An Introduction to NURBS David F. Rogers,2001 NURBS (Non-uniform Rational B-Splines) are the computer graphics industry standard for curve and surface description. They are now incorporated into all standard computer-aided design and drafting programs (for instance, Autocad). They are also extensively used in all aspects of computer graphics including much of the modeling used for special effects in film and animation, consumer products, robot control, and automobile and aircraft design. So, the topic is particularly important at this time because NURBS are really at the peak of interest as applied to computer graphics and CAD of all kind.

Implementation and Evaluation of Interval Arithmetic Software David A. Cohn,J. Brian Potter,Myron Ginsberg,1979 This is Report 5 of a series entitled 'Implementation and Evaluation of Interval Arithmetic Software. 'The potential user of this or any other interval analysis package should take into consideration the limitations of this technique. Some of the limitations are inherent in all interval analysis implementations and others are dependent upon one specific package. The user should be aware that software interval analysis tends to be very slow; cases run on one CDC CYBER 70 have required as much 100-fold increase in execution time over a noninterval version. Thus, large production codes involving significant amounts of floating-point computations are not viable candidates for a complete interval implementation; however, small portions of the computation might benefit from use of the package. The computed bounds using interval analysis can be overly pessimistic as well as being time-consuming to determine. The tightness of the bounds is dependent upon the arithmetic of the host computer and possible numerical anomalies introduced by compile-time arithmetic. Another factor affecting the performance of the interval package is the accuracy of the host computer's FORTRAN library routines.
