Rules without Rights Tim Bartley, 2018-02-08 Activists have exposed startling forms of labor exploitation and environmental degradation in global industries, leading many large retailers and brands to adopt standards for fairness and sustainability. This book is about the idea that transnational corporations can push these standards through their global supply chains, and in effect, pull factories, forests, and farms out of their local contexts and up to global best practices. For many scholars and practitioners, this kind of private regulation and global standard-setting can provide an alternative to regulation by territorially-bound, gridlocked, or incapacitated nation states, potentially improving environments and working conditions around the world and protecting the rights of exploited workers, impoverished farmers, and marginalized communities. But can private, voluntary standards actually create meaningful forms of regulation? Are forests and factories around the world actually being made into sustainable ecosystems and decent workplaces? Can global norms remake local orders? This book provides striking new answers by comparing the private regulation of land and labor in democratic and authoritarian settings. Case studies of sustainable forestry and fair labour standards in Indonesia and China show not only how transnational standards are implemented 'on the ground' but also how they are constrained and reconfigured by domestic governance. Combining rich multi-method analyses, a powerful comparative approach, and a new theory of private regulation, Rules without Rights reveals the contours and contradictions of transnational governance. Transformations in Governance is a major new academic book series from Oxford University Press. It is designed to accommodate the impressive growth of research in comparative politics, international relations, public policy, federalism, environmental and urban studies concerned with the dispersion of authority from central states up to supranational institutions, down to subnational governments, and side-ways to public-private networks. It brings together work that significantly advances our understanding of the organization, causes, and consequences of multilevel and complex governance. The series is selective, containing annually a small number of books of exceptionally high quality by leading and emerging scholars. The series targets mainly single-authored or co-authored work, but it is pluralistic in terms of disciplinary specialization, research design, method, and geographical scope. Case studies as well as comparative studies, historical as well as contemporary studies, and studies with a national, regional, or international focus are all central to its aims. Authors use qualitative, quantitative, formal modeling, or mixed methods. A trade mark of the books is that they combine scholarly rigour with readable prose and an attractive production style. The series is edited by Liesbet Hooghe and Gary Marks of the University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill, and Walter Mattli of the University of Oxford.

Coastal Disaster Surveys and Assessment for Risk Mitigation Tomoya Shibayama, Miguel Esteban, 2022-12-19 This collection covers essential concepts in the management of coastal disasters, outlining several field surveys of such events that have taken place in the 21st century, including the Indian Ocean Tsunami, the Tohoku Earthquake and Tsunami, and the storm surges generated by Hurricane Katrina, Cyclone Nargis, and Typhoon Haiyan. Measurements of flood heights, distributions of structural destruction, and the testimonies of residents are reported, with the results being analysed and compared with past events and numerical simulations to clarify and reconstruct the reality of these disasters. The book covers the state-of-the-art understanding of disaster mechanisms and the most advanced tools for the simulation of future events: • Uniquely explains how to use disaster surveys along with simulations to mitigate risk • Combines pure scientific studies with practical research and proposes procedures for effective coastal disaster mitigation Coastal Disaster Surveys and Assessment for Risk Mitigation is ideal for students in the field of disaster risk management, as well as engineers who deal with issues related to tsunamis, storm surges, high wave attack and coastal erosion.

4th International Conference on Islamic Economics, Business, Philanthropy, and PhD Colloquium (ICIEBP) 2022 Meri Indri Hapsari, M. Bastomi Fahri Zusak, 2023-06-16 This is an open access book. The success of the 1st, 2nd ICIEBP 2017 and 2018 in Universitas Pendidikan Indonesia (UPI) Bandung and Universitas Airlangga (UNAIR) Surabaya, Indonesia that brought a wide range of participants did not stop the courage of us to conduct the 3rd ICIEBP virtually on 2020 adapting the pandemic situation in mind that the conference attendees gained vital insights into Islamic economics from different viewpoints. Moreover, to maintain the continuity of the Islamic Economics conference in presenting insights, sharing, and executing ideas presented by innovative researchers, experts and practitioners, organising these innovative discussion forums at the highest level is necessary. Therefore, the Department of Islamic Economics Faculty of Economic and Business Universitas Airlangga, in collaboration with the Department of Islamic Economics Faculty of Economics and Business Education, UPI proudly presents The 4th International Conference on Islamic Economics, Business, and Philanthropy (ICIEBP) that was held on 4 - 5 October 2022 in Surabaya, Indonesia. The theme, as well as the main objective, of the conference, is Integration of Islamic Economics, Finance and Philanthropy for Sustainable Development of Cities and Communities. This conference program will elaborate on how a nation can achieve sustainable development and at the same time solve socioeconomic problems such as poverty. In addition, the Islamic perspective as a new and emergent pattern has demonstrated an unprecedented performance in terms of transforming Muslim societies and beyond.

Fifty Years of Business in Indonesia (1945-95) Carlo Hein Tabalujan, Richard Tallboys, 1995 This is the remarkable story of Carlo Tabalujan. Beginning in pre-war Indonesia, we learn how, as a seventeen-year-old schoolboy, he was stranded without family or money, how he survived three and a half years of the Japanese occupation of Jakarta and how he then started out in business on his own, with nothing but a rented desk and a shared telephone. Carlo Tabalujan's account of life in Jakarta from December 1941 until the allied forces arrived in September 1945 is a unique first-hand account of what life was really like for the local population during the years of the Japanese occupation. His business experiences comprise a fascinating account from the point of view of an Indonesian businessman. The fluctuations in his trading achievements and the problems of developing manufacturing enterprises with a variety of western business partners, provide valuable lessons for anyone seeking to develop business in South East Asia. He offers an unusual insight into the philosophy on which a successful business career has been based through fifty years of uncertain times. Initiated out of a desire to express gratitude for the many people that have helped the author in his life, this book has developed into something much more than that. It is an invaluable and unique account of the fortunes and frustrations experienced by both the man and his country.

Saya Orang Indonesia Satish Pai, 2019-02-11 Saya Orang Indonesia provides snippets about the Indonesian consumers and the market from an expatriate's viewpoint. This includes insightful observations peppered with anecdotes, about different facets of Indonesians, and provides learnings' that will greatly help both expatriates as well as marketers understand the Indonesian consumer a better. It discusses my observations, viewpoints and some of my experiences in Indonesia. I write about what Indonesians value most, about food, retail, society trends, advertising and also opportunities for marketers and advertisers to capitalise on This will take a leap from the popular The Emergence of I in Indonesia that I co-authored with Monica Cravenetya about socio-cultural changes witnessed in Indonesia resulting in it moving slowly from a collectivist, conformist society to an individualist, assertive society (this was awarded best paper at the ESOMAR Asia-Pacific conference 2015 at Singapore) Indonesia has gained the world's attention being the fourth largest democracy and the biggest South East Asian market. A lot more regional and international companies are focusing on the market, and establishing a presence and a local office (unlike earlier where a Singapore or HK office or the international HQ handled Indonesia). There are a lot more expatriates - managers from across their globe, and their families and social support circles (education, lifestyle, community related support/ traders etc.) who are in Indonesia and would like to know more in an easy-to-read non-academic manner. A lot of international companies who have tried to launch their global leading brands and products have struggled in Indonesia meeting limited or no success. This book helps understand some of the reasons why, as well as talks of some of the trends changing which might help the business manager while highlighting opportunities and some best practices that other successful brands and advertisements have used and achieved in Indonesia. This book will best help business managers, marketers, advertisers and expatriates connect to Indonesians and understand what makes them tick, and what drives them. And being non-academic, and written in an easy to read style makes it not just a good read but entertaining as well. Marketeers and managers would benefit by mining insights from this and utilize this in their HR as well as marketing campaigns. If you are new to Indonesia this would be a great primer, and if you are experienced this would serve as a refresher, provoking new angles of looking at the market and the consumers. A key aspect of this book is its easy-to-read style - somewhere between a coffee table book, a magazine as well as a compendium of learning's. While there are sections, it will not be one continuous long essay and instead will contain snippets on the topic (max 3 pages each) compiled in an interesting sequence. The reader can start anywhere, read a piece within a couple of minutes, as well as move to another different piece elsewhere in the book. The entire book should be readable within a flight or overnight at most. Overall the author fervently hopes that the one thing he would like to leave in the minds of the readers is a love for this wonderful country and its lovely people.

Hybrid Threats and the Law of the Sea Alexander Lott, 2022-08-22 Read also Alexander Lott's blog on the recent Award of the Annex VII Arbitral Tribunal in the dispute concerning the Kerch Strait incident. Hybrid Threats and the Law of the Sea debates the practice of states that have resorted to discriminatory navigational restrictions or aggression against foreign ships and aircraft in densely navigated straits. The book explores both widely acknowledged and lesser-known maritime incidents that meet the characteristics of hybrid warfare or hybrid conflict. This research approaches hybrid threats from the perspective of the interrelationship between navigational restrictions, law enforcement, armed attack, and the legal regime of straits. It provides guidance for determining whether the rules of armed conflict or law enforcement are applicable to various naval incidents.
