Infinity Minus One John R. Snyder, 2016-06-24 In Infinity Minus One, a collection of poems written between 1987 and 2016, poet John R. Snyder explores themes of mortality, aging, the power and limits of language, fathers and sons, and the spiritual quest, in language that is precise, musical, and accessible. In the author's preface, Snyder acknowledges his debt to poets such as Gary Snyder, Jane Hirshfield, and William Stafford, and their influence is palpable in many of his poems. Snyder is known especially for his award-winning literary haiku, and more than thirty of these vivid and often poignant short poems are included in the collection. The book includes an appendix with author's notes on many of the poems. Infinity Minus One is a Kirkus Reviews Indy Books of the Month Selection, October 2016.

Kitten Suzelle Poole, 2017-01-08 This book is a collection of poems about animals. These poems were written for her students when Madame Poole was a Montessori teacher. Her students loved to listen to them, to recite them, and to read them. Suzelle Poole has written poems because she needed some for the children in her classrooms. When the three to six year olds enjoyed the first few poems, she was encouraged to write more, including more advanced, longer stories in poetry form. The children say them spontaneously: together and by themselves. They use them for 'research' because they remember them. Every morning, at least three children chose to find a poem to say or to display. They requested them and asked that the whole album be brought to the classroom, if it were not already there! The poems are written correctly grammatically, without fantasy and with enjoyable lessons in animal life, geography and culture. After years of happy children saying, reading and learning with her poems, she realized that they could be of general use in classrooms and homes. She was awarded the Golden Poetry Award by the American Poetry Society, World of Poetry, U.S.A. Mrs. Poole, A. M.I. (Association Montessori Internationale) has been teaching ballet and Montessori to children of all ages in the United States, Great Britain, and South Africa. Mrs. Poole married English Opera Singer and University Lecturer Jonathan Poole, and resides in Dallas, Texas. She continues teaching and performing.

Picturing Our Emotions: Socio-Emotional Learning Through Writing and Drawing Jenny Urbanek, 2020-03-04 At Downtown Montessori Academy we educate the whole child. The core areas of learning are: reading, math, writing, art, music and social studies. However, the fabric that weaves these subjects together is the foundation of Social-Emotional intelligence. We strive to support children in their journey toward understanding and communicating their emotions in a safe environment; while simultaneously guiding them to recognize and respect the emotions of others in their community. Feelings are not good or bad; they are expressions of what it means to be human. Lower-Elementary students at Downtown Montessori in the Fall of 2019 worked to write a descriptive poem about an emotion of their choice engaging the 5 senses which they then illustrated in Art Class. This art project engages deeply in Social-Emotional Learning (SEL), which is about understanding one's self and others.

Come Away with Me Libby McKechnie,2021-02-23 Libby McKechnie shares two dozen whimsical poems and illustrations intended to be read by both children and adults. Many of the poems celebrate colour, art and the natural world evoking a heartwarming enthusiasm for life. She addresses a range of topics without any of them feeling out of place. The watercolour illustrations are meant to be part of the reader's experience. They are beautiful, fun and compliment the writing nicely. The reader will be left with a feeling of both optimism and celebration.

The Romance of Teaching Ann V. Angell,2014-09-23 A year before she was to retire, Dr. Ann Angell volunteered to start a new class at the Montessori public school where she'd been teaching for a decade. Her mission was to guide and encourage her students -- second, third, and fourth graders with a wide variety of strengths and weaknesses -- as they pursued their own paths of self-directed learning. How would she inspire Maya, obsessed with multiplication tables, to get excited about fractions and decimals? How would she help Blake become interested in something other than reading, and was that even a good idea? How could she persuade Hayden, a gifted artist, to interact more peacefully with his classmates? The Colorado Student Assessment Program, which originated from No Child Left Behind legislation, presented further challenges. Ann would have to prepare her students for standardized testing while at the same time nurturing a mind-set that doesn't assume there's only one way to absorb information, only one correct answer to every question. The Romance of Teaching: Montessori in the Elementary School chronicles a school year filled with growth and joyful learning. If you've ever wondered how education can be effective when kids are free to explore whatever subjects they choose, you'll find Ann's account enchanting.

The Arrow Finds Its Mark Georgia Heard,2012-03-27 Twitter feeds, school notes, advertisements, street signs--find poetry in the unlikely places with thirty contemporary poets. Imagine picking up a scrap of paper off the floor or reading a sign at a gas station or looking at graffiti on the subway and finding poetry in these words. The literary equivalent of a collage, found poems take existing text, reorder and refashion it, and present it as a poem. Youthful, urban, and ironic, this energetic and surprising poetic form demonstrates the beauty of everyday words and will inspire young poets to find their own poetry. Find your own poems with Georgia Heard's The Arrow Finds Its Mark as your guide.
