of Old French literature to the early modern Querelle des femmes, she shows how the figure of the female respondent became an instrument for disputing the dominant models of representing women. The female respondent exploited the criterion of injurious language that so preoccupied medieval masters, and she charged master poets ethically and legally with libel. Solterer's work thus illuminates an early, decisive chapter in the history of defamation.
