English Writings of Hu Shih Hu Shih, 2013-02-01 Hu Shih (1891-1962), . In the 1910s, Hu studied at Cornell University and later Columbia University, both in the United States. At Columbia, he was greatly influenced by his professor, John Dewey, and became a lifelong advocate of pragmatic evolutionary change. He received his Ph.D. in Philosophy in 1917 and returned to lecture at Peking University. Hu soon became one of the leading and most influential intellectuals during the May Fourth Movement and later the New Culture Movement. His most widely recognized achievement during this period was as a key contributor to Chinese liberalism and language reform in his advocacy for the use of written vernacular Chinese. Hu Shih was the Republic of China's Ambassador to the United States of America (1938-1942) and later Chancellor of Peking University (1946-1948). In 1939 Hu Shih was nominated for a Nobel Prize in literature and in 1958 became president of the "Academia Sinica" in Taiwan, where he remained until his death in Nangang at the age of 71. This diverse collection brings together his English essays, speeches and academic papers, as well as book reviews, all written between 1919 and 1962. English Writings of Hu Shih represents his thinking and insights on such topics as scientific methodology, liberalism and democracy, and social problems. It can also serve as a helpful resource for those who study Hu Shih and his views on ancient and modern China. The first volume "Chinese Philosophy and Intellectual History" allows readers to trace the development of Chinese thought and see the historical methodology applied therein. The second volume "Literature and Society" mainly includes Hu Shih's works on language reform, which owing to his advocacy for the use of written vernacular Chinese were a success in both the educational and literary fields. The third volume "National Crisis and Public Diplomacy" mainly collects Hu's articles and speeches from his term as Ambassador of China to the U.S.A. between 1938 and 1942.

Spectral Geometry of Shapes Jing Hua, Zichun Zhong, 2020-01-15 Spectral Geometry of Shapes presents unique shape analysis approaches based on shape spectrum in differential geometry. It provides insights on how to develop geometry-based methods for 3D shape analysis. The book is an ideal learning resource for graduate students and researchers in computer science, computer engineering and applied mathematics who have an interest in 3D shape analysis, shape motion analysis, image analysis, medical image analysis, computer vision and computer graphics. Due to the rapid advancement of 3D acquisition technologies there has been a big increase in 3D shape data that requires a variety of shape analysis methods, hence the need for this comprehensive resource. Presents the latest advances in spectral geometric processing for 3D shape analysis applications, such as shape classification, shape matching, medical imaging, etc. Provides intuitive links between fundamental geometric theories and real-world applications, thus bridging the gap between theory and practice Describes new theoretical breakthroughs in applying spectral methods for non-isometric motion analysis Gives insights for developing spectral geometry-based approaches for 3D shape analysis and deep learning of shape geometry millenia One man, a head priest called Hapi Atef Unnut, could have stopped the cataclysm that claimed Atlantis if he only had the courage. After his escape, he hid Atlantis' greatest treasure in Egypt; a secret with the power to save the world of another time from devastation. Fast forward to the 21st century, the world is sliding into an irreversible polar tilt. Hapi is now reincarnated as an American woman named Kaelen Rhand. He has to convince her to take on the unpaid job of preserver of the planet. It is his only chance for redemption and to fulfill his karma.

Flawless Elise Hu,2023-05-23 An audacious journalistic exploration of the present and future of beauty through the lens of South Korea's booming K-beauty industry and the culture it promotes, by Elise Hu, NPR host-at-large and the host of TED Talks Daily K-beauty has captured imaginations worldwide by promising a kind of mesmerizing perfection. Its skincare and makeup products—creams packaged to look like milkshakes or pandas, and snail mucus face masks, to name a few—work together to fascinate us, champion consumerism, and invite us to indulge. In the four years Elise spent in Seoul as NPR's bureau chief, the global K-beauty industry quadrupled. Today it's worth $10 billion and is only getting bigger as it rides the Hallyu wave around the globe. And fun as self-care consumerism may be, Elise turns her veteran eye to the darker questions lurking beneath the surface of this story. When technology makes it easy to quantify and optimize ourselves—from banishing blemishes, to whittling our waistlines, even to shaving down our jaws—where do we draw the line? What are the dangers for a society where a flawless face and body are promoted and possible? What are the real financial, physical, and emotional costs of beauty work in a culture that valorizes endless self-improvement and codes it as empowerment? With rich historical context and deep reporting, including hours of interviews with South Korean women, this is a complex, provocative look at the ways hustle culture has reached into the sinews of our bodies. It raises complicated questions about gender disparity, consumerism, the beauty imperative of an appearance obsessed society, and the undeniable political, economic, and social capital of good looks worldwide. And it points the way toward an alternative vision, one that's more affirming and inclusive than a beauty culture led by industry.

Sweet Mommy Wants a Hug Hu LuGuai,2020-07-06 After he got drunk and broke into a strange villa, he got pregnant with a baby and ran away. Seven years later, a certain Yubao had followed Tang Nian Bai back to the country, but the first thing he did was to sell her. She stood on the street and said, Look for dad, look for dad. Mommy, nine dollars and nine dollars. Tang Nian Bai shyly covered Ceng Bao's mouth. At this time, a tall figure appeared in front of mother and son. The man looked at Miao Bao and asked, Child, I heard that you want to sell your mother? How much is it? Cousin Bao froze on the spot. This man was so handsome, and his entire body was exuding the aura of a noble ... When a certain treasure was completely enchanted by the noble's beauty, it blinked its large eyes, Here you go, no ... No charge.

A Prehistory of the Cloud Tung-Hui Hu,2016-09-02 The militarized legacy of the digital cloud: how the cloud grew out of older network technologies and politics. We may imagine the digital cloud as placeless, mute, ethereal, and unmediated. Yet the reality of the cloud is embodied in thousands of massive data centers, any one of which can use as much electricity as a midsized town. Even all these data centers are only one small part of the cloud. Behind that cloud-shaped icon on our screens is a whole universe of technologies and cultural norms, all working to keep us from noticing their existence. In this book, Tung-Hui Hu examines the gap between the real and the virtual in our understanding of the cloud. Hu shows that the cloud grew out of such older networks as railroad tracks, sewer lines, and television circuits. He describes key moments in the prehistory of the cloud, from the game "Spacewar" as exemplar of time-sharing computers to Cold War bunkers that were later reused as data centers. Countering the popular perception of a new "cloudlike" political power that is dispersed and immaterial, Hu argues that the cloud grafts digital technologies onto older ways of exerting power over a population. But because we invest the cloud with cultural fantasies about security and participation, we fail to recognize its militarized origins and ideology. Moving between the materiality of the technology itself and its cultural rhetoric, Hu's account offers a set of new tools for rethinking the contemporary digital environment.

Intelligent Autonomous Control of Spacecraft with Multiple Constraints Qinglei Hu,Xiaodong Shao,Lei Guo,2023-05-02 This book explores the intelligent autonomous control problems for spacecraft with multiple constraints, such as pointing/path constraints, linear/angular velocity constraints, performance constraints, etc. It provides an almost self-contained presentation of dynamics modeling, controller design and analysis, as well as simulation studies. The book aims to offer a valuable guide for researchers and aerospace engineers to address the theoretical and technical difficulties in different applications, ranging from spacecraft attitude reorientation and tracking to spacecraft proximity operations, and is mainly intended for technical and engineering staff engaged in spacecraft dynamics and control areas.

One Hundred Years of Sinking / Volume I Phoenix Hu,2018-05-13 It is a long historical story about my family members, especially the life experiences of the two generations of Chinese women in 20th century. They experienced the war of China and Japan(1937-1945), the war of communism(1946-1949), and fallen down to communism hell(1950-1999), including the tragedy of Liberation, Mao's Great Famine, the Cultural Revolution, etc. The new generation experienced Chinese Student Demonstrations of 1986 and Tiananmen Square protests of 1989. Based on the major historical events in China in the twentieth century and based on the first-hand experiences of my family members, this book describes the personal destiny of the tide of history. The book with 1.2 millions Chinese word count, is divided into trilogy, time spanning nearly a hundred years of the twentieth century, the focus of more than 60 years later, the geography involved Chishui River(means red water river) between Sichuan and Guizhou provinces, including Hejiang and Chishui counties, and then Chongqing, Beibei, Chengdu, Shanghai, Beijing, Heilongjiang, Hongkong, Taiwan and Canada. This book is about demonstrating the destruction of traditional Chinese natural farming communities, especially the gentry and intellectuals destruction by Communist Party of China, and how the communist totalitarian tyranny crushed ordinary people. The book's historical events, geography, place names, streets, local customs and practices are all true, especially on the Southern Sichuan village land system, tenancy relations, land tax, patriarchal system, the National Assembly election in 1947, political and military organizations, gentry armed castle with watchtower in Sichuan and Guizhou area before 1950, etc., all are historical facts. One of the manors, the old house of the author's family house, has long been dilapidated, but the place is still named after the old house Shihuayuan (means garden of stones) and the place names can be seen on Google Maps till now. In my book, part of the CCP's grain requisition and suppression of bandits in southern Sichuan 1951, can be compared with Wild Swans by Jung Chang, in which her parents reclaimed grain requisition and suppression of bandits in the southern Sichuan as an occupier and conqueror of the CCP experience, and my book described, but the same area at the same time, the local people's memory about occupied, conquered, was looted of looters. ---- Phoenix @ Phoenix Nest in December 2017

A Historical Survey of the Yellow River and the River Civilizations Jianxiong Ge, Yunsheng Hu, 2021-01-04 This book explores the relationship between rivers and ethics in China, with a particular focus on the health of the Yellow River and China's sustainable development. Though the book falls into the category of East Asian History, it is an interdisciplinary academic work that addresses not only history, but also culture, human geography and physical geography. It traces the changes in the Yellow River over time and examines the origin and developmental course of Chinese civilization, which has always been closely intertwined with the Yellow River. It also draws comparisons between the Yellow River and the Yangtze, Nile, Tigris, Euphrates and Indus rivers to provide insights into how they have contributed to civilizations. At the same time, it discusses the lessons learned from people's taming the Yellow River. Most significantly, the book explores the relationship between humans and the environment from an ethical standpoint, making it an urgent reminder of the crucial role that human activities play in environmental issues concerning the Yellow River so as to achieve a sustainable development for China's "mother river." The intended audience includes academic readers researching East Asian and Chinese history & culture, geography, human geography, historical geography, the environment, river civilizations, etc., as well as history and geography lovers and members of the general public who are interested in the Yellow River and the civilization that has evolved around it.
