Air Purifier Zhonglin Xu, 2018-09-03 This book discusses the development, types and application principles of portable air purifiers in China. It analyzes the theoretical characteristics of air purifiers under various operational conditions, and points out that the term "Clean Air Delivery Rate" cannot be used to precisely reflect the problems that occur under various operational conditions. By comparing theoretical and measured data, it highlights the main features of air purifiers and key points in the design process for different applications. Calculation methods for the indoor particle concentration and the self-purification time are also provided. The book describes the conditions for window opening in smog and for selecting air purifiers, and proposes a new method for improving their measurement. In closing, it includes a new assessment index.

Gravimetric and Dust-spot Procedures for Testing Air-cleaning Devices Used in General Ventilation for Removing Particulate Matter American Society of Heating, Refrigerating and Air-Conditioning Engineers, 1992 This standard establishes procedures to measure the ability of air-cleaning devices to remove dust as they become loaded with standard synthetic dust. The dust-removal performance is measured in two ways: first by the percentage of the weight of the synthetic dust captured by the filter (ASHRAE weight arrestance) and second by comparing the blackening of targets both upstream and downstream of the air-cleaning device using ambient atmospheric dust (ASHRAE dust-spot efficiency). The procedures in this standard do not measure the ability of the air cleaner to remove particles of specific diameters. This standard is not intended for testing air cleaners exhibiting ASHRAE dust-spot efficiencies of greater than 98%.
