

Superseded

May Sinclair

Superseded May Sinclair, 2019-12-16 'Superseded' is an adventure novel written by May Sinclair. The story, set in a school, unfolds by introducing us to Miss Quincey, which the author describes as ...a little dry, brown woman, with a soft pinched mouth, and a dejected nose. So small and insignificant was she that she might have crept along for ever unnoticed but for her punctuality in obstruction. As St. Sidwell's prided itself on the brilliance and efficiency of its staff, the wonder was how Miss Quincey came to be there, but there she had been for five-and-twenty years. She seemed to have stiffened into her place. Five-and-twenty years ago she had been an arithmetic teacher, vaguely attached to the Second Division, and she was still an arithmetic teacher still. Miss Quincey was going on for fifty; she had out-lived the old Head, and now she was the oldest teacher there, twice as old as Miss Vivian, the new Classical Mistress, older, far older than Miss Cursiter. She had found her way into St. Sidwell's, not because she was brilliant or efficient, but because her younger sister Louisa already held an important post there.

Superseded (Classic Reprint) May Sinclair, 2018-01-04 Excerpt from Superseded The school was filing out along the main corridor Of St. Sidwell's. It came with a tramp and a rustle and a hiss and a tramp, urged to a trot by the excited teachers. The First Division first, half-woman, carrying it self smoothly, with a swish Of its long Skirts, with a blush, a dreamy intellectual smile, or a steadfast impenetrable air, as it happened to be more or less conscious Of the presence Of the Head. Then the Second Division, light - hearted, irrepressible, making a noise with its feet, loose hair flapping, pig-tails flapping to the beat Of its march. Then the straggling, diminishing lines of the Third, afroth of white pinafores, a confusion Of legs, black or tan, staggering, shifting, shuffling in a frantic effort to keep time. On it came in a waving stream; a stream that flickered with innumerable eyes, a stream that rippled with the wind Of its own flowing, that flushed and paled and bright ened as some flower-face was tossed up wards, or some crest, flame-coloured or golden, flung back the light. A stream that was one in its rhythm and in the sex that was its soul, Obscurely or luminously feminine; it might have been a Single living thing that throbbed and undulated, as girl after girl gave out the radiance and pulsation Of her youth. The effect was overpowering; your senses judged St. Sidwell's by these brilliant: types that gave life and colour to the stream. The rest were nowhere. Superseded May Sinclair,2005-03

Superseded (Esprios Classics) May Sinclair,2021-11-09 May Sinclair was the pseudonym of Mary Amelia St. Clair (24 August 1863 - 14 November 1946), a popular British writer who wrote about two dozen novels, short stories and poetry. She was an active suffragist, and member of the Woman Writers' Suffrage League. She once dressed up as a demure, rebel Jane Austen for a suffrage fundraising event. Sinclair was also a significant critic in the area of modernist poetry and prose, and she is attributed with first using the term 'stream of consciousness' in a literary context, when reviewing the first volumes of Dorothy Richardson's novel sequence Pilgrimage (1915-1967), in The Egoist, April 1918.

Government Auditing Standards – 2018 Revision United States Government Accountability Office,2019-03-24 Audits provide essential accountability and transparency over government programs. Given the current challenges facing governments and their programs, the oversight provided through auditing is more critical than ever. Government auditing provides the objective analysis and information needed to make the decisions necessary to help create a better future. The professional standards presented in this 2018 revision of Government Auditing Standards (known as the Yellow Book) provide a framework for performing high-quality audit work with competence, integrity, objectivity, and independence to provide accountability and to help improve government operations and services. These standards, commonly referred to as generally accepted government auditing standards (GAGAS), provide the foundation for government auditors to lead by example in the areas of independence, transparency, accountability, and quality through the audit process. This revision contains major changes from, and supersedes, the 2011 revision.
