Applications of Geodesy to Engineering Klaus Linkwitz, Viktor Eisele, Hans-Joachim Mönicke, 2012-12-06 Accuracy requirements of fractions of a millimeter for the positioning of beam-guiding magnets in synchrotrons, monitoring of speedy sub-sea tunnelling with lengths exceeding 25 km, the construction of extremely long bridges of suspension or cast-and-push-type, but also geometrical industrial quality control and robot calibration in real time, and even the analysis of prestressed cable nets, are few examples of the challenging new tasks demanding responses from the modern engineering-geodesist. In this volume, a general view of Engineering Geodesy is presented, its state of the art and up-to-date information about recent scientific tasks, aims and methods. The contributions focus on Theoretical Aspects, Techniques of Measurements, Techniques of Data Processing and Computing, Reports About Selected Executed Projects, Special Tasks, e.g. Realtime Positioning and Navigation, Industrial Managements, Image Processing. But also the role of geodesists in collaboration with civil and mechanical engineers, technical designers and architects is outlined. As a reference book, this volume will be useful for researchers, students and practitioners in Engineering Geodesy and neighbouring disciplines.

Cancer Incidence in Five Continents Richard Doll, Calum Muir, John

Waterhouse, 2012-12-06 In 1966, following the Ninth International Cancer Congress in Tokyo, the Commission on Epidemiology and Prevention of the International Union against Cancer formed a new Committee on Cancer Incidence. This Committee met in Lausanne in May 1968 and decided that the monograph on Cancer Incidence in Five Continents, which had been published by the UICC two years previously, had been so useful that a second volume should be published as soon as a sufficient amount of new material could be collected. The Committee delegated the responsibility for the production of this volume to the Editors of the original monograph and to the Honorary Secretary of the Committee, Dr C. S. Muir. Mr P. Payne, however, was unable to continue in this capacity because of the pressure of other commitments. The Editors have leaned heavily on the skills and knowledge of Dr A. J. Tuyns and Dr H. Tuinijns, who have been responsible for the preparation of Chapters II and IV respectively and for the collection of a large part of the material presented in them. They are also greatly indebted to Miss J. Powell of the Birmingham Cancer Registry, who wrote the computer programme for calculating the age-specific and standardized incidence rates, in conjunction with Dr J. A. H. Waterhouse, and supervised the operation of the computer, as well as to Mme J.

Clinical Trial Design Guosheng Yin, 2013-06-07 A balanced treatment of the theories, methodologies, and design issues involved in clinical trials using statistical methods There has been enormous interest and development in Bayesian adaptive designs, especially for early phases of clinical trials. However, for phase III trials, frequentist methods still play a dominant role through controlling type I and type II errors in the hypothesis testing framework. From practical perspectives, Clinical Trial Design: Bayesian and Frequentist Adaptive Methods provides comprehensive coverage of both Bayesian and frequentist approaches to all phases of clinical trial design. Before underpinning various adaptive methods, the book establishes an overview of the fundamentals of clinical trials as well as a comparison of Bayesian and frequentist statistics. Recognizing that clinical trial design is one of the most important and useful skills in the pharmaceutical industry, this book provides detailed discussions on a variety of statistical designs, their properties, and operating characteristics for phase I, II, and III clinical trials as well as an introduction to phase IV trials. Many practical issues and challenges arising in clinical trials are addressed. Additional topics of coverage include: Risk and benefit analysis for toxicity and efficacy trade-offs Bayesian predictive probability trial monitoring Bayesian adaptive randomization Late onset toxicity and response Dose finding in drug combination trials Targeted therapy designs The author utilizes cutting-edge clinical trial designs and statistical methods that have been employed at the world's leading medical centers as well as in the pharmaceutical industry. The software used throughout the book is freely available on the book's related website, equipping readers with the necessary tools for designing clinical trials. Clinical Trial Design is an excellent book for courses on the topic at the graduate level. The book also serves as a valuable reference for statisticians and biostatisticians in the pharmaceutical industry as well as for researchers and practitioners who design, conduct, and monitor clinical trials in their everyday work.

Interim Report of the Workshop on the Scientific Basis for the Management of Penaeid Shrimp, Key West, Florida, November, 1981, 1983 The annual global catch of tropical or penaeid shrimp amounts to 700,000 tons. Some of the largest fisheries for shrimp appear to be in waters off Indonesia, Thailand, India and in the Gulf of Mexico. Shrimp are extremely valuable, often of importance for domestic use, but also as a valuable export item. The great value of the shrimp emphasizes the importance of shrimp management, especially since substantial increases in global shrimp production are not expected, hence, making it important to improve management and make most efficient use of stocks in existing fisheries--Introduction, paragraph 1

Togo International Monetary Fund. African Dept., 2017-12-15 This paper discusses Togo's First Review Under the Extended Credit Facility (ECF) Arrangement. Program implementation under the ECF-supported program has been good. All quantitative performance criteria and prior actions were met as well as four out of five structural benchmarks. The fiscal consolidation envisaged under the ECF-supported program has begun. The primary deficit improved from an annual average of about 6 percent of GDP in 2013–16 to a surplus of 1.4 percent of GDP in the first half of 2017, due primarily to expenditure rationalization and the halting of non-orthodox financing of public investment. The IMF staff supports the completion of the first ECF review as most quantitative targets, prior actions, and structural benchmarks have been met.
