CETA--is it Equitable for Women? Sue E. Berryman, 1981 This Note assesses whether the Comprehensive Employment and Training Act (CETA) equitably allocates its training, employment, occupational, and wage benefits by sex. Two policy issues motivate the research, the first being legal. CETA represents a $9.4 billion federal program. Does it operate in conformity with federal law on nondiscrimination by sex? The second issue is economic. Unrelated females and female family heads and their dependents have much higher poverty rates than their male counterparts: 33 percent versus 7 percent. In families headed by males, 8 percent of the related children under 18 years of age are poor; in families headed by females, 51 percent of such children are poor. Wives' earnings reduced by 40 percent the number of husband-wife families that would have been poor and by a third the number of children who would have resided in poor husband-wife families. These data show the relevance of anti-discrimination laws to federal programs that control training and employment resources. CETA has certain resources to distribute and some discretion about how to distribute them by sex. These opportunities include participation in CETA itself, program assignment, training or experience in traditional male or mixed occupations, CETA wages, and post-CETA placement. How CETA distributes these resources by sex has no automatic equity implications. Equity can be assessed only relative to some standard. The authors use as a standard the informed preferences of eligible participants. To analyze the sex equity of CETA's resource distributions, they used data from the Continuous Longitudinal Manpower Survey (CLMS) for FY76, FY77, and FY78 CETA enrollees. Respondents were sampled from each quarter's CETA enrollees, interviewed in the quarter after their enrollment, and followed for 36 months. They conducted separate analyses for youths and adults but report primarily the adult results. They use results for youths for comparative purposes only.

CETA Investment Law Marc Bungenberg, August Reinisch, 2021-08-12 This article-by-article Commentary on the Canada-European Union Comprehensive Economic and Trade Agreement (CETA) is a vital resource for practitioners and academics in the field of EU investment protection law. CETA has been called a game-changer. In the investment chapter, it has introduced a number of key innovations, including; - the investment court system with an appellate tribunal, - guidelines on third party funding, - transparency and information sharing, - modern versions of standards of protection, and - detailed provisions on reservations and exceptions. Considering that the new dispute resolution provisions in this chapter have also passed the scrutiny of the Court of Justice of the European Union, it is expected that CETA's investment chapter will serve as a blueprint for future EU investment agreements and so a full understanding of this, offered by this useful commentary, is essential for lawyers.

Mega-regional Trade Agreements Stefan Griller, Walter Obwexer, Erich Vranes, 2017 This volume brings together leading experts in the field of international economic law to address the legal complexities of the TTIP, CETA, and TISA treaties and provide an explanation of their core principles. It also addresses the controversies surrounding the treaties, including their regulatory ambition and insufficient transparency.

CETA's Investment Chapter Kriton Dionysiou, 2021-01-31 This book provides a comprehensive account of the CETA Investment Chapter's ability to overcome the legitimacy crisis facing investment arbitration. To do so, it first examines the root causes behind the legitimacy crisis, ultimately arguing that it reflects a fundamental rule of law crisis within investment arbitration. In particular, it asserts that the normative standpoints of the legitimacy crisis form part of the rule of law, the uniting legal principle from which the legitimacy concerns stem. The book contends that the rule of law is not only the principal normative and causal assumption on which the legitimacy concerns are based, but that it could also be utilized as a platform to evaluate the investment arbitration mechanism in CETA's Investment Chapter. Based on this, the book evaluates CETA's Investment Chapter through the rule of law framework in order to provide a convincing account of the latter's ability to overcome the legitimacy crisis facing investment arbitration. It concludes that CETA's Investment Chapter is unlikely to completely solve the legitimacy crisis simply because it is just a patchwork of reforms rather than a comprehensive reinvention of the substantive and procedural law of investment arbitration. Lastly, the book offers meaningful insights into the way the challenges presented by investment arbitration should be addressed. The book is intended for academics researching international investment law and arbitration as well as for policy-makers focusing on reforming investor-state dispute settlement.
