This is not just a history book, but is an attempt to find a solution for the problem of Iran by the knowledge of past. This book starts from creation of the Universe and after revealing the vanished civilizations, gradually enters into history of Iran and Islam. History of Iran after Islam, together with important events in the other parts of the world, specially their advancements, have been analyzed. Until we sum up the last one hundred-year struggles of our country, in order to prove: The way to rescue Iran is a new constitution. History of Iran, simultaneously with events in the other parts of the world are studied, to find out what is really the problem with us? We have tried so hard and even had revolutions for freedom and never succeeded. In this book, lots of documents and articles have been copied from Internet Encyclopedias Wikipedia, National Geography, History and other websites. After reading these few hundred pages, we will conclude: Not having an ideal constitution in Iran is our problem. In the past thirty years, theft, corruption, murder, injustice, prostitution, drug addiction, insult to people's beliefs, lies, torture and rape in prison and many other shameful behaviors in this Dictatorship Regime of the Ayatollahs, has surpassed the level, or even higher than international record level. For many years these shameless behaviors have lost its sense of shame and hideousness. Force, reasoning, and million-people demonstrations and protests have no effect. More importantly, military intervention either by Saddam or in the future, only strengthens the regime. Unfortunately a lot of Iranians who inside and outside Iran randomly complain, they have hopes to reform the present regime or follow the failed monarchists or a group of traitor terrorists and most ridiculous are those who believe "The 12th Imam Messiah" will come out of the "Chamkaran Well" and rescue this tired and weary nation. Before reforming or changing this regime, a constitution must be drafted and all of our campaign to be on this constitution's framework. In that case, the opportunists in the future, like two previous Iranian revolutions, will not be able to steal our revolution and impose another dictatorship on Iran. After swearing to this new constitution, anybody can candid himself or herself for leadership. Only with an ideal new constitution, we can guarantee the death of dictatorship forever. Before raising the slogans to change this regime, first job, even in this age of freedom suffocations and suppressions in Iran, must be to draft an ideal new constitution. Fortunately, in this age of Internet, we can put our new constitution in a relative referendum and after having a constitution in hand; we can start our non-violence campaign. Our slogan must be "change of constitution". Otherwise, "death to the dictator", "equality between men and women", "separation of religion and government", "equality for all Iranian with any religion and political view", "enforcing the international declaration of human right" and hundreds of other slogans, they all will be in this new constitution. In the past hundred year, hundreds Kaveh Ahangar have come and gone. But where is Derafsh e Kavian?

IRAN BACK IN CONTEXT KAMBIZ ZARRABI, 2011-10-14 The portrayal of Iran as the source of regional instability and a threat to America's ally, Israel, and potentially to the world, has been an essential element in the formulation of America's foreign policies in the Middle East for far too long. It is time to rethink this strategy. Iran has been rapidly developing its resources, strengths and international connections in the face of economic sanctions by the West, pursued and enforced entirely by the United States, and quite clearly on behest of Israeli interests. As an unintended consequence of this policy, Iran has been gaining not only the status of an Islamic superpower in the region, but an increasing global recognition, as well. My travel to Iran, my conversation with a broad spectrum of people, and my observations and experiences there, did not invoke the need in me to redress my views and analyses of the Iranian situation as reflected in the opus of my writings and addresses in the past two decades. If anything, I am now even more convinced that the United States is dealing with an Iran that is justifiably and increasingly considering itself the powerhouse of the Middle East. This has led me to conclude that America's true strategic and economic interests in the Middle East would best be served through a rapprochement with Iran and the acknowledgement of Iran's own regional and global strategic interests. If we still need an enemy or a potential source of threat to serve certain other agendas, Pakistan is ready to replace Iran as that bogeyman. And, I believe we are already heading in that direction. Kam Zarrabi

We are Iran Nasrin Alavi, 2005 We Are Iran is a seamlessly edited multi-voiced portrait of contemporary Iran, translated from Farsi, using that nation's weblogs as its primary source. Iran has more web diarists than most countries, and in cyberspace many Iranians find a freedom to express opinions that is not available to them in print. There is not the Iran of bearded ayatollahs and thuggish militias, but a country that has educated itself to the point where it finds the Islamist fundamentalists antiquated and laughable, where adult literacy (and computer literacy) is higher than in many European states, and where 70 per cent of the population is under 30 and keen to usher in a new Iran. Their voices - infused with Persian lyricism - are refreshing, utterly at odds with the grim vision of the country peddled by Western governments. They talk of their conflicts with the law, the condition of women, of repression and its subversion, the police and media, of singing and dancing, of snatched romance and nostalgia for lost heroes. Reading We Are Iran, you have the sense that, for more reasons than are obvious, the worst thing that could possibly happen to Iran now would be a US attack.

Goodbye Iran ,

Iran Richard Dargie,2012-12-01 In Iran, you will learn that Iran, formerly known as Persia, is one of the world's oldest civilizations. Since the revolution in 1979, Iran has been governed as an Islamic Republic with an ayatollah, or Shia religious leader, as its supreme ruler. This has led to profound changes and tensions in Iranian society.

Iran the People April Fast,2005 The vast majority of Iranians are descended from the Aryans, Asian peoples who settled in what became known as Persia. Iran the people follows the history of this ancient land, from the height of the Persian Empire, through the Muslim conquest in the mid-600s, and the Revolution of 1979. Interesting photographs detail how today's Islamic Republic influences the daily lives of Iranians, especially in education and the role of women.

This book is a volume in the Penn Press Anniversary Collection. To mark its 125th anniversary in 2015, the University of Pennsylvania Press rereleased more than 1,100 titles from Penn Press's distinguished backlist from 1899-1999 that had fallen out of print. Spanning an entire century, the Anniversary Collection offers peer-reviewed scholarship in a wide range of subject areas.

Voices From Iran Mahnaz Kousha, 2002-11-01 Mahnaz Kousha interviewed fifteen Iranian women in Tehran who originally came from cities and towns throughout Iran. The youngest was 38, the eldest in her 50s. Extensive excerpts from their dialogues form the heart of this remarkable book. With admirable candor the women explore their relationships with their mothers, fathers, husbands, and children. They reflect upon the institutions of courtship and marriage and address issues of childcare, housework, and women's employment. They talk openly about their concerns, ambitions, and frustrations. Finally, they discuss everyday personal problems and the solutions they devise to cope with such difficulties. Offset by telling commentary, these conversations offer significant firsthand insights into the life experiences of the modern Iranian woman and her brave search for identity. Because it covers previously uncharted ground, this volume fills a sizable gap in the study of gender and family relationships in Iran. Abundant footnotes on similar studies in the United States and other countries not only add sociological richness, but also make the book relevant beyond Iran and the Middle East.

Crooked Alleys Soraya Lennie, 2021-12-01 By the end of the Ahmadinejad era, Iran was suffocating. It was as though the streets of Tehran had become narrower, the buildings taller, the dirty air thicker. In 2013, Iranians chose a new leader representing reform and pragmatism, burying the gloomy days when a Holocaust-denying president had pushed the country to the edge of economic collapse and violent conflict. But the nation hasn't quite broken free. This is the story of Iran today, told through the eyes of its people. Iranians are moving on, yet the Islamic Republic remains a prisoner of the past, plagued by US sanctions, medical shortages and failing planes; internal divisions, a broken economy and the threat of war. Now, the Trump years have destroyed Iran's best chances for real change. The 2010s marked one of the most significant periods in Iran's modern history. Rouhani's election gave voice to millions sick of the hardliner status quo, of Iran's pariah status and its reputation in the West as a country of revolutionary extremists. But how have Iranians met and lived through the latest challenges? What future do they imagine now? Crooked Alleys explores Iran during some of its darkest days, but also its most hopeful.

India and Iran Relations in Twenty First Century Dr. Mukhtar Ahmad Bhat,2018-12-01 The two countries India and Iran are among the oldest civilisations of the world and their relations are not new. The relations between the two are of centuries old and it is also said that the two nations belong to a same family that lived for many centuries in the pasture land of Central Asia (Oxus Valley). The centuries old mutual interaction enriched each other customs, tradition, art, and architecture. During medieval period their interaction increased to such a level that it left a permanent stamp on each other's culture, tradition, art and architecture. During the period, India became the second home of Iranian culture, art, architecture, festivals and art of gardening. Even Persian language was made a tool of communication not only in the official matters but also as a means for interchange of thoughts, culture and literature between the two countries. There is a long list of important books related to different aspects of life like astronomy, art, health and hygiene, history, mathematics, unani-medicine, music, and religion which were translated. However with the emergence of British rule over India, both the countries lost their linkages and contacts between them. No doubt after the end of British rule in India both the countries tried to develop their relations but the incidents like creation of Pakistan, emergence of cold war, and Iran's recognition as well as support to Pakistan during India-Pakistan as well as emergence of Iranian revolution, and Iran-Iraq war restricted their mutual cooperation. With the turn of twenty first century, both the countries experienced stability in their both domestic and global affairs which led them to economic development. In contemporary times India and Iran occupies great strategic significance in their respective regional power structure.

India is not only one of the fastest growing economies of the world and of the South Asian region but also provides a big market. While Iran on the other hand, occupies great strategic importance not only because of its geographic location but also due to its energy resources. The present study is a modest attempt to analyse Indo-Iran relations. Keeping in view the past, present and future prospects of the relations between the two countries, a thorough study has been carried out in terms of understanding the nature of India and Iran relations. The study aims to understand the different dimensions of India and Iran relations of recent times. It not only deeply analyses the areas that strengthen their bilateral cooperation, and the influence of external powers particularly of US and Israel. But it goes further deep by discussing in detail the areas that would lead to inter-regional integration by interconnecting South Asia, Central Asia, West Asia and Europe. And ultimately would take the regional economic development and peace to new heights. The study highlights the strategic importance of Iran for India not only with respect to the availability of energy resources and market for Indian goods and services but also Iran is would play a very significant role in transforming India into a new emerging power at both global and regional level. Keeping all these things in mind the book has been based on six chapters which deals with different aspects. The chapter first presents the historical overview, chapter second present comparative study of principles of foreign policies of both the countries. Chapter third, deals with the areas of cooperation and conflict between India and Iran. Fourth chapter discusses the influence of external powers on India and Iran relations. Chapter fifth studies the India and Iran relations in changing regional scenario. Despite non-availability of primary sources, efforts have been made to collect important and relevant data and special attention and care has been taken for the reliability of the sources of data which has been put to analytical study to arrive at certain conclusions.
