landscapes, birds and animals. Find the numbers with the crazy All Black lambs, spot the difference: the mischievous keas have changed around somebody's campervan, find the animals hidden deep in the bush, match the farmers to their animals. Plus spot what's wrong in the weird and wonderful scenes: Should a kiwi be flying? Could a sheep round up the dogs? And why is there a penguin at the top of that tree?

Magnifier Brandon Krieg, 2019 A magnifier praises what's larger and a magnifier concentrates poisons. Brandon Krieg's Magnifier is a book of spirits invoked by destroyers. It trains its gaze on the deep dependencies we are urged daily to hide from ourselves and interrogates the ways we insulate ourselves from the environmental and social degradations we perpetrate, often at many removes. Magnifier is a book of systems of our collective making that have taken on a life of their own, which we pretend to control. It is a book mourning Romanticism's naiveté, even as it cannot help but engage in a search for meanings not commercial or ideological in the more-than-human world. And yet, the poems in Magnifier refuse to let slip from their focus the human everywhere, or to retreat into a mystifying wilderness. If a maple seed is to astonish, it must do so in the neighborhood of a reactor. Formally various, balanced on the edge of order and chaos, the poems in Magnifier cry out for something more from the nothing but even as they zero in on the damage we have done.

Force Magnifier Michael Betancourt,2020-04-20 “What exactly does AI automate?” Betancourt begins with the obvious answer, ‘human labor,’ and ends with the nature of value created in capitalism. His analysis was written for a lecture at the Aspen Institute–Germany’s Third Annual Berlin AI Conference, “Humanity Enabled: AI & the Great Economic Awakening” in March, 2020. The ‘great decoupling’ of labor from productivity and value suggests the potential for a post-labor economy, and the expansion of the ‘society of leisure’ formerly reserved for only the dominant social classes. This book concerns the social, cultural, and economic barriers to the development of a fairer, egalitarian, and more democratic society in terms of a broad, kaleidoscopic array of tendencies including the gamification of social activity by social credit, the role of marketing in popular media, the authoritarian usurpation of democracy in the smart city, and the proposal of universal basic income as a palliative for the replacement of human labor by machinery. Opposition to the emergence of the ‘society of leisure’ is not economic but cultural, a confluence of religious and social prohibitions on leisure that simultaneously devalue, demonize, and disenfranchise labor: this emergent conflict is the cultural significance of AI. About the author: Michael Betancourt is a critical theorist and research artist whose work is concerned with the cultural impacts of digital technology and capitalist ideology. He has written more than thirty books, including The Critique of Digital Capitalism, The Digital Agent versus Human Agency, The History of Motion Graphics, and Glitch Art in Theory and Practice. His writing has been translated into Chinese, French, German, Greek, Italian, Japanese, Persian, Portuguese, and Spanish. These publications complement his movies, which have been screened internationally in art fairs, film festivals, and museums.

How to Build a Low Vision Reader Thomas E Strong, 2023-04-29 BE SURE TO VISIT: <http://www.lowvisionreader.net> t FOR A 5 MINUTE VIDEO WITH NARRATION of the actual LVR in use. The Low Vision Reader The LVR is intended to provide a low-cost solution for low vision people who have macular degeneration, diabetic retinopathy, or other vision impairments that impede their ability to read the ordinary things you need in order to get through daily life. Other reading machines are large, stationery, bulky and very expensive - using their own proprietary magnification electronic cameras and video screens. Our device combines the use of ones' own iPad along with an x-y axis table. It allows you to read letters, bank statements, credit card statements and a variety of other reading material, at variable levels of magnification. It is small, just 15 square, llight weight, and portable. The X -Y axis tables lock in place for storage and portability. An LED light provides proper illumination. It doesn't require an iPad with a lot of memory, a several years old tablet will do . Even if the battery is somewhat rundown, it can be used for this purpose when the charger is plugged in. An awesome free magnification app called SuperVision+ by The Massachusetts Eye and Ear Infirmary is downloaded from the App store to the iPad for use with this device.. CONSTRUCTION IS SIMPLE AND STRAIGHTFORWARD. NO SPECIAL SKILLS REQUIRED.
