Overcharging on Mortgages United States. Congress. House. Committee on Banking, Finance, and Urban Affairs. Subcommittee on Housing and Community Development,1992

Sherman's Supply Chain Challenge Chuck Munson,2013-09-11 800x600 This new case study challenges students to identify the optimal pricing strategy to maximize profitability for both a soda manufacturer and its exclusive distributor: a price strategy that will resolve excess capacity and inventory problems caused by higher-than-necessary retail prices. Crystallizing realistic pricing challenges faced by companies in many industries and markets, this case study offers exceptional value to both students and practitioners. Author: Chuck Munson, Washington State University.

Advocating for Yourself Lisa Greer,2018-12-29 As this book is going live on Amazon, I stood listening to a friend who was the victim of erroneous billing by a medical provider and was turned into collections as a result. This friend had tried numerous times to address the issue, but the billing service had the upper hand and did not make an effort to help her resolve the issue. She felt helpless in this situation and didn't know where to turn to get it resolved. Just a few days ago, I was asked by another friend to take a look at a contract she'd signed to make sure it was a fair one and if she could terminate it if it wasn't. I told her I would be happy to take a look, but I couldn't promise she could get out of it. The ideal situation would have been for me to review it before she signed. Too often, I've been asked to look for a loophole in a horrible contract after someone has signed. I wish I could say these stories are few and far between. However, I hear of some instance at least once a week where someone has tried to get out of a horrible business deal, or has had to deal with erroneous billing to no avail, or has been turned into collections by a creditor whose billing department fails to properly address the issue and assist the person calling. Have you ever been held captive in a contract with the other party refusing to let you out of it, even when they are not performing on their end as promised? What about unethical salespersons, also known as scammers, approaching you with high pressure tactics to do business with them? Or, maybe you've been the recipient of erroneous billing and end up having to pay for something you didn't actually receive because the billing office representative failed to properly research and address your issue. If any of these sound like an experience you've had, this book was written with you in mind. Advocating for Yourself is a book to assist you in taking back control of your day to day business dealings and negotiating contracts for services that range from apartment leasing and telecom services to home repairs, vacation rentals and other deals where you will be presented with a contract to sign. This book additionally provides examples of scams and how to deal with the scammers, as well as the numerous medical and other billing issues that occur every day and the avenues of recourse available to help you prevail in resolving these issues.

S. Hrg. 112-507 U.S. Government Printing Office (Gpo),2013-08 The United States Government Printing Office (GPO) was created in June 1860, and is an agency of the U.S. federal government based in Washington D.C. The office prints documents produced by and for the federal government, including Congress, the Supreme Court, the Executive Office of the President and other executive departments, and independent agencies. A hearing is a meeting of the Senate, House, joint or certain Government committee that is open to the public so that they can listen in on the opinions of the legislation. Hearings can also be held to explore certain topics or a current issue. It typically takes between two months up to two years to be published. This is one of those hearings.

Overcharged Charles Silver, David A. Hyman, 2018-07-03 Why is America's health care system so expensive? Why do hospitalized patients receive bills laden with inflated charges that come out of the blue from out-of-network providers or demands for services that weren't delivered? Why do we pay $600 for EpiPens that contain a dollar's worth of medicine? Why is more than $1 trillion - one out of every three dollars that passes through the system - lost to fraud, wasted on services that don't help patients, or otherwise misspent? Overcharged answers these questions. It shows that America's health care system, which replaces consumer choice with government control and third-party payment, is effectively designed to make health care as expensive as possible. Prices will fall, quality will improve, and medicine will become more patient-friendly only when consumers take charge and exert pressure from below. For this to happen, consumers must control the money. As Overcharged explains, when health care providers are subjected to the same competitive forces that shape other industries, they will either deliver better services more cheaply or risk being replaced by someone who will.
