Incident-To Coding Strategies, 2017-05-24 In the past year, CMS has targeted practices filing non-physician practitioner (NPP) incident-to claims for audits more aggressively than ever before. Several of the practices have even ended up paying fines in excess of $150,000 each for improperly billing NPP services. Don't let this happen to you....You can get the practical information you need to stay off CMS's audit radar without losing your NPP reimbursement with the help of the newly launched report, Incident-to Coding Strategies 2017. It will provide you with the practical tools you need to get paid as much as ethically possible for your NPP services (without crossing any lines), all while improving your compliance and decreasing your chances of being audited.

Nuclear Power Plant Instrumentation and Control Systems for Safety and Security Yastrebenetsky, Michael, 2014-02-28 Accidents and natural disasters involving nuclear power plants such as Chernobyl, Three Mile Island, and the recent meltdown at Fukushima are rare, but their effects are devastating enough to warrant increased vigilance in addressing safety concerns. Nuclear Power Plant Instrumentation and Control Systems for Safety and Security evaluates the risks inherent to nuclear power and methods of preventing accidents through computer control systems and other such emerging technologies. Students and scholars as well as operators and designers will find useful insight into the latest security technologies with the potential to make the future of nuclear energy clean, safe, and reliable.

Harnessing net primary productivity data for monitoring sustainable development of agriculture Robinson, Nathaniel P., Cox, Cindy M., Koo, Jawoo, 2016-12-16 This study was undertaken to assess the utility of remotely sensed net primary productivity (NPP) data to measure agricultural sustainability by applying a new methodology that captures spatial variability and trends in total NPP and in NPP removed at harvest. The sustainable intensification of agriculture is widely promoted as a means for achieving the Sustainable Development Goals (SDGs) and transitioning toward a more productive, sustainable, and inclusive agriculture, particularly in fragile environments. Yet critics claim that the 17 SDGs and 169 targets are immeasurable and unmanageable. We propose adoption of satellite-estimated, time-series NPP data to monitor agricultural intensification and sustainability, as it is one indicator potentially valuable across several SDGs. To illustrate, we present a unique monitoring framework and a novel indicator, the agricultural appropriation of net primary productivity (AANPP) and analyze spatial trends in NPP and AANPP across the continent of Africa. AANPP focuses on the proportion of total crop NPP removed at harvest. We estimate AANPP by overlaying remotely sensed satellite imagery with rasterized crop production data at 10-by-10-kilometer spatial resolution; we explore variation in NPP and AANPP in terms of food and ecological security. The spatial distribution of NPP and AANPP illustrates the dominance of cropping systems as spatial drivers of NPP across many regions in West and East Africa, as well as in the fertile river valleys across North Africa and the Sahel, where access to irrigation and other technological inputs are inflating AANPP relative to NPP. A comparison of 2000 and 2005 datasets showed increasing AANPP in African countries south of the Sahara—particularly in Mozambique, Angola, and Zambia—whereas NPP either held stable or decreased considerably. This pattern was especially evident subnationally in Ethiopia. Such trends highlight increasing vulnerability of populations to food and ecological insecurity. When combined with other indicators and time-series data, the significance of NPP and the capacity of spatially explicit datasets have far-reaching implications for monitoring the progress of sustainable development in a post-2015 world.

Nuclear Power Plant Fire Modeling Analysis Guidelines (Npp Fire Mag) U.S. Nuclear Regulatory Commission, 2014-05-20 There is a movement to introduce risk-informed and performance-based (RI/PB) analyses into fire protection engineering practice, both domestically and worldwide. This movement exists in both the general fire protection and the nuclear power plant (NPP) fire protection communities. The U.S. Nuclear Regulatory Commission (NRC) has used risk-informed insights as a part of its regulatory decision making since the 1990s.

Trouble-free Operation of Nuclear Power Plants (NPP) Using Smart-MES Vladimir Chernov,Igor Chernov,2015-09-11 This monograph provides the latest Innovative direction on nuclear safety and safe nuclear power plants. Describes the Theory of Accidents and the ideology of Self-organization IT Systems that can ensure trouble-free operation of nuclear power plants. Described is a technology for prevention of emergencies at NPPs and TPPs to ensure the absolute security with full exception alarms emergency shutdown or unplanned outages of generating units, which ensures the absence of economic loss and attacking environmentalists. Describes a technique for creating self-organizing Information System Smart-MES, as well as the axioms of the Theory of Accidents, the logic of prevention of Accidents, the paradigm of self-organizing IT-System, structure, intelligence and multiagent system Smart-MES. The book is intended for students, scientists, Nuclear experts and IT areas, the management of Rosatom and the Ministry of energy, all those interested in problems of nuclear safety. Society planet will prefer all TPP, TPP and HPP clean nuclear power plant (NPP) because of their complete reliability and trouble-free!

Characterization of P-NPP Reactive ACPase in Piriformospora Indica Rajani Malla,2009-08 The phenomenal growth in all facets of science is largely due to the methodologies and procedures developed by dedicated scientists. The biological science is no exception. In recent years many novel methods are being developed and some improved in biological sciences. Under the current multidisciplinary approach concept a research scholar has to refer many books and periodicals to select procedures for his work and has to standardize them before putting into practice. In this regard, a well-documented procedure manual will help the scholar save a lot of time and energy and make his work easy. With this view in mind many procedural monographs have appeared. This book is an attempt to present simple approaches to my research during Ph D so that scholars having interest in this field may be benefited. The content of the book is accessible in original form. The methodology of the research has based mostly on immunological techniques. I am particularly grateful to my supervisor Prof. Ajit Varma for his kind care and supervision during my study and onwards. I am grateful to respected Dr. Rajiv Gulati for ever helpful guidance, blessings and moral support.

Principles and Standards for Measuring Primary Production Timothy J. Fahey, Alan K. Knapp, 2007-05-14 Principles and Standards for Measuring Net Primary Production in Long-Term Ecological Studies is the first book to establish a standardized method for measuring net primary productivity (NPP) in ecological research. Primary productivity is the rate at which energy is stored in the organic matter of plants per unit area of the earth's surface. As the beginning stage of the carbon cycle, our ability to accurately measure NPP is essential to any ecological analysis, as well as agronomy, forestry, fisheries, limnology and oceanography. In fact, NPP measurements are fundamental to ecosystem studies at thousands of sites around the world. All 26 LTER sites will be expected to collect and report data using these new standards, but the standards should reach well beyond LTER sites. Identified standards for NPP measurements will allow researchers from diverse biomes to authoritatively compare measurements among their sites. Comparable measurements will build a foundation for a broad scale understanding of the environmental, biological, and nutrition controls on NPP. The book includes chapters for each of the critical biome types, including special techniques that work best in each environment. For example, there are chapters that discuss grassland ecosystems, urban ecosystems, marine pelagic ecosystems, forest ecosystems, and salt marsh ecosystems, among others.

Applications of Non-Pollen Palynomorphs F.

Marret, J. O'Keefe, P. Osterloff, M. Pound, 2021-10-29

This long-awaited book about non-pollen palynomorphs (NPPs) aims to cover gaps in our knowledge of these abundant but understudied palynological remains. NPPs, such as fungal spores, testate amoebae, dinoflagellate cysts, acritarchs and animal remains, are routinely recovered from palynological preparations of marine or terrestrial material, from Proterozoic to recent geological times. This book gives the reader a comprehensive overview of the different types of NPPs, with examples from diverse time periods and environments. It provides guidance on sample preparation to maximize the recovery of these NPPs, detailed information on their diversity and ecological affinity, clarification on the nomenclature and demonstrates their value as environmental indicators. This volume will become the reference guide for any student, academic or practitioner interested in everything else in their palynological preparations.
