Notorious RBG Irin Carmon, Shana Knizhnik, 2015-10-27 New York Times Bestseller Featured in the critically acclaimed documentary RBG It was beyond my wildest imagination that I would one day become the 'Notorious RBG. — Ruth Bader Ginsburg, 2019 She was a fierce dissenter with a serious collar game. RGB-D Image Analysis and Processing Paul L. Rosin, Yu-Kun Lai, Ling Shao, Yonghuai Liu, 2019-10-26 This book focuses on the fundamentals and recent advances in RGB-D imaging as well as covering a range of RGB-D applications. The topics covered include: data acquisition, data quality assessment, filling holes, 3D reconstruction, SLAM, multiple depth camera systems, segmentation, object detection, salience detection, pose estimation, geometric modelling, fall detection, autonomous driving, motor rehabilitation therapy, people counting and cognitive service robots. The availability of cheap RGB-D sensors has led to an explosion over the last five years in the capture and application of colour plus depth data. The addition of depth data to regular RGB images vastly increases the range of applications, and has resulted in a demand for robust and real-time processing of RGB-D data. There remain many technical challenges, and RGB-D image processing is an ongoing research area. This book covers the full state of the art, and consists of a series of chapters by internationally renowned experts in the field. Each chapter is written so as to provide a detailed overview of that topic. RGB-D Image Analysis and Processing will enable both students and professional developers alike to quickly get up to speed with contemporary techniques, and apply RGB-D imaging in their own projects.

RGB to CMYK Color Charts for Self-Publishers Jenae

Renee Jordan,2018-06-17 Color can be tricky when it comes to print versus electronics. Print uses ink to produce color, whereas electronics use light. Print uses a subtractive color model based on cyan, magenta, yellow, and black. Electronics use an additive color model based on red, green, and blue. Due to these differences, print renders color differently in comparison to electronics. Vibrancy and color consistency between print and electronics will invariably differentiate. The degree of differentiation can range from a subtle shade to a different color altogether. There is no foolproof way to reconcile the color conundrum between print and electronics. The best solution to meeting color expectations between the two modes are hard copy color charts. The charts will not change the differences between the two modes. What the charts will do is allow a self-publisher to see how a color renders in print versus electronic sources. By knowing this, self-publishers can modify color choices to colors that will render acceptably well within both modes.

Sensors Ling Shao, Jungong Han, Pushmeet Kohli, Zhengyou Zhang, 2014-07-14 This book presents an interdisciplinary selection of cutting-edge research on RGB-D based computer vision. Features: discusses the calibration of color and depth cameras, the reduction of noise on depth maps and methods for capturing human performance in 3D; reviews a selection of applications which use RGB-D information to reconstruct human figures, evaluate energy consumption and obtain accurate action classification; presents an approach for 3D object retrieval and for the reconstruction of gas flow from multiple Kinect cameras; describes an RGB-D computer vision system designed to assist the visually impaired and another for smart-environment sensing to assist elderly and disabled people; examines the effective features that characterize static hand poses and introduces a unified framework to enforce both temporal and spatial constraints for hand parsing; proposes a new classifier architecture for real-time hand pose recognition and a novel hand segmentation and gesture recognition system.

SLAM and Localization of People with a Mobile Robot using a RGB-D Sensor Francisco Ferrer Sales, 2014-07-01 The evolution of Robotics lead us to aspire replacing human beings by autonomous robotic systems in the most discomfoting or dangerous situations, and even to have them performing tasks that humans are incapable of. Such situations are often encountered when facing a catastrophic scenario and human rescue teams put themselves at risk in their heroic attempt to rescue victims. In nowadays society, the human life is highly valued and, consequently, Search and Rescue (SaR) missions became of extreme importance, precisely because their accomplishment can save several human lives. For that reason, rescue teams are heavily trained and, since they also comprise human beings, heavily equipped. However, they often lack technological tools to perform their mission better and in safety. The main objective of this work is to study, develop and validate a fully-integrated robotic system to eventually explore catastrophic scenarios, by providing a map of the area and the people it detected while performing its task. This is a vital information in SaR missions, and this work aims at achieving this without risking a human life in the process. To that end, a mobile robot with a Red-Blue-Green and Depth (RGB-D) sensor mounted on its top was used. Furthermore, all approaches and methods were implemented in Robot Operating System (ROS) and thoroughly analyzed to assess their accuracy and performance. However, due to hardware limitations, the results are comprehensively not optimal, but they still provide useful information that might be of great help in SaR missions. Moreover, the study and analysis of this type of sensor and its usability are valuable and are now available for upcoming developments. This work is part of the Cooperation between Human and rObotic teams in catastroPhic INcidents (CHOPIN) project, which intends to develop a support system for small-scale SaR missions in urban catastrophic scenarios by exploiting human-robot cooperation.

RGB Marc Valli, Richard Brereton, 2010 Is there such a thing as British graphic design? There is certainly a lot of it: from the high degree of sophistication, erudition and conceptualization of London-based practitioners such as Mark Farrow, Browns, BiliothFque, Studio8, Sea, Spin, Proud Collective, NB Studio, Shaz Madani and William Hall, to the relentless visual experimentation of image-makers such as Build, Ehquestion-mark, Universal Everything, Julian House, Family, Hellovon, James Joyce, Tom Hingston, Me Company, Village Green, Yes and Studio Output, not to mention the wonderfully eclectic work of hopelessly cosmopolitan entities such as Winkreative, Non-Format, Fuel, Tomato, Matt Dent, FI@33 and the designers under the Pentagram umbrella, whose sophisticated internationalism is typified in the work of Domenic Lippa & Angus Hyland. Put all these types together and you get a heady mix. So what happened to British graphics in the last few years? Who did what? With whom? When? Where? Open this book. Find out. --Book --
